SKEETERS STING DAABSTERS TO TUNE OF 3 TO 0

Jersey City, Eastern League, Defeats Plainfield in a Rattling Good Game.

LOU WILTSE O. K.

Clinton Avenue Is Routed By Dunellen, Score Being 2 To 1 In Favor of the Visitors—The Sad Tales.

In both invasions of our storied ballyard Saturday afternoon the foreigners stung the defenders of the domestic honor. The Jersey City athletes coated our Commute heroes thickly with whitewash, gathering three insurmountable marks themselves, and the modest semi-amateurs from Dunellen whanged the aspiring Clinton Avenues, 2 to 1. The painful affairs were produced in tandem order, and the feelings of a midsummer crowd were cruelly harrowed by a double dose of unhappiness. In unpacking a double-header the management should see that we win at least fifty per cent. of the affair.

Fresh from the glory of a real look-in at the Eastern League pennant, the Skeeters came hither to toy with us. They were encouraged in this notion by memories of last Sunday's game in the Commuters' home camp. Nothing occurred in the game to disabuse their minds of the fancy. With one Mack in the box, a debonair youth who flung the Hobokens to a stand still last Sunday, they were not worried by a thick rain of hits, and the Hon. L. Wiltse, the erstwhile demon southpaw, of Baltimore, York and Plainfield, was not the fearful stumbling block he had been at other times.

Lou played an all-star part in a run of hard luck. Two of the Skeeters' three marks would never have been checked in if Mike Leonard hadn't made a foozle of a pop fly chase, and the other mark wouldn't have mattered if the Commuters had improved each shining minute on the alleys, not to mention fleeting moments at the willow. Lou, after a bad start, pitched a great and heady game. He was welted nine times, but whiffed that many would-be tappers away and only allowed anything like bunching in one stanza. And by that time enough had happened to make any mortal pitcher indifferent to the fate of his delivery.

Speaking generally and with charitable feelings toward several old college chums, the Commuters played pretty well. They seemed to want the game bad enough, but somehow couldn't get at things just right. For one thing, they couldn't reach Mr. Mack's shoots properly. Only two of them did anything at all in the soaking department, Willie Dalton and Dan Connolly dividing our four biffs between them. Individual bits of brilliancy flashed now and then, but the polish on the general front looked like a bum job. Among the inspiring things unfolded to the enraptured gaze was a great hot-foot catch by Pete Cregan and swift ground stabs by P. Kiernan and Willie Dalton.

Included in the "ifs" and "might-have-beens" of the Commuter exhibit were two squandered chances to spike the gutta percha. In the breakaway, after the Skeeters nailed up two, the Driscoll band were blithely hopeful of getting into the swim on their own hook, and Peter Kiernan hit a peppery grounder at Pfanmiller and made the sack before Fanny got through cooling her fingers. Wally Cosgrave did the proper thing and died usefully, box to first. Dalton, who is Bad Bill to all sorts of pitchers, welted one to center. Halligan whipped it to the plate like a shot, and Kiernan, instead of thankfully embracing sack three, careered into the fatal globule where it waited balefully at the joy place. It mattered nothing that Willie went to second, because Dan Connolly fanned. This little affair was bad enough, but a worse was in store for our ruffled feelings. In the fourth, with one down, Bad Bill beat out an infield tap with a glittering slide. Dan fell opportunely on one of Mack's spit curves and slammed the leather over Joe Bean's konk. Joe got one finger on it and knocked it down, at which identical minute Bill took it into his head to overrun the bag. Bill did some spectacular doubling and dodging, and Dan swooped down on the second sack. Then Willie, to the unutterable amazement of the experts, jumped for second and forced Dan back into the open, instead of dying quietly alone on the three-quarter stretch. Just two more flings after that wound up Danny and Willie. Two outs on a clean hit is running hard luck or blank foolishness to the limit.

The Skeeters began a tattoo on Lou's twist in hurry-up order. Bean singled to left and was nailed stealing. Halligan duplicated the biff and went to second on Lou's mishandle of Kiester's roller. Merritt banged to Dalton, forcing Kiester, but shoving Halligan on; he stole second while Lou was busy with McCormick, our old thumping Westfield friend. Harry popped a high one back of third. It was up and a cinch for either short, third or left field. Mike and the two Peters hot-footed it for glory, and all suddenly decided the other man was going to get it. Some sad stars belong here. When the saddened Michael retrieved the leather Halligan and Merritt had registered. Vandergrift singled to center, but died on Fitz Henry's force, third to second. The Skeeters sunk their bloodthirsty bills into our gore again in the eighth. With two out, Kiester beat out an infield rap, went to second on Merrit's single to center and registered on McCormick's slash to right. Merritt tried a devil-may-care steal for home and disputed the out with his tongue in his cheek, just like a real leaguer in a lopsided exhibition game. This thing made us feel real small and almost convinced us that we were very cheeky to think we could play a half-way league team.

Old Inability to Hit did for the earnest band of leather handlers from Clinton avenue. The struggle was largely a matter of argument between P. Smith, the schoolboy wonder, and Jim Scott, who is something of a demon flinger himself in the great unclassed bunch of hide tossers. Inspired by memories of his thrilling battle against Westfield, Phil did terrible execution. The enemy could only wrench off two hits. Dunellen ripped two from Scott's delivery, the youthful phenom getting one of them himself.

Both teams, with one exception apiece, fielded fast and faultlessly. Conway made two bum chucks, and Beekman did some yellow foozling. But Martin looked like old city league days as he hustled after hot ones at second, and Howard Devere Craig, the social favorite of Dunellen, made the dust fly around short. Howie has a great wing.

Smith started the joy trip in the sixth, with a rap to left, and took second on Teddy Overton's sacrifice. Craig soaked the flinger in with a corking double. Howie, having the social items of the Dunellen Call in mind, tried to stretch the welt, and was nailed at third. Howie's ambition was ashamed of itself right off, when Conway lammed a duplicate shot in the same place. James clung to his proper bag, but Giles, unequal to the occasion, fanned.

It was not until the ninth that Clinton Avenue scored. With one down, O'Loughlin reached first on Giles' fumble, and reached second on Smith's pass of a return from a chuck to first. Martin laced a scorcher to left, and O'Loughlin rippled in. Britt was nailed at second on a swift chuck, and Jack Martin fanned. Craig went after that run right away. He slashed the round thing to left and hit third on a passed ball. With Giles at the stick Howie jumped in for a squeeze, and made good on a slow roller to third.

While the earnest youths were rustling around, the Commuters and spectators gathered for their fray. Toward the close of the mixup the landscape was thickly covered with athletes.

The game was the deciding one in

FLOOD OF ELOQUENCE AT REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION THURSDAY AFTERNOON

CONVENTION FORECAST.

For State Senator
ERNEST R. ACKERMAN,
of Plainfield.

For Sheriff,
DR. W. H. LAWRENCE,
of Summit.

For Assembly,
PETER TILLMAN,
of Rahway.
RANDOLPH PERKINS,
of Westfield.
E. K. TUCKER,
of Elizabeth.

City Judge William N. Runyon has been selected to nominate Ernest R. Ackerman for State Senator at the Republican county convention on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Runyon withdrew from the Senatorial race some time ago in favor of Mr. Ackerman, and for that reason is picked to make the speech placing the latter's name before the convention.

The convention will be held in Jacob's theatre, following the usual custom, and there will be a lively time so far as the shrievalty nomination, at least, is concerned. Summit, Rahway, Elizabeth and Cranford will each present a favorite son for the honor of succeeding Sheriff B. F. Coriell.

William N. Runyon,
Who will nominate Ernest R. Ackerman for Senator.

Ruppert Franklin, who told the convention last year that Summit would be on hand this time with a candidate for sheriff, will nominate Dr. Lawrence, of that place. C. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, will make a speech in behalf of Robert Kirkland. Robert Wright, of Rahway, will be named by Horace Gore-Kelly, and Emmor K. Adams by E. D. Horton.

There are several candidates for the third place on the Assembly ticket. Peter Tillman, of Rahway, and Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, will be renominated. The third man will be Everard K. Tucker, of Elizabeth.

No announcement has been made as to the permanent chairman of the convention. It is probable that honor will not be known until Thursday morning.

GIRL ON A BICYCLE STOPS A RUNAWAY

A TRICK RIDER SAVES PLAINFIELD GIRL FROM PROBABLE INJURY.

It did not seem out of the ordinary to Miss Minnie Kaufmann, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl, of West Thirty-eighth street, New York, when she stopped a runaway horse attached to a runabout, in which sat Miss Adele Van Ohl, of this city, yesterday noon at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, New York, but to the crowd that looked on the deed seemed wonderful.

Miss Kaufmann is a trick rider and performs thrilling feats every afternoon and evening, except Sunday, at the big Hippodrome on Sixth avenue.

Miss Kaufmann was taking a spin on her bicycle through Central Park when the horse driven by Miss Van Ohl dashed furiously by. The animal had been running for half a mile and was covered with froth. The lines had been pulled from Miss Van Ohl's hands and were dangling about the horse's hoofs.

Miss Kaufmann spurted after the runaway. Although the horse was going at a swift pace it was easy for Miss Kaufmann to come alongside.

The runaway and Miss Kaufmann came out of the park entrance side-by-side. The circle was crowded with automobiles and carriages, but everyone drove aside to give the runaway a clear course. Then all watched the young woman on her wheel stop the horse.

In front of the Netherland Hotel, Miss Kaufmann grabbed the bridle on the left side. She pulled with all her might, but the horse drew her along. Seeing she could not stop the animal if she stayed on her wheel, the girl kicked it from under her and clung to the bridle rein.

She was dragged along the pavement half a block. As her body swung from the bridle, the horse kicked her several times, but she was not seriously injured. At Fifty-eighth street she stopped the runaway.

The crowd swarmed about and congratulated her. Miss Van Ohl, who was hysterical, embraced Miss Kaufmann and declared she had saved her life.

Mrs. Christina Allen Dead.

Mrs. Christina Allen, of 18 Lincoln place, died at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, following an attack of dysentery. She had been ill since March and had been a patient sufferer. She was a devout Christian and had many friends in the borough. She leaves a daughter, Clara, and a son, Edward. The funeral services will be held from the late home tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate. The interment will be beside Mrs. Allen's husband in the family plot, Fairmount cemetery, Newark.

Brothers Meet After 16 Years.

Joseph K. Oliver, of Monterey, California, is visiting his brother, W. F. Oliver, of East Fifth street. They have not seen each other for nearly sixteen years, and that was when he attended W. F. Oliver's wedding in this city. Mr. Oliver has traveled quite extensively.

Excellent Portrait Work.

The excellent pictures of Police Commissioners Andrews, McCardell and Marshall, in Saturday's issue, were reproductions of photographs by P. Frank Stone, of East Front street.

—Neuman Brothers still have a nice lot of peaches and Bartlett pears. They are also receiving splendid Northern Spy apples.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO WRECK FAST TRAIN

IRON WEIGHING 150 POUNDS FOUND WEDGED BETWEEN TIES.

What is supposed to have been a plot to wreck the Harrisburg express on the Jersey Central Railroad, in a deep cut west of Raritan, was discovered by the crew of an eastbound train at 6 o'clock last night, ten minutes before the express was due through the cut. A piece of cast iron, weighing at least 150 pounds and wedged between two railroad ties, was found lying across the rails. The train crew removed the obstacle.

As the freight approached the deep cut, three men were seen running away from the place where the obstruction was found.

The Somerset county authorities are scouring the country hereabouts in search of the guilty parties, who are thought be members of the notorious "Hack Leahy" gang, some of whom are now in the county jail at Somerville, from which they tried to escape last Sunday night by dynamiting the jail.

BOYS' RECEPTION.

Y. M. C. A. Juniors' Annual Affair Held in the Big Hall.

The annual reception of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. was held in the big hall of the association Saturday night. Over 200 boys and parents were in the audience.

Harold Robbins, president of the boys' cabinet, presided, and made a speech of welcome. George M. Rittenhouse played a piano solo; Theodore Gavett and Chester Briggs played a mandolin duet; Alfred Manley sang; Arthur Stine, Frank Line, Louis Van Zandt, Clarence Bechtel and Alfred Manley sang a chorus; Louis Slocum presented a Punch and Judy show; O. S. Rogers, chairman of the boys' work committee, spoke; Clarence Steiner sang, and M. B. Stutsman recited. With the exception of Mr. Rogers, all those on the programme were members of the department.

The affair was arranged by the boys' work committee. Those who served under Mr. Rogers on this committee are Dr. Norman Probasco, Dr. Charles Davis, Philip Suffern and Lindsley Best.

Tendered a "Kitchen Shower."

Miss Elizabeth Smalley, whose marriage to Henry Dunbar takes place this evening, was given a "kitchen shower" by thirty friends at her home on Craig place, Saturday night. They called unexpectedly, each one bringing a tin utensil to equip a kitchen, the entire lot being suspended from a long rope. Miss Smalley was taken by surprise but soon regained her composure and joined in the merrymaking that followed. The affair was arranged by Miss Edna French.

Chief Kearsted's Visit Spoiled.

Chief Kearsted, of the Newark fire department, drove to Plainfield in company with his wife yesterday and had dinner at the Hotel Iroquois. He had planned to spend the afternoon with Chief Doane and was with him at his home on West Fifth street when he received a message from Newark to the effect that the department had a big fire to contend with. The visit was abruptly terminated and the chief started back home at once.

His First Offence.

Charles McCarthy, arrested for drunkenness by Officer O'Keefe yesterday, was released under a suspended sentence by Judge Runyon this morning. It was his first offence.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE ON WEDNESDAY, OCT. 18

COUNTY CONVENTION TO BE HELD AT TURN HALL, ELIZABETH.

Union county Democrats will nominate a ticket on Wednesday afternoon, October 18. The county executive committee has selected this date. It has also announced that the meeting place will be Turn Hall, Elizabeth.

As yet the minority party is much at sea over nominations. There seems to be a general tendency to await the outcome of the Republican convention. If Robert M. Kirkland, who is extremely popular in his home town, is turned down by the Republicans for the shrievalty, Charles H. Moore may be prevailed upon to stand as the Democratic nominee for the place.

Kirkland and Moore are both Elizabethans. The latter made a great run against Sheriff B. F. Coriell, of this city, for the office, three years ago, and that accounts for the movement to have him run again.

J. Williams Crane, of Union, will be the candidate for State Senator. He is a resident of Union and is well known in every city, town and village in the county. Few have been mentioned in connection with the three Assembly nominations. It is said in some quarters that John P. Owens, of this city, may be named as one of the candidates for this office.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school Programme.

Interesting rally day exercises were held yesterday afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church, under the auspices of the Sunday-school. After the devotional services, there was a reading, "A Rally of the Sunday-school," by Miss May Kelly; vocal selection, "What Are You Doing," quartette; roll call, conducted by G. E. Hall; vocal selection, "When the Roll is Called up Yonder," quartette; address by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn; song, "Church Rallying," Juniors.

The quartette was composed of Mrs. James Larue, Miss Adelia Runyon, Charles VanWinkle and Theodore I. Runyon. Mr. Frazee accompanied the singing on the cornet. The roll call of the entire school was conducted by George E. Hall, assisted by Harry Cuming and Martin Stutsman. This was a novel feature of the programme and when completed and placed on the blackboard spelled the words, "Our School." Miss May Clark presided at the piano during the exercises. The Sunday-school room was attractively decorated with golden rod, dahlias, hydrangeas and ferns.

The rally day committee in charge comprised Miss Cora Brokaw, chairman; Miss Elmira Runyon, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Florence G. Hawkins and George E. Hall.

Vacancy in School Staff Filled.

The vacancy in the Somerset school teaching staff, made vacant by the resignation of Miss Pearl Williams, has been filled by the appointment of Miss Constance Bowen, of Medina, N. Y. She took charge of the class this morning. Miss Bowen is a graduate of the Geneseo, N. Y., State Normal School and has had successful experience in teaching at Glens Falls, N. Y., and Pasadena, Cal.

Fighting Pole Fined.

Henry Terraba, a Pole, was fined $5 in the city court this morning, for disorderly conduct. He kicked up a row at a Polish wedding last night.

MR. FIELD DIES SUDDENLY FROM HEART DISEASE

INSURANCE BROKER SUCCUMBS AFTER TWO DAYS ILLNESS.

Following an illness of but two days, Isaac N. Field, a well-known resident of the city, died at his home on Field avenue late yesterday afternoon. He came from New York Friday afternoon suffering from an affection of the heart and grew steadily worse until the end.

Mr. Field was born at Bound Brook seventy-five years ago and when a young man engaged in business in the West with his brothers and other relatives. He was a member of the firm of Field, Leiter & Co., which sold the government hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of blankets and supplies during the Civil War. It was afterward known as Field, Benedict & Co. He had resided in Plainfield for the past twenty years and with brothers did much to develope the property at the lower end of Central avenue. Of late years he has been engaged in the insurance business at 335 Broadway, New York. He is survived by a widow.

The funeral will be held from his late home Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 and the interment will be at Bound Brook.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED.

Girl Who Accuses Him of Jilting Her Makes Serious Charge.

Joseph Stanischif, an Austrian, whose home is in Phoenix, Pa., came to Plainfield Saturday to marry Miss Anna Dana. The wedding didn't take place because Officer Higgins arrested Joseph on complaint of Julia Agocheck, who accused him of breach of promise and more serious things.

According to Julia's story Stanischif won her confidence in far away Grosner, Austria, in 1899. He promised to right the wrong he had done her then, she says, but was drafted into the army before he could. He returned to her after his discharge and proposed that they go to America and marry there. They came over together last April. Stanischif put off the marriage, it is alleged, and went to Pennsylvania. That was the last the Agocheck girl heard of him, she says, until she learned that he was coming to the city Saturday to marry the other girl.

Stanischif was arraigned before Justice Mosher yesterday morning, and held for examination on Wednesday, under $500 bonds.

EMMONS' BUSY NIGHT.

Borough Marshal Bags Seven Prisoners for Misconduct.

Marshal Emmons, of the borough police force, put in a busy stretch between last evening and this morning, and as a result landed seven prisoners in the lockup. All have since been released on bail to appear before Recorder Doud tonight.

Leonard Young and William Conway were the first to fall into his dragnet. They adjourned into an alley on Somerset street to settle an argument and were making a good-sized racket when the bluecoat took a hand. Not long afterward Albert De Camp and Howard Sharp had an exchange of fisticuffs with Edward Griffin and James Brown and all four also went cellward. The last victim was Nicholas Kelley, a one-time Plainfield policeman, who was banished from the borough several months ago for disorderly conduct. He returned last night and cut a few pigeon wings at his home on Regent street to the annoyance of the neighbors. He got away at the time, but Emmons caught him early this morning.

"CONJUNCTION" PINCHED AGAIN

Caught with a Bag of Freshly Killed Chickens on Him.

Officer McKeon stopped "Conjunction" Jones on Lee place at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning to look into a bulging bag the colored wayfarer carried. It held ten freshly killed chickens, and the cop shipped "Conjunction" to the station house in the patrol wagon.

"Conjunction" swore earnestly that he bought the fowls of a man in New Market for $1 and a bottle of rum, but the police learned a little later that Lawrence Kerwin, a Rock avenue hotel keeper missed ten chickens. Kerwin says he is ready to identify the chickens as his, and "Conjunction" will be turned over to the Piscataway authorities. He was held for the Grand Jury for stealing chickens from New Market two months ago.

Boroughites Getting Tax Bills.

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, began sending out the present year's tax bills this morning. Last year's collections were better than any previous record, only three property owners having as yet failed to settle.

TOM HANNA WITHDRAWS

Says That His Opponent, J. W. Murray, Jr., Deserves Nomination for Collector

HARMONIOUS NOW

Only a Councilmanic Nomination Bothers the Big and Little Fry—The Situation.

All will be smooth sailing for John W. Murray, Jr., for the Republican nomination for collector of taxes, Thomas Hanna, his formidable opponent, has withdrawn from the race, leaving the course practically clear. William Townsend is still afloat, however, but it is generally believed that he will also haul down his sails in favor of the Third ward man.

Mr. Hanna announces the fact that he has dropped out of the race in the following letter:

Editor The Daily Press:

John W. Murray, Jr., having positively declared himself a candidate for city collector, I cheerfully withdraw in his favor, as I believe his long and valuable services to the Republican party entitle him to the nomination. Thanking my friends for their proferred support of my candidacy, I am,

Yours truly,
THOMAS HANNA.

Oct. 2, 1905.

This will leave everything in good shape for a harmonious convention, excepting on the councilmanic ticket. A strong effort is being made by men within the organization to tender George P. Mellick a nomination for councilman-at-large. He was to have been the Independents' choice for that honor, but the defeat of Councilman Theodore Wilson at the primaries spoiled that plan.

The Second ward has picked out Francis W. Montgomery for councilman-at-large, and so Mr. Mellick's nomination will have to come from another ward. Inside the organization, it is said, another ward delegation will place Mr. Mellick's name before the convention. No one denies that his services are invaluable to the Council and that he would add great weight to that body. The only objection to him arises from some petty politics in his own ward.

ALIENATION SUIT RESTS.

Counsel for Joseph Harkins Has 30 Days to File Declaration.

Although Saturday was fixed as the return date in the alienation suit instituted by Joseph B. Harkins against H. Francis Allen, no action was taken. The counsel for the plaintiff, Isaac P. Runyon, now has thirty days in which to file his declaration, setting forth his claims, and after that the counsel for the defendant, Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, will be given a certain length of time in which to file an answer.

Mr. Runyon will not at this time give details as to his proposed declaration, and although Mr. Marsh has not stated what his defense will be, it has been understood that the defendant will claim the suit to be one of blackmail. The amount sued for by Mr. Harkins is $25,000. Mr. Runyon has not said when he will file his declaration, but it must be within thirty days from last Saturday.

YOUNG BASKETBALL CRACKS.

Champion Whittier School Five In Shape for All Comers.

The championship basketball team of Whittier School, which won in the junior league last year, is ready for the new season. The players are unchanged, and the combination may be looked to for even a faster and more consistent game than gave them premier place in the league. The team is made up as follows: Loughlin, Woodhull, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Fountain, Manning, guards; Briggs, substitute.

Games may be arranged by managers of other fives by addressing Roy Woodhull, West Front street. The Whittiers are anxious to meet all comers in or near their class.

Mrs. Ann Hamilton Buried.

Mrs. Ann Hamilton, wife of William Hamilton, of Somerville, one of the oldest residents of that place, died at the old homestead, adjoining the Duke farm, on Wednesday, and the funeral and interment was on Saturday. Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane and Mrs. Thad Doane, Jr., of West Fifth street, attended the funeral services. The interment was in the new cemetery at Somerville.

Working on New Jail.

Work on the foundation and cellar for the new county jail at Somerville is progressing rapidly. The structure will be ready for occupancy by February 1, it is expected. There will be living apartments for the sheriff and other apartments facing on High street. The new structure will contain thirty-two steel trap cells.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A large number of borough and village rooters were at the Plainfield grounds Saturday afternoon to see the Dunellens take the championship from Clinton Avenue, and witness the game between the Plainfields and the Jersey City nine. They were naturally delighted with the way the amateur game, snappy and full of life, compared with the professional contest.

One of the features of the equipment at the loop lunch room is an antique pewter tea pot, which has been in Mr. Sanford's possession for many years. It is valuable as a curio, and forms an odd contrast to the glittering modern coffee urn.

Mrs. C. T. Rogers, who accompanied Mrs. W. J. Davis to her home in Ocean Park, Cal., two weeks ago to seek improved health, reports in letters to her family that she feels a decided change for the better already.

There was a very large attendance at the opening of the forty hours' devotion in St. John's R. C. church yesterday morning. The service tonight is expected to draw even a larger attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly are temporarily keeping house at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Doeringer, of North Plainfield, while the latter is on a visit out of town.

Miss Anna Burnett, of Basking Ridge, who has been the guest of Miss Lizzie Herlich, visited several friends in Plainfield last week.

Assessor Peters will turn over the tax list duplicate to Collector Day today. The taxpayers will probably have their bills by Thursday.

Arthur Vail has started his lunch room at Westfield Junction in full swing. It never closes, running twenty-four hours a day.

The frame of the new office building at the Aluminum Plate and Press plant is up. Work on the structure is being rushed.

Archibald Brakeley has returned to his studies at Princeton College, after a few days' vacation at home.

Miss Emma D. Hillyer has recovered from the effects of the recent injury to her foot.

Eugene Smalley's house has been much improved in appearance by a coat of paint.

Mrs. Jacob Grieb spent several days with friends in New York last week.

Miss Jane Churchill has returned from a visit to friends out of town.

William Tabb, of Port Reading, visited Foster Sofield yesterday.

Mrs. Bernard Siriski spent yesterday visiting friends in Raritan.

The Borough Council will meet tonight.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Charles and Battell Loomis have left for Ossining, N. Y., where they have entered Mt. Pleasant Military Academy for a course of study.

An interesting weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

Mrs. William Sharp has been entertaining friends from New York for a few days.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Lloyd Harris, who has been suffering from inflammatory rheumatism about three months, was lifted from bed and placed in a chair Saturday, having been unable to sit up for the past nine weeks. There seems to be slow but sure progress toward his recovery.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '20, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

METEOR OR THUNDERBOLT

Shatter Fragments Which May Have Been the Former, But There Is a Doubt.

There is not known or easily imaginable reason why a meteorite would not be as likely to fall while a fierce thunderstorm was in progress as at any other time, and the shattered fragments of the meteorite would be as likely to be found scattered around the foot of a flagpole that had been struck by lightning as in any other place. But, while both these likelihoods are indubitable, says the New York Times, the fact that certain fragments were found just after the storm and just at the foot of the stricken pole does cast a certain gloom over the theory that they are the remnants of a meteorite. For the chances are that if anybody had a few bits of carefully selected slag that for humorous or other reasons he wanted to pass off as bits of a wrecked and errant star, and if anybody had very little knowledge about the habits of such stars, he would "find" the bits at exactly the time and place mentioned. Therefore will we wait awhile before admitting as of meteoric origin the objects now on exhibition in the Borough Park club of Brooklyn. They may be black and brown, and they may have silver streaks resembling metal, and they may seem to have been subjected to great heat, but the thunderstorm and flagpole details give us pause. There is such a thing as making a good story too good; also such a thing as proving its truth too well. Remember, however, that we do not deny—we only doubt.

POSERS AT PUBLIC BATH.

Big Fellows Who Spend Most of Their Time Out of the Water.

"Talk about women promenading at the seashore," said the life saver at the public bath, "you should see some of these big fellows promenade around this pool, showing the common weaklings in the pool how insignificant they are.

"There's a fellow over there," pointing to a stalwart man in red "trunks," who stood at the end of the pool, his heels together and his arms folded, "who never stays in the water more than two minutes. He spends the other 28 minutes posing for the benefit of the real swimmers.

"There is a kid who is just the opposite. He is the kind we want here. He comes here to swim. He is always jolly, but never goes too far with his jokes. He obeys the rules and never acts smart.

"There is another kind of kid, he is from the street, who is always acting smart. He dives and comes up watching for the effect it had on the spectators. He throws water on the people standing on the —"

"Cut it out!" yelled the life saver, as some water splashed over him. "You keep that up and we'll put you out."

The Norwegian parliament consists of 114 members, many of whom sit in the house under protest. The men so selected are bound to serve, whether they like the honor or not. Immediately parliament meets one-fourth of the members are chosen to form the upper house, the remaining three-fourths constituting the lower house.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sample of Divine Goodness.

Froude told Dr. Boyd an interesting little anecdote of an Oxford undergraduate who was asked in an examination in Paley's "Evidences" if he could mention a solitary instance of the Divine goodness which he had discovered for himself. "Yes," he replied. "The conformation of the nose of the bulldog. Its nose is so retracted that it can hang on to the bull, and yet breathe freely. But for this it would soon have to let go."—T. DEEGAN IN GOOD FORM HOBOKEN TEAM WINS DEFEAT BRONX CEDARS BY SCORE OF 5 TO 1.

Inability to hit "Willie" Deegan, coupled with errors by Moorehead and Smith, caused the defeat of the Cedars, champions of The Bronx, at the St. George Cricket Grounds yesterday, the Hobokens winning by a score of 5 to 1. The Jerseymen played a brilliant game in the field and were particularly fast in running bases. Deegan allowed but four hits, while Hoboken touched Duquette for six. The score:

The Daabsters played good ball and deserve great credit for holding Jersey City down to three runs.

The Skeeters were exceptionally fast and played far better ball than on their first appearance here this season.

The Daabsters saw the biggest part of the first game and were greatly interested in the showing of the amateurs.

The remaining two Wednesday games with the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. will not be played. The patronage will not warrant it.

Mack, pitcher for the Skeeters, had perfect control of the ball, and he had the Daabsters at his mercy, holding them to four hits.

Captain Driscoll and his team were more than pleased with "Lou" Wiltse's work in the box and would like to work behind him again.

The double-header plan worked well and seemed to please the fans. Another season this plan would meet with approval and should be given a trial.

It was not "Lou" Wiltse's fault that the Skeeters won the game, and had the Daabsters been wide-awake in coaching, they might have been able to score.

Dunellen and Clinton Avenue played fast ball and the individual work of players was of the best. "Phil" Smith had the best of the honors in pitching.

It would have done Charlie Denman's heart good to see the exhibitions at the Oval on Saturday, also the fine crowd of Plainfield's best people.

Charlie Dixon is rapidly completing his plans for October 14, when his team will play the Daabsters. The tickets for the banquet are now out and can be had from members of the committee.

"Tune" Melick, the Mayor of Pluckemin, was much in evidence at the game and amused the crowd by his quaint and original sayings. He became familiar with everybody as soon as he reached the grounds and no one tried to suppress him.

"Lou" Wiltse pitched at Brighton Oval yesterday morning for the Brightons against the Philadelphia Giants. He lost the game by a score of 5 to 2, owing to poor support in the outfield. The Giants only got six hits off Wiltse.

The Skeeters were not entitled to the two runs in the first inning, and a little better coaching would have shut them out. There was a misunderstanding between Kiernan and Leonard as who should take a fly and neither one got it.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Jenkins, of Patchogue, L. I., are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clifton, of West Seventh street.

Mrs. S. P. Williams, of Hartford, who was called to Plainfield on account of the illness and death of her father, E. B. Clark, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Odiorne, who spent the summer at Lebanon, Hunterdon county, have decided to spend the winter in New York instead of Plainfield.

Plainfield, N. J., October 2, 1905.

To Congressman Ira W. Wood—Welcome home!

Believing that the appeal represents the sentiment of the great majority of citizens, we ask the Common Council to provide for the erection of a city flagpole to replace the one removed. The expense is little, but the significance is great.

Should Mr. Murray be elected tax collector, there will be a vacancy in the fire department, he having been first assistant chief for many years. It has been suggested that John Cose be appointed to fill the vacancy. The appointment would be a good one.

In all probability John W. Murray, Jr., will be the Republican candidate for city collector of taxes. Not only will the party discharge a long-standing obligation by making such a choice, but it will also present the name of a citizen in every way qualified to fill the office.

Farmers of Somerset county, according to report, are pledging themselves not to vote for any candidate owning an automobile. Their purpose is an apparent one, but the remedy they propose is altogether unreasonable. Because a man enjoys the luxury of automobiling, there is no excuse for his being placed in disfavor. It may be true that the farmers are much inconvenienced and annoyed by reckless autoists but the great body of men who enjoy this pastime should not be made to suffer for the offenses of the few who do not respect the rights of others.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY.

At the First Baptist Church Yesterday.

Simple rally-day exercises were held at the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Sunday school, the occasion being the change of the hour for holding the session from the morning to the afternoon. There were two recitations, one by Elmer French and the other by Lawrence French, and there were special songs by the primary and intermediate departments.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, made a short appropriate address, referring to the significance of the Sunday school work, and expressing his pleasure over the excellent results attained by the school and hoping for even greater things in the future.

In recognition of his faithful services as president of the Children of Israel Society of the Jewish Synagogue, a gold medal was presented last night to Kalmen Rottberg by the society. The presentation was made by Morris Abrams, and Mr. Rottberg accepted the handsome gift with a few well chosen words.

Where the Trail Led.

John Kane, of West Third street, reported the disappearance of six chickens to the police Saturday night. Officer Higgins sleuthed around and found a trail that led to the house of a colored man near the Kane place. When the cop went into the house mammy was in the act of casting two fowls into a pot. Kane was asked to swear out a complaint against the colored man, but refused.

MANY PLAYERS ON THE COUNTRY CLUB LINKS

THE USUAL WEEKLY DANCE HELD IN THE EVENING.

There was a large field of golfers at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday to enjoy the popular sport. The course is now in fine condition and playing is a real pleasure. The event of the day was the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, and a number of low scores were posted. E. B. Shoemaker is still holding a safe lead for this trophy with thirteen points, while C. B. Morgan is second with 9 5-6 points. H. D. Hibbard and Morris J. Dumont are tied for third place with 8 1-2 points each. Saturday's scores did not effect the position of the leaders any.

Howard Beebe and E. E. Iremonger, who each returned a net score of 77, divided first honors, 2 1-2 points a piece. Then followed three tie scores for the remaining honors, S. H. Patterson, S. D. Lounsbery and Roger F. Murray each returning a net score of 80, giving them 1-3 of a point each.

The leading scores posted for the Golf Committee cup were as follows:

Howard Beebe, 90, 13—77; E. E. Iremonger, 88, 11—77; Stuart H. Patterson, 97, 17—80; S. D. Lounsbery, 87, 7—80; Roger F. Murray, 85, 5—80. There were a number of other contestants, but they did not post their scores.

Another event of interest was a putting and approaching contest for women. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was the winner with a score of 24.

Saturday night there was the usual informal dance which was very enjoyable. The attendance a week ago was the largest of the season and on Saturday night is was almost as large. The music, furnished by an out-of-town orchestra, was a feature and it was a late hour when the festivities were concluded. These dances will be continued every week until further notice.

One of the season events was decided at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday, when George E. Cruse won the selected score cup for the best nine holes made during July, August and September. The selecting the best scores made on the various holes at different times, his best score was 27. During the coming week the finals for the Governor's cup will be played. On Saturday night there will be an "Auto Dance."

WANT SHRIEVALTY CANDIDATE.

Middlesex Democrats Searching for Some One with Money.

The Democrats of Middlesex county are striving hard to get a candidate for sheriff to run against Andrew S. Church, ex-Mayor of South River, and it is declared that a man with plenty of money for the campaign fund can easily land the nomination. Oliver Kelly, of Metuchen, a member of the County Board of Elections, is being boomed for the nomination, but it is said he is not anxious for it. Mr. Kelly is a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Joseph Field, of Piscataway, who sought the nomination three years ago, is also named for the place, and Edwin Furman, Surrogate of South Amboy, is another talked of candidate.

Two undertakers have also been presented for the office by their friends. William H. Quackenboss, of New Brunswick, a coroner and undertaker, can have the nomination if he wants it. The other undertaker is Thomas F. Burke, brother of Chief of Police Burke, of Perth Amboy, who has also served as a coroner. He has the support of many in Perth Amboy.

The county convention of the Democrats will be held in New Brunswick in Armory Hall next Wednesday, and the Democratic city convention in the evening of the same day. William Crowell and James M. Glenn, the latter a freeholder, seek places on the Freeholder Commission. William D. Voorhees and B. M. Gannon, of Perth Amboy, are also boomed for the Assembly. At the city convention Freeholder Arthur O'Neill will be named for recorder, and John Lawrence, former State commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, nominated for Mayor.

Alis III Eleven Defeated the N. P. H. S. Team by 10 to 5.

Alis III defeated North Plainfield High School eleven on Saturday afternoon by the score of 10 to 5. N. P. H. S. played a plucky game, but the four backs of the Alis team ran their end plays so well that they continually gained on their opponets. Ralph Taylor scored both touchdowns for the victors. N. P. H. S. scored on a fumble and regain near the Alis goal.

HOPE CHAPEL HOLDS RALLY DAY EXERCISES

EVENT MARKS OCCUPANCY OF NEW PRIMARY ROOM.

To fittingly welcome back Superintendent Henry C. Squires after a three months' vacation and to observe the opening and occupancy of its new primary class room, Hope chapel Sunday-school conducted rally day exercises yesterday. They were attended by 450 scholars and a large number of visitors from the Crescent Avenue church and other chapels.

The programme comprised addresses by Rev. L. R. Howard, Rev. John S. Zelie, H. R. Munger, John Leal, Leander N. Lovell and Superintendent Squires; songs by the school and the primary department, and solos by Charles L. Lewis and Elmer D. Cutting. Assistant Superintendent I. W. Travell was in charge and Judge William N. Runyon presided at the piano. In connection with the exercises, eight boys graduated from the primary class to the main school. They were Arthur Walls, John Muir, Harry DeHart, Harry Brandt, William Carl, William Marsh, George Leighs and Guy Snyder. Thirty-four scholars who had been present sixteen Sundays were presented with pretty buttons by G. Stuart Simons.

The new primary room was made necessary because of the increasing growth of the school and will accomodate 150 children. It was erected at a cost of $3,000, all of which was raised by the chapel members before the work was started.

Garbage Plant for Orange.

Plans are being discussed for the erection of a garbage disposal plant to be operated jointly by the cities of Orange and East Orange. The scheme is being promoted by Alderman Charles W. Romine, of Orange, and Health Officer William T. Bowman, of East Orange. The matter has been under consideration by both municipalities for many years, and the problem of disposing of the garbage and filth has become a serious one. It is possible that the Orange Common Council may take some definite steps in the matter at its meeting tonight.

Lecture Is Postponed.

Owing to the extended time of his Southern trip, Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of the Young People's Mission Movement, has been obliged to postpone here his lecture until Friday, October 20. As previously stated, his lecture, illustrated by stereopticon, will be given in the Crescent Avenue church. All Young Peoples' association, Epworth leagues and Christian Endeavor societies are cordially invited.

Inventory of School Furniture.

Members of the North Plainfield Board of Education are making an inventory of the furniture and other property in each room for the purpose of knowing the exact amount singly. The plan is being followed out so that in case of fire, the members will know just how much loss there is in each room. An inventory in the same way will be taken at the Watchung school.

East Orange Gazette Sold.

Edgar Williams, city clerk of East Orange, has bought The East Orange Gazette, the administration paper of that city. It will still be conducted as a Republican organ. Mr. Williams now owns three newspapers, The South Orange Bulletin, The Orange Journal, and The East Orange Gazette.

Congressman Ira W. Wood arrived home Saturday after a two months' tour of Europe that included visits to the principal places of interest on the Continent. Congressman Wood was one of the United States representatives appointed by President Roosevelt to the peace conference at Brussels.

Lecture on Martin Luther.

Edward Howard Griggs will give the second lecture in his course in Vincent chapel tomorrow night. His subject will be Martin Luther.

Our Statement to the Public to Correct Some Wrong Impressions.

The common use of the term "retiring sale" by many people, simply with a desire to stimulate business, has created in the minds of many the impression that all retiring sale advertising is of a "fake" nature Our employes are frequently asked by people who do not know this store's reputation for straight forward advertising, "Is this a genuine sale?" "Are you really going out of business?" To cover this matter permanently we herewith state:

First—That Hill & Shupp will positively retire from business in Plainfield as soon as their business matters can be adjusted. Mr. Shupp will go to Pennsylvania, his family already having located there. Mr. Hill resides in Wilmington permanently and has not at any time been active in this business.

The special prices advertised each week to close out these large stocks are legitimate and liberal reductions from regular retail prices. A store of this size has to contract for much of its merchandise months ahead, and while we could have cancelled the orders already placed for fall goods, when we decided in June to discontinue business, we have thought best to let it come in and give you the benefit of special prices on much of it. You will hardly find a stock in the entire store but what has on its counters a reasonable showing of early fall goods and with opportunities for profitable buying not often enjoyed. While we are cutting down the heavy parts of these stocks by special sales, special prices, etc., we shall keep you supplied with everyday necessities such as you run in hurriedly to buy, expecting the departments to have them.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Emburg Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A few drops of paraffin added to the blacking will aid materially in polishing damp shoes.

Fruit jars may be preserved from cracking, if, before filling, they are stood upon a folded towel soaked in hot water.

Plates and dishes put into an oven or left on the range to warm often crack. They should be diped into hot water instead when being heated for the table.

To clean an enameled bath tub take a heaped tablespoonful of kitchen salt, moisten it with turpentine and with it scour the bath; then rub with a clean cloth. Before beginning operations take care that the bath is perfectly dry.

Before immersing a lobster in the boiling water insert a sharp knife or stilletto at the joint separating the head from the body and run the point up into the brain. This causes the lobster to lose consciousness and prevents it from suffering in the boiling water.

Oil paintings may be easily cleaned by being rubbed with a cut raw potato. Rub gently with a circular movement, and sponge off the dirt with tepid water. Dry with a very soft cloth, or, better still, a silk handkerchief. This method is equally good for all oil paintings, but if executed on canvas care must be taken not to wet the back of the canvas. When the picture is perfectly dry it may have a thin coat of mastic varnish if desired.

A spoonful of kerosene in boiled starch keeps it from sticking, but do not use enough to make it smell of the oil.

Put afew grains of rice in the salt cellars to keep the salt from caking. As the cellar is shaken the rice will kep the salt moving.

Ivory knife handles which have become yellow from age and misuse may be whitened by being rubbed gently with fine sandpaper and then polished with a clean piece of chamois skin.

White satin shoes may be easily cleaned at home. Stuff out the shoe in shape and rub it gently with a soft cloth dipped in methylated spirit, repeating until clean. Dry with a clean soft cloth.

Hearthstones that should be white, but have been discolored with age, are greatly improved by the application of a thin paste, to which a tiny bit of washing blue has been added. Put it on with a paint brush. This does not crack off, as paint does.

Cocoa stains on table linen may be removed with oxalic acid when boiling water fails. Spread the stained part on a plate and pour on it a little hot acid. Rub gently with a soft brush. When the stain disappears rinse the article in plenty of cold water and then in ammonia water to neutralize the acid. A tablespoonful of ammonia to two quarts of water will be the right portion.

SEEN AT THE STORES

The prettiest kimonos of light blue or crimson cotton crepe are on sale in some of the local stores.

For the little girl who attends coking schol there are sets of white apron, cap and sleeves for a very small sum.

Striped silk blankets in blue, red and orange are very cheap. They are just right to throw over the couch when taking a nap.

A new shirtwaist of white silk poplin, made on the tailored style with an embroidered band down the front, seems to attract much attention.

Black patent leather bags are still very popular.

The small imported purses of white and gold beads are very much up-to-date.

An effective new silk is the persian broche, showing a wide stripe of flowered pattern alternating with a plain stripe ribbed with velvet. It comes in bronze, brown, garnet or blue and is extremely quaint and rich.

An attractive new veiling is of white Brussels net, scattered with misty pink roses. There is a border of black Chantilly, running up into the white in deep points.

Another new veiling is of black chiffon, sprinkled thickly with large white spots and having three rows of white Valenciennes run on to form a border.

Some of the new neck ruffs are very stiff and almost make some women look like Marie Antoinette. The ruffs are stiff and finely pleated. Only a pretty woman can wear them with taste.

Bechamel Sauce.

Put three tablespoonsful of butter in a saucepan; add three tablespoonsful of sifted flour, quarter of a teaspoonful of nutmeg, ten peppercorns, a teaspoonful of salt; beat all well together; then add to this three slices of onion, two slices of carrot, two sprigs of parsely, two of thyme, a bay leaf and half a dozen mushrooms cut up. Moisten the whole with a pint of stock or water and a cup of sweet cream. Set it on the stove and cook slowly for half an hour, watching closely that it does not burn; then strain through a sieve. Most excellent with roast veal, meats and fish.

Mrs. Harry Lovell, of Crescent avenue, is spending a short time with friends at Taunton, Mass.

Miss Viola Conklin, of First place, has became interested in settlement work and will spend the winter in New York.

AMUSEMENTS.

"David Harum" has been one of the productions locally booked whose coming has long been awaited by the lovers of clean, wholesome comedy. The play will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, and it is probable that there will be a crowded house. The play is divded into three acts, and the ascending curtain will show an exterior scene, the location being Homeville, N. Y. David Harum's bank is on one side of the road,

Lou Repley in "Marching Through Georgia."—Return Engagement Octo ber 7.

Aunt Polly's on the other, and in the background is shown the big barn that shelters Harum's horses. All of the characters come on quickly and Harum makes his first appearance as he drives into the barn behind that pesky critter, the bay horse. There are three sides of Harum's character shown. The company which supports William H. Turner, who plays "David," is said to be an admirable one.

Among the notable engagements of the season at the New Plainfield theatre is "The Christian," which will be given Friday night. The liberality of the management, Liebler & Company, in both cast and settings, is familiar to those who saw this great play of Hall Caine's in the former presentation. Several of the old favorites will be seen again, and new scenery and accessories will be brought, giving assurance of the same excellence throughout as heretofore.

Theatregoers are to be congratulated, for on Thursday night Messrs. Parker & Neff will present the latest New York craze, "A Windy City," at the New Plainfield theatre. "A Windy City" has been pronounced by both press and public to be by far the best musical farce comedy the metropolis has yet been privileged to witness. The production in its entirety, together with the New York cast and all accessories, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre. The piece is from the pen of that popular author, Harry Parker, whose work is well known to all. The name of Parker is associated with what has proven without a shadow of doubt to be the greatest success known in theatricals during the past decade, for it was Harriet Blair Parker who wrote "Way Down East." In "A Windy City" Mr. Parker has succeeded in writing a farce ful' of funny situations and witty lines, yet giving abundant opportunity for the introduction for a score of pretty musical numbers while telling a story with a consistent plot, the thread of which is readily followed by the audience. The New York cast which will present the piece here is headed by Ben Neff, who has a part which fits him admirably. Mr. Neff is best remembered by the hit of the varieties and which has been secured at a large expense by by the management for "A Windy City." The scenry, costumes and light effects are all that can be desired, and it may be positively stated that many of the catchy songs of the farce will be whistled in Plainfield for many a day to come.

COLORED VOTERS INTERESTED.

Want a Sheriff Who Will Call Them for Jury Duty.

That the colored voters of the county are greatly interested in the coming county Republican convention that is to be held in Jacobs Theatre, Elizabeth, Thursday, was shown at the meeting of the Colored Republican County Committee, held in Thomas' undertaking establishment on Union street, Elizabeth, Friday evening. The interest is centred on the nomination for sheriff. The colored voters feel that they have not been treated fairly in jury service.

They were led to believe so, it is said, by their leaders, that at the election of sheriff in this county that colored men would be called to serve on juries. As none have been called during the term of the present incumbent, they feel that their rights are overlooked.

At the meeting Chairman C. R. H. Hawkins spoke on this subject and said that at the next meeting of the committee, which will be held on Friday night following the convention, a committee would be appointed to wait upon the nominee for sheriff, that they might receive some assurance that colored men would be recognized so far as jury duty is concerned.

The other business transacted by the committee was the filling of vacancies in Cranford and in several wards of Elizabeth and the election of C. H. Scott, of Cranford, as vice chairman.

The committee adjourned to meet in the Republican headquarters in the Dix building next Friday night.

Edwin Schomp Celebrates.

Edwin Schomp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schomp, of Oxford place, celebrated the sixth anniversary of his birthday on Saturday, and in the afternoon he entertained twenty-seven of his young friends. The time was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served. The young celebrant received a great many useful presents.

Funeral of Mrs. Farley.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, funeral services over the body of Mrs. Charles H. Farley were held from St. Joseph's church this morning. The mass was conducted by Rev. Father Miller and interment followed at St. Mary's cemetery.

Delegates Hold a Caucus.

The Second ward delegates to the Republican city convention held a caucus Saturday night and decided to oppose the efforts made in other wards to have former Councilman George P. Mellick nominated for councilman-at-large.

Soldiers' Monument Sure.

Elizabeth is to have a soldiers monument. That was definitely settled Thursday night at the meeting of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Association. The date for unveiling was set, Memorial Day, 1906, being selected.

A Generous Jury.

The panel of petit jurors for the September term of court at New Brunswick is the most generous jury sworn in some time. Already in four different suits $26,200 has been awarded to plaintiffs.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hiscox, of West Fifth street, have leased the apartments in the Jackson building vacated today by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider and will take possession tomorrow.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

At the communion service in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning five new members were received by letter and one on confession.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will resume its meetings Wednesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock in the lecture room of the church.

Fred Lounsbery, Jr., of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church, who attended the recent National Endeavor convention at Baltimore, has arranged to present a report of the big convention at the church on Sunday night, October 16. The service will be an echo meeting of the Baltimore convention.

An interesting talk on Bible study was given by W. D. Murray at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. Mr. Murray, who is an expert on Bible teaching, gave an example of the lessons used by exponents of advanced methods, using the Book Haggai as a subject. The Crescent Avenue church choir sang at the meeting, and E. H. Guest played the cornet. W. C. Leek led the singing and G. M. Rittenhouse presided.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The annual election of the class of 1907, at the Plainfield High School this morning, resulted as follows: Weston Gavett, president; Edgar Freeman, vice president; Miss Jessica Hill, secretary and treasurer.

Elections for the year in the class of 1909, at the Plainfield High School, has resulted as follows: Guion Fountain, president; Fred Martin, vice president, and Charles Loizeaux, secretary and treasurer.

PERSONAL.

Miss Charlotte Reed, of New Brunswick, is visiting Miss Day, of East Fourth street.

Mrs. Anna Gunagan, of North avenue, has again resumed her position at Woodhull &Martin's store.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of the Jackson building, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, of the New Madison, are moving today to the Schloss apartments on East Front street.

SUE UNION MEN.

Printing Company Asks $100,000 for Injury to Business.

The Jersey City Printing Company has begun suit for $100,000 damages against Kenneth Forbes, Forrest A. Rice, Allan Ball and Typographical Union No. 94, the three defendants mentioned by name being officers of the union. The summons, which was served on the defendants on Saturday, is returnable at Trenton before Justice Gummere on October 10.

The men employed by the company struck some time ago for an eight-hour day, their demand for that concession being refused. The company alleges that the union, and the defendants named, interfered with its business, and enticed away a number of compositors, who had been employed in the place of the strikers. The defendants deny the allegations, and say they have no fears as to the outcome of the suit.

Robert Hamilton's Funeral.

At the home of his son, W. F. Hamilton, of Verdon street, funeral services were held yesterday over the body of Robert Hamilton. Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, had charge. The body was sent to New York this morning for interment at Kensico cemetery.

Funeral of Judge's Wife.

The funeral of Mrs. Louis R. Schenck took place this afternoon at her home at Neshanic Station. Rev. John Hart officiated.

COMMON COUNCIL IGNORES MAYOR'S APPOINTMENTS

Communication Relative to New Police Commission is Laid on the Table.

ALL FILE BIG BONDS

Commissioners Are Each Under $10,000 Bonds—Terms of the Several Members of the Board.

Despite the fact that the Common Council, at the regular meeting last night, ignored Mayor Buckle's communication relative to the appointment of police commissioners, the new officials have assumed command, superceding the councilmanic police board. The old board now has no authority in the government of the police department, all matters coming under the supervision of the police commissioners.

Chairman Amos Andrews.

Mayor Buckle's communication was received, read and laid on the table, where it remained. Its friends tried to arrange in executive session to have it receive the approval of the Common Council, but this was seen to be useless, and no attempt was made to take it from the table.

Mayor Buckle informed the Common Council of the appointment of the police commissioners, setting forth the terms of office as follows: Andrew McCardell, four years; De Witt C. Ivins, three years; H. W. Marshall, two years, and Amos Andrews, one year. He stated that the commissioners took office from the day of their appointment and their several terms would expire January 1 succeeding the expiration of the years or year for which they were appointed.

CITY FLAG POLE TO WAVE; COUNCIL SO ORDERS

APPROPRIATION IS MADE FOR REPAIR OF TALL FLAG POLE.

It was decided at the October meeting of the Common Council last night to retain a city flag pole and in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Tolles and adopted, the sum of $100, in addition to that appropriated for painting, was voted to equip and re-set the present flag pole on Front street at the head of Park avenue.

It will be remembered that the base of the city flag pole was found to be rotten and for a distance of at least six feet from the sidewalk. Chief T. O. Doane condemned the pole and preparations were made for its removal. Later it was found that the upper half of the pole was all right and after a conference it was thought wise to saw the pole off at the point of decay and re-set it, replacing the upper half.

MISS ELIZABETH SMALLEY THE BRIDE OF H. G. DUNBAR

ONLY IMMEDIATE RELATIVES WITNESS THE CEREMONY

In the presence of only immediate relatives, Miss Elizabeth M. Smalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Smalley, Sr., of Craig place, and sister of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, was married last evening to Henry G. Dunbar, also of the borough. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents at 7:45, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, officiating. There were no attendants and the affair was very quiet in every way.

Miss Smalley was attired in a gown of silk chiffon, trimmed with lace. Her bouquet was of white roses. The floral decorations throughout the house were very pretty, palms, plants and cut flowers being in every room. The bride and groom stood before a large bank of flowers in the parlor.

Following the wedding, a reception was held and Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar were showered with congratulations. A supper was served and late in the evening they left for Lake Waccamaw, N. C., where they will spend two weeks at the home of the bride's brother, Albert I. Smalley. On returning they will make their home on Craig place.

The groom is a member of the New York office staff of the Ontario and Western Railroad and is widely known in the city and borough. The large array of handsome presents received by both, included a chest of silver from his business associates and a great variety of bric-a-brac, silverware and cut glass. Mrs. Dunbar has been a resident of the borough all her life and she enjoys a wide acquaintance.

LOOKING FOR HIS UNCLE.

Yarn Told by a Small Runaway Leads to His Capture.

Justice Cooper, of Warrenville, telephoned the police here on September 30 that an Italian boy, twelve years old, had run away from that place and was supposed to have come here. At 1 o'clock this morning a ragged small boy approached a man on Park avenue and said he was trying to find his uncle's house. The boy said his name was John White and his uncle's name James White. The man knew James White, of New street, and brought the boy to him.

White didn't know the boy and brought him to police headquarters. This morning Chief Kiely wrung a confession that he was the Italian runaway from the lad.

He said his name was Robert Louis and that his father kept a bootblack stand at George and Albany streets. He ran away from New Brunswick to Warrenville and left the latter place to escape from his mother, who followed him. He told the story about his search for an uncle to awaken sympathy. The police think he is an accomplished little liar.

GOFF RAID IN COUNCIL

Letters Between Mayor and Police Chief Not Official Communication.

THEY ARE RETURNED

Councilman Bullock Declares That Consideration of the Papers Is Out of Order.

There was a lively skirmish at the October meeting of the Common Council last night when City Clerk MacMurray presented the letters of Mayor Buckle and Chief of Police Kiely relative to the raid made at John J. Goff's saloon by Councilmen W. S. Tyler and W. S. Bullock. These letters were published in The Daily Press recently and were to have been read at an adjourned meeting of the Common Council called for Tuesday night, September 5, but was not held owing to a lack of a quorum.

Mayor Buckle's letter called for an explanation from Chief Kiely as to why he had not taken steps to stop the alleged selling of liquor at Mr. Goff's saloon, and Mr. Kiely's reply set forth that he had been collecting evidence for some time and hoped to have the matter ready for the next Grand Jury.

As soon as the letters were read, Mr. Bullock moved that they be spread in full on the minutes. President Daniel took exception on the ground that there was a question as to whom the letters were addressed and as to their being official documents.

Clerk MacMurray explained that Mayor Buckle had requested that the letters be read at the Common Council meeting, whereupon Mr. Tolles moved that the letters be placed on file.

Mr. Bullock questioned the right to do this. He said that if the letters were not official they had no right before the Common Council and the matter was clearly out of order. Mr. MacMurray stated further that Chief Kiely's letter was the property of the Mayor.

After considerable argument pro and con in an effort to ascertain the status of the letters, President Daniel finally ruled that they were not official papers and were not even drafted as communications, and they were simply returned to Clerk MacMurray, he to return them to Mayor Buckle.

400 MAKE PETITION FOR NEW SCHOOL

WANT ANOTHER SCHOOL HOUSE IN FOURTH WARD.

The petition of Jacob Kriney and four hundred other citizens of the Fourth ward asking that a public school building be erected on West Front street near Clinton avenue, and which was presented to the Common Council at a recent meeting and referred to the committee on public affairs, was reported on at the regular meeting of the Common Council, last night by Mr. Higham, chairman of the committee. He moved that the petition be referred back to the Board of Education to which body it should have been presented originally, and that City Clerk J. T. MacMurray inform Jacob Kriney, who originated the petition, concerning the action.

It will be remembered that the petitioners asked for an additional public school building in the Fourth ward, claiming that inasmuch as the population of that ward is about 7,000 and that there is only one public school building in it, the present overcrowded condition of the Irving School demands additional school facilities. At present there are many children that are compelled to walk a long distance to the Irving School, and the petitioners urge relief from these conditions.

Attending Presbytery.

The semi-annual meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth is being held at Califon, Hunterdon county, commencing today, and among those attending from this city are the following: Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and F. H. Andrews, from the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church; Rev. C. E. Herring and Elder W. H. Shotwell, from the First Presbyterian church; Rev. L. R. Howard, from Hope chapel; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, from Warren chapel, and Rev. F. D. Tildon, from Bethel chapel.

Attending Homeopaths' Convention.

Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, left this morning for Atlantic City, where Dr. Davis will attend the semi-annual meeting of the State Homeopathic Society, to be held at the Hotel Chalfonte.

COUNCIL'S ROUTINE WORK

Frank M. Dunham Appointed Assistant to Tax Collector Lee.

REPORTS FOR SEPT.

More Lights Wanted — Colored Church Asks That Taxes Be Remitted—Another Meeting Monday Night.

Acting upon the recommendation of the Board of Assessors, the Common Council at its regular meeting, last night, made Frank M. Dunham the assistant in the office of Collector Robert L. Lee, to succeed the late David Pope. Mr. Dunham was temporarily appointed to the position, and it was decided last night to retain him in that position. Inasmuch as no law or city ordinance could be found giving the Common Council the right to appoint Mr. Dunham for a year or even the unexpired term of Mr. Pope, he will be engaged from month to month at the same salary paid to Mr. Pope, which was $60 a month.

Many routine matters were presented at the meeting and quickly disposed of. Charles H. Lyman made application for an auctioneer's license, and this, together with applications for hack, express and peddlers' licenses were granted on motion of Mr. Gloak, after the fees are paid.

F. E. Kinsman and others petitioned to have Sherman avenue, between Grant and Clinton avenues, macadamized; R. M. Stelle and others petitioned to have Madison avenue, between Stelle avenue and Randolph road, accepted; Mulford Cole and others petitioned for a light on Leland avenue; several residents in the vicinity of Clinton and Mariners avenues asked to have those streets properly graded so that in heavy rains the water would run off and not flood that section; D. S. Alpaugh, of Sixth and Sycamore streets, again urged that Sycamore street be improved so that it would not be a mud hole during the coming season; the Plainfield Water Supply Company informed the Common Council that one two-way hydrant had been located on Central street, and one four-way hydrant had been located at Union street and Arlington avenue, as ordered, and the Plainfield Trust Company, owners of property in the vicinity of Berkeley avenue and Denmark road, asked that an electric light be placed there. All of these matters were referred to the proper committees.

City Judge William N. Runyon presented his regular report for the past term. There were 150 cases before him, of which number thirty were fined, sentence suspended on ninety-eight, fifteen were sent to jail and eight discharged. $164 was collected in fines, of which amount Chief of Police Kiely received $33.15 for expenses, etc. The total disbursements were $39.65 and the balance was turned over to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of eighteen permits during the past month. At this time the members took a ten minute recess, which lasted from 10:20 to 11:15, when business was resumed.

Mr. Tolles reported back the petition of H. G. Atwater asking for an apportionment of taxes on a certain property, and said that Corporation Counsel Marsh recommended that Mr. Atwater and the other parties concerned effect an adjustment to suit themselves. The amount in question was $7.56. Collector R. L. Lee at this time stated that the matter had been settled, and the report was filed.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Tolles and adopted, $7,000 was borrowed for sewer improvements, and the same was secured by notes. Another resolution by the same member transferred $2,000 from the general fund to the fire fund and $500 from the general fund to the poor fund.

On motions by Mr. Murphy, chairman of the light and trees committee, the petition from William Jeffery for a light on East Second street, between Richmond and Berckman streets, and a petition from J. J. Finley for two lights on East Third street, one between Washington and Richmond streets, and the other between Richmond and Berckman streets, were granted.

It was 11:50 o'clock when the business of the evening was concluded, and on Mr. Tolles' motion, an adjournment was taken to Monday night, October 9, when matters relative to storm and sanitary sewers will be taken up.

After Councilman Tolles reported back the petition of the Calvary Baptist church for a remission of taxes, together with the advice of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh that the matter is not subject to review by the Common Council, after being

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP VOTE AT GENERAL ELECTION

Taxpayers to Decide Whether Proposition Shall be Investigated by Common Council

FOR THE WATER WORKS

Favorable Decision at the Polls in November Means Only That Competent Engineers Will Report As to Desirability of Scheme.

The taxpayers of Plainfield are to be given an opportunity at the regular election on Tuesday, November 7, to decide whether they desire to have the feasibility and desirability of a municipal water works investigated. The resolution providing for a special election to be held for this purpose was rescinded at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, on a motion offered by Mr. Higham, chairman of the committee on public affairs, and another resolution, offered by the same member and providing that a vote on this question be taken at the regular election in November was adopted unanimously.

After the original resolution on this question was adopted calling for a special election, it was discovered that provision had not been made for a sufficient length of time to advertise the special election, as stated exclusively in The Daily Press. Plans were at once made to rescind the resolution and secure the adoption of another whereby the question could be voted upon at the regular election and this was done last night.

According to the resolution the words "for" or "against" the proposition giving the city the right to acquire its own water plant, will be printed on the regular ballot and the result will determine the desire of the city in this respect. The vote is to be taken at the regular polling places during the specified hours for voting and the result is to be recorded in the usual way. If the vote should favor a municipal water works it will not bind the city to any one method of acquiring such a plant, but merely sanction an investigation as to the advisability of such procedure. After the report of the investigation is made the Common Council will have the right to proceed under the law looking toward the acquisition of municipal water works either by the establishment of a plant of its own, or the present plant by purchase or through condemnation proceedings, if the price for the present plant is considered too much, or to secure in any other way as is deemed wise and best municipal water works, but only after another favorable vote is taken.

TWO NEW GOVERNORS ON HOSPITAL BOARD

PAUL TAYLOR BROWN AND HENRY L. HALL CHOSEN TO FILL VANCANCIES.

Paul Taylor Brown, of Belvidere avenue, and Henry L. Hall, of Woodland avenue, were elected to fill vacancies in the board at the October meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held at the Casino last night. One vacancy filled was that caused by the death of Captain James Franklin Hubbard, and the other vacancy was left over from the last annual meeting. Mr. Brown and Mr. Hall were elected for a term of three years each.

The report of the medical staff showed patients remaining in the hospital at date of last report to be thirty; admitted, forty-eight; discharged cured, thirty-five; improved, eleven; not improved, four; died, one; remaining, twenty-seven. Total number of patients treated, seventy-eight; operations, thirty-nine; hospital days, 945. The other business was of a routine nature.

PLAINFIELD BOYS TO BE WELCOMED BY CADETS

Y. M. C. A. JUNIORS WILL RECEIVE UNUSUAL ATTENTION AT WEST POINT.

Special courtesies will be accorded the Y. M. C. A. boys when they visit the National Military Academy at West Point October 14. They will be treated as guests of honor and be entertained during their stay by officers and cadets.

A cadet detail will meet them at the station and escort them to the academy. They will have lunch with the cadets in the regular mess room, an experience that is not likely to be forgotten by the boys as long as they live.

On the afternoon of the 14th the cadet eleven will play the Virginia Polytechnic team, and passes to the game will be furnished all the Plainfield boys. After the game they will remain to see the impressive ceremony that attends the lowering of the colors.

The flattering attentions to be paid to the Plainfield party will come through the regard in which F. H. Andrews, of this city, who is one of the most prominent Y. M. C. A. men in the country, is held at the academy. Mr. Andrews frequently speaks at religious meetings at West Point, and is popular with the officers and cadets. He spoke there last Sunday.

MRS. SEBRING BURIED.

Two Ministers Take Part in the Obsequies.

The funeral services of Mrs. Catherine Brokaw Sebring, widow of the late William H. Sebring, were held from the "Homestead," Greenbrook, yesterday afternoon. Among those present at the obsequies were Charles A. Reed, Mayor N. B. Smalley, of North Plainfield; Mrs. Jenkins, widow of the late Mayor Jenkins, of New Brunswick; Mr. Manning, of Trenton, and four generations of her immediate family.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the departed was a member for many years, and at the conclusion a few remarks were made by Rev. J. B. Cleaver, an intimate neighbor. He referred to the noble and helpful qualities of the departed and added that it was said that this inscription should be placed on her tombstone: "Here lies one who went about doing good."

The interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery, Bound Brook, where Dr. hambliss again officiated.

It was at the Sebring "Homestead" that Mrs. Sebring came as a bride sixty-five years ago, and where her five children, three of whom are now living, were born.

Mayor Withholds Sentence.

Action in Nicholas Kelly's case, arrested for disturbing the neighborhood about his home on Regent street, was withheld when he was arraigned in the borough court last night. Mayor Smalley, who is familiar with the facts, was on the bench, and after hearing the evidence decided to hold sentence off until tomorrow night. Kelly was banished from the borough several months ago under threat of a sojourn at Somerville, but had been making pilgrimages over the line.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Malin, of North avenue, daughter of P. B. Goodfellow, of Netherwood avenue, is slowly recovering from a recent operation performed at Muhlenberg Hospital.

LIVERYMAN HAS TWO MEN ARRESTED BY S. P. C. A

WM. CLARKSON AND JOHN STEVENS CHARGED WITH ABUSING HORSE.

William Clarkson and John Stevens were arrested this morning by Deputy Sheriff Weaver under a warrant sworn out by William Pangborn, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The action was instituted upon complaint made by a livery stable keeper, of whom Clarkson and Steven are said to have hired a rig Saturday afternoon.

The complainant charges that they drove the horse, off and on, without food or shelter, from the time they hired it until Sunday night at 11 o'clock. They are said to have spent the time drinking and carousing, driving the horse brutally and giving it no attention whatever except to work it. It is claimed that the horse was barely able to stand when returned to the stable, and had cruel cuts and welts all about its legs. The wagon is said to have come back pretty nearly wrecked.

They were arraigned before Justice Hand this morning and released under their own recognizance to appear for a hearing on Thursday. Clarkson is an employe of Smith Bros., a Front street grocery firm, and Stevens works for George Cole, an undertaker and liveryman. Lawyer Fred J. Huff represents the S. P. C. A. and William G. DeMeza the defendants.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Unusual interest will attach to the weekly prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church tomorrow night. The pastor will call the roll of membership, and all those who respond to their names will be required to give brief testimony, repeat a verse of scripture or a hymn. Rev. Mr. Casselberry, the pastor, has announced his determination to carry on a year-'round revival, and the testimony meeting in connection with the mid-week gathering is only one feature of his campaign to keep the spirit of religion alive in his flock. Hereafter a twenty-minute after-meeting for spiritual uplifting will be a regular feature of the Sunday night services. Other plans and methods for keeping the Christianity of the church militant are being considered by Mr. Casselberry. He is one of the most energetic pastors in the Elizabeth Presbytery, and a lively growth has always characterized his advent in a charge. Mr. Casselberry, although installed in Dunellen scarcely a year, has already made himself felt as a decided factor on the religious and civic life of the community. He opened a campaign on the saloon evil soon after his installation here, has put himself emphatically on record as against dancing and other social pleasures of that sort, and is now engaged in forming a non-sectarian class for the manual training of young people. Mr. Casselberry is a strict observer of the Sabbath, according to the old-fashioned Calvinistic and Puritan interpretation of the commandment respecting the seventh day. He will not, for instance, ride on a trolley or other conveyance on Sunday. As is usual in cases where the pastor insists on a high and unyielding ideal in religion and religious observance, some of the younger members of Mr. Casselberry's flock complain that he is too strict, but the older people have a lively sense of admiration and respect for their pastor and are earnestly supporting him.

Charles Wyhuskey still suffers to a certain extent from the effects of the great shock attendant on his injuries in the terrible bridge accident in Newark last winter. He spent yesterday visiting friends out of town.

The C. E. Society of the Baptist church held a sociable at the home of Foster Sofield last night. It was well attended, and much enjoyed.

A goodly number of young people have been improving the warm nights with boat rides on the pond.

R. E. Tuohy, of Basking Ridge, has been the guest of Miss Lizzie Herlich for several days.

Charles Ross has rented the Giles house on Front street, recently vacated by C. S. Voorhees.

Mrs. Pauline Ruhl is considering plans for the erection of a house on South avenue.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley has recovered from a severe attack of his old ailment, asthma.

A. G. Bishop, Jr., has added a large number of fancy fowls to his hennery.

The Board of Education will meet tonight in regular monthly session.

Mrs. William Fitz Randolph continues to improve steadily.

Mrs. George Voorhees is recovering from her illness.

D. C. Tabb's house has been repainted.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

There is quite a prevailing opinion that the electric light pole on the corner of Front street and Maple avenue, in this village, stands about three feet outward into the highway. Care must be taken by all vehicles in turning the corner lest they strike the pole.

At the monthly consecration meeting of the Baptist Christian Endeavor Society Sunday evening there was a general response to the roll call. Scripture messages were sent to the meeting by absent members, several of whom have lately removed to Plainfield.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church will hold its monthly business meeting at the close of the prayer meeting tonight.

At the prayer and conference meeting tonight the pastor will continue his address on the Acts of the Apostles.

Miss Elizabeth H. Smith has returned from a visit with Mrs. Charles Brown, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Borough Association will hold a meeting tonight in Temperance Hall.

SILVER TROPHY IN A BIBLE STUDY CONTEST

CUP OFFERED TO Y. M. C. A. BOYS IN COURSE ON ST. PAUL.

Athletics will not be the only thing to win silver cups for the boys of the Y. M. C. A. this year. For the boy who is most efficient in a Bible study course one of the handsomest cups offered by the association is waiting.

The offer of the Bible study trophy was decided on at the last meeting of the boys' cabinet. The life of St. Paul is to be the subject of the study course. Secretary Kenneth Robbie will teach the older boys and they will teach different groups among the younger ones. At the end of the course a stiff examination will be held, and the boy who passes with the highest mark will receive the trophy.

The cup is a polished silver one, ten inches high, on an ebony base. It will be suitably engraved.

BLUECOATS PLAY BALL.

Jersey City and New York Nines Meet Across the Hudson.

The Jersey City and New York police baseball teams had a tilt yesterday afternoon at West Side Park, in Jersey City. The score showed that eighteen New York men crossed the plate, while Jersey City was able to land only three. It was a friendly contest and from start to finish there was no "jawing."

The New Yorkers had a lot of "rooters" behind 'em. These used calliope whistles whenever the Gothamites made a brilliant play or the Jersey City guardians of the peace made a bad play. The New York department's big band gave a splendid concert on the grandstand.

Among the interested spectators were former Mayor Egbert Seymour, Hudson county's Democratic candidate for sheriff, and A. M. Henry, Jersey City's Democratic candidate for Mayor.

After the game the players of both teams, with a large number of invited friends, went to Armbruster's Schuetzen Park, about a mile away, where a splendid supper was served.

In the game Donohue and Hargraves, of the New York team, put the ball over the fence for home runs.

IT IS FOR LADIES, TOO.

They Can Stop Their Hair Falling Out With Herpicide.

Ladies who have thin hair and whose hair is falling out, can prevent the hair falling out, and thicken the growth, with Newbro's "Herpicide." Besides, Herpicide is one of the most agreeable hair dressings there is. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ that eats the hair off at the root. After the germ is destroyed, the root will shoot up, and the hair grow long as ever. Even a sample will convince any lady that Newbro's Herpicide is an indispensable toilet requisite. It contains no oil or grease, it will not stain or dye. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

BAPTISTS WILL MEET IN STATE CONVENTION

DENOMINATION'S N. J. ANNIVERSARY TO TAKE PLACE AT ELIZABETH.

New Jersey Baptist clergymen and laymen will gather in Elizabeth the latter part of the month for the State anniversaries, which will begin October 23 and last for three days. All of the sessions will take place in the Central church, and the Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, the pastor, and a committee composed of members of the congregation are making preparations for the entertainment of the visitors.

Officers will be elected by each organization, and there will be few, if any, changes made in the personnel of the present staff. Edward J. Brockett, of East Orange, is rounding out his ninth year as president of the New Jersey Baptist convention and it is expected that he will be re-elected for the tenth time.

The first of the sessions will be the eighth anniversary of the Baptist pastors' conference of New Jersey, which will open at 2:30 Monday afternoon, October 23. The Rev. Dr. John W. Lyell, of Camden, the president, will be in charge. He has only recently received the title of doctor of divinity from Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa. Most of the session will be taken up with the reading of three papers on theological subjects.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Baptist Young People's Union will be observed Monday night. This is the mid-year meeting, as the Baptist young people have a rally each June. The Rev. William W. Barker, of Phillipsburg, the president, will be in the chair. The Rev. Mr. Barker formerly lived in Elizabeth and for a short time was acting secretary of the Y. M. C. A. There will be an address by a prominent speaker, the name to be announced later.

All of Tuesday will be given up to the seventy-sixth anniversary of the missionary convention. Mr. Brockett will preside and the address of welcome will be delivered by Dr. Tomlinson, and Mr. Brockett will respond. There will be many reports read.

The Rev. T. M. Eastwood, of Burlington, will make an address on "Denominational Interests." The obituary report will be read by the Rev. Albert Foster, pastor of the Roseville Baptist church, Newark, who is chairman of the obituary committee. There have been several deaths among the Jersey Baptist clergy, notably that of the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, a retired minister, who for forty years was pastor of the First Baptist church, this city.

An address on "Christian Stewardship" will be given by the Rev. Johnson L. Miner, of Flemington. The devotional exercises will be led by the Rev. Frank S. Kenyon, of Paterson. The Rev. Frank A. Smith, of Haddonfield, will speak on "Mission Fields at Our Doors."

Most of the afternoon session will be taken up with the reading of the annual report of the Rev. Delevan De Wolf, of Newark, who for fifteen years has been corresponding secretary and superintendent of missions. This will be followed by a discussion of the report by appointed and voluntary speakers. Among the appointed speakers are: The Rev. A. B. Sears, of New Brunswick; the Rev. Judson Conklin, of Elizabeth, and the Rev. George S. Wendell, of Woodbury.

The address of the evening will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, pastor of the North Orange Baptist church, who will take for his subject "Eagle Rock." It will be a survey of the home field. The Baptist are supporting churches or missions in different parts of the State for Italians, Swedes, Hungarians, Hollanders, Germans, French, Hebrews and negroes.

Wednesday morning and afternoon will be held the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Educational Society. The Rev. O. P. Eaches, of Hightstown, the president, will be in the chair. Among those who will make addresses in the morning are the Rev. H. E. Fosdick, of the First Baptist church, Montclair; the Rev. M. Farrier, of Passaic, and the Rev. James M. Stifler, of Roselle. It is expected that the chief address of the afternoon will be delivered by President Faunce, of Brown University, Providence, R. I.

Wednesday night the closing meeting will be in the form of a banquet to mark the eighth anniversary of the Baptist Social Union. Arrangements for the dinner and toasts are being made by the officers of the union, of which George E. Dimock, of Elizabeth, is president.

Westfield expects to close the season with one more game, to be played probably on Saturday.

Holyoke, champions of the Connecticut State League, will meet the Daabsters on the Oval Saturday, and a good game is assured.

It must be admitted that the Daabsters are not hitting as hard as earlier in the season. The timely hits seem to be wanting.

Plans for the banquet to the Daabsters are going along in fine shape. There will be a feast of good things to eat as well as some fine addresses.

Many local fans are planning to see at least one of the post-season contests between the Giants and the winners of the American League pennant.

The Jersey City team defeated the St. Michaels on Sunday by a score of 3 to 2. They secured only five hits off McKenna, while Pfanmiller was touched for ten singles.

"Lou" Wiltse is one of the most popular players in this vicinity, and the fact that he is a Plainfielder adds interest to his work. The fans would like to see more of his work.

The Denmanites had a chance to lay off on Saturday, without pay, through the decision of the Westfield Baseball Association, not to play the last game in the series of ten with Plainfield.

Ernest Linderman, who has been pitching for the Summit team this season, is considered one of the heaviest hitters in the metropolitan district. Many a time a game is broken up by his stick work.

Manager Denman says that the class of baseball played by Plainfield is too fast for him, and he proposes another year to get into the Dunellen and Clinton Avenue class. This is quite reasonable, when "Phil" Smith, the High School boy almost shut out Westfield this year.

The local team, considered one of the best independent aggregations in the country in fielding as well as hitting, can certainly make the reputation of any pitcher. The team made Linderman what he was, and this season was able to help "Willie" Deegan make the best record in his history as a pitcher.

George Edward, better known to baseball followers as "Rube" Waddell, who has been out of the game on account of a sore shoulder for more than three weeks, has come right and will be in the box for the Athletics early this week. Waddell injured his arm in a friendly scuffle aboard the train coming from Boston after the last trip of the Athletics to that city. Since then he had had no control and was unable to reach the plate with a pitched ball. Sunday, he declares, while practising on the grounds, he had very much the same trouble every time he raised his arm to deliver the ball. Then something remarkable happened. As he hurled a ball there was a sudden snap and all pain was gone. "What it was I don't know," Waddell declared. "It may have been a stiffened muscle or a cartilage or something out of place. Something happened anyway, and I know that I am all right. Watch me." Waddell is the greatest left-handed pitcher in the world, and it is upon him that the Athletics largely depend to win the world's championship.

Plainfield, N. J., October 3, 1905.

No time was lost by the Common Council in arranging to have the city flagpole repaired. Old Glory will still wave over the business centre of the city.

When Henry L. Hall and Paul Taylor Brown were chosen last night to fill vacancies on the Board of Governors, Muhlenberg Hospital acquired the services of two more very able men.

George P. Mellick is prominently mentioned as a candidate for councilman-at-large, the report being that the First and Third wards will join in supporting him for nomination if his own ward, the Second, will fall in line. The Second's candidate for councilman-at-large is Francis W. Montgomery, but this would make no difference for the plan is not to disturb that choice. The First and the Third, it is said, are willing that the Second be allowed two nominees provided Mr. Mellick is selected as one. Here is a rare opportunity for the Second to have a trio of able men in the councilmanic chamber. Mellick, Hibbard and Montgomery would be three councilmen of which any city might be proud.

From the feeling at present it can be predicted that the voters will authorize the Common Council to investigate the subject of municipal ownership of the water supply. The special election called for September 26 had to be called off on account of a technicality, but the Common Council last night arranged to have the proposition decided at the general election in November. No one would oppose municipal ownership of so important an utility if it be found feasible and practicable. To permit the necessary appropriation for the investigation, sanction must be given by the taxpayers. That is the sole reason for the vote. We believe that the election will and feel that it should result favorably.

PRISONER RELATIVE OF LATE VICE PRESIDENT

HARRY SMOCK, ACCUSED OF LARCENY, GRAND NEPHEW OF GARRET A. HOBART

New Brunswick, Oct. 3.—Harry Smock, former auditor of the MacAndrews & Forbes Company, of 111 Fifth avenue, New York, who has been lodged in the Tombs in that city on a charge of grand larceny, it being alleged that he and Edward F. Hale, the secretary and treasurer of the company, secured large sums by drawing checks on the company to their own order, is a well-known club man and musician of this city. He is thirty-seven years old, a cousin of A. Hobart Smock, the church and concert singer, and is a grand-nephew of the late Garret A. Hobart, Vice President of the United States with McKinley in 1896.

He lived with his mother and sister in Highland Park and was their only support. Five years ago he obtained employment with the MacAndrews & Forbes Company in their Philadelphia and Camden branch, chiefly through the influence of E. D. Christian, treasurer of the American Tobacco Company, whose wife is a relative of Smock.

Two years ago he was sent to Smyrna and Persia to standardize the bookkeeping systems of the various Oriental branches of the company to permit of more thorough supervision of their accounts from the home office. Several times on his trip, which occupied nearly a year, he was reproved by his superiors for failing to spend enough money in gifts, military escorts and other means of impressing the simple-minded Orientals with the wealth and munificence of the American Tobacco Company.

On his return to this country he was promoted and given a place in the New York office as auditor. He was a member of the Brunswick Club of this city, of which Senator William H. C. Jackson is president. He is unmarried. So far he has made no effort to secure bail through any of his New Brunswick friends.

passed upon by the commissioners of appeal, Councilman Murphy, who has at various times represented the church in a legal capacity, moved that the tax for 1904 be remitted. This was done by a vote of five to four.

Mr. Murphy made a statement of the matter in question. He said that the church had always retained its property in Central avenue, but in July, 1902, the congregation, in securing some money, gave a deed to a building loan association. The nature of the transaction was not clearly understood and it was not until the congregation saw the advertisement of their property for sale for taxes did they have any idea that they were likely to lose their property. Since last June the congregation made a settlement and is now in possession of the property, and it being a religious organization is not subject to tax. Another assessment of taxes for 1904 was levied, and it is from this that the congregation prays for relief.

Mr. Murphy thought it unjust to exact this tax under the circumstances and did not think that the Common Council would be liable in granting the petition of the colored people.

Mr. Tolles said that the corporation counsel had said the Common Council has no right to remit the tax and he thought it useless to pay for the services of a corporation counsel if his advice was not to be taken.

Mr. Murphy replied by saying that the church owns its property and he thought the city had no right to enforce the payment of this tax. He considered it unjust to ask the congregation to pay it.

Mr. Hibbard could not see how the vote of the Common Council to remit the tax would have any effect, inasmuch as the collector of taxes is duty bound to collect the tax in question and follow the advice of the corporation counsel.

A vote was then taken on the motion, and it was decided by a vote of five to four to remit the tax. Councilmen Bullock, Gloak, Higham, Murphy and Wilson voted in the affirmative, and Councilmen Hibbard, C. C. Randolph, Tolles and Daniel voted against the motion. This action is only for the remittance of the 1904 tax.

Mohr Returns.

Edward P. Mohr, the member of the Elizabeth Council who mysteriously disappeared from that city six months ago, walked into the Council chamber last evening while that body was in session. He has been in Portland, Me. His coming unannounced last night was a great surprise. A vote was to have been taken last night in City Council on the ordinance granting the Public Service Corporation a franchise to build a trolley line from the city of Rahway to be a link in the shorter line to Trenton.

COUNCIL IGNORES MAYOR

vide that the commissioners shall receive pay, Mayor Buckle thought it wise that they should give bonds for the faithful performance of their duty. Consequently each commissioner furnished bonds in the amount of $10,000, giving the Fidelity Title & Trust Company of Maryland, as surety.

The Mayor urged the approval of the appointments and bonds by the Common Council, but the majority of the members evidently did not care to recognize the Mayor's appointments, and simply laid the communication on the table.

HOBOKEN OFFICIALS HELD.

Poormaster Accused of Giving Held Orders for Aid of Councilman.

Jersey City, Oct. 3.—Judge John A. Blair, sitting as a committing magistrate, yesterday morning held for the Grand Jury in $500 bail each, Poormaster Harry L. Barck and Councilman Patrick Duffy, of the Third ward, Hoboken, for whose arrests bench warrants were issued on complaint of Harry C. Hall and George Heaney, who claimed that they had been given orders issued by the poormaster in return for work done at the primary elections of September 12.

Duffy is a candidate for re-election, and is a member of the alms committee of the Common Council. He is opposed by Lawrence Martin, Republican, to whom Hall first made the charges against Duffy.

Hall made an affidavit substantiating these charges, and subsequently signed another sworn statement changing the first. On the witness stand yesterday morning he stood by his first story, and claimed that Duffy and his friends had induced him, while intoxicated, to sign the second affidavit.

Former Assemblyman Fallon, who, with Horace Allen, represented the defendant, insisted that the prosecutor's office was being used to further the political schemes of certain candidates in Hoboken. Assistant Prosecutor Vickers indignantly denied this charge.

At the conclusion of the proceedings the defendants' counsel asked for an inquiry into the various affidavits made by Hall and those instrumental in their preparation. The court told counsel to prepare the papers and he would consider the matter.

HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Washingtonville Woman Suffers When Horses Dash Up Bank.

The kingbolt of the fifth wheel of the carriage in which Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, of Washingtonville, were being driven to the station yesterday morning broke near Frank Boden's house on the Washingtonville road, and the rattle of the loosened carriage started the horses into a wild run. An eighth of a mile beyond the coachman turned into a high bank on the side of the road to check their flight. The horses stopped all right, but the carriage overturned and all the occupants were thrown out.

Mrs. Anderson suffered severe injuries to her back and was badly shaken by the shock. She was taken home in another carriage and put under a physician's care. Anderson and the coachman escaped with bruises. The carriage was damaged.

COLLIER BEATS MARTIN FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP

WINS HONORS IN TENNIS IN THREE STRAIGHT SETS.

The finals of the Plainfield High School boys' annual tennis tournament were played yesterday afternoon before a large sized attendance of school boys and girls on the Albert street courts. The weather was just right for fast play, a cooling breeze continually sweeping over the courts. In the preliminary play Phil Smith easily defeated Guion Fountain in the third round of the tournament, scores, 6—3, 6—1. In the semi-final round Smith pushed Martin hard, the latter winning in a fast match, scores, 6—4, 7—5. The result of this match put Martin in the final round. As Collier defeated "Stu" Freeman in the semi-finals on Saturday, scores 6—4, 4—6, 6—1, he, too, gained his place in the finals to meet Martin.

Play in the finals was started promptly at 4 o'clock. From the beginning Martin showed signs of weakening, the result of playing two hard matches in one day. However, at times, he spurted up lively, causing wild excitement among the onlookers. Collier had his famous smash stroke down to perfection, drawing Martin to the net on the run and then returning with a heavy slam. Collier's long reach enabled him to play a fine net game, and he gave a fine exhibition of this difficult style of play.

In three straight well-fought sets Collier defeated Martin, scores, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1, thereby winning the Plainfield High School tennis championship in singles for the present year. He will be presented with a handsome silver loving cup in the near futre. The summary:

Third round, Smith beat Fountain, 6—3, 6—1; semi-finals, Collier beat Freeman, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1; Martin beat Smith, 6—4, 7—5; final round, Collier beat Martin, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1.

I HAVE a large number of pictures in colors and black and white that are exquisite; they will make good studies to passe partout or frame for Christmas presents; head studies, scenery, etc.; would be sold in art stores from 25 cents to $1; I will sell them for 5 cents to 25 cents; buy at once while the choice is good; art stores excluded from this offer. Thomas Henry Stafford, the Printer, 125 East Front St.

Our Statement to the Public to Correct Some Wrong Impressions.

The common use of the term "retiring sale" by many people, simply with a desire to stimulate business, has created in the minds of many the impression that all retiring sale advertising is of a "fake" nature Our employes are frequently asked, by people who do not know this store's reputation for straight forward advertising, "Is this a genuine sale?" "Are you really going out of business?" To cover this matter permanently we herewith state:

First—That Hill & Shupp will positively retire from business in Plainfield as soon as their business matters can be adjusted. Mr. Shupp will go to Pennsylvania, his family already having located there. Mr. Hill resides in Wilmington permanently and has not at any time been active in this business.

The special prices advertised each week to close out these large stocks are legitimate and liberal reductions from regular retail prices. A store of this size has to contract for much of its merchandise months ahead, and while we could have cancelled the orders already placed for fall goods, when we decided in June to discontinue business, we have thought best to let it come in and give you the benefit of special prices on much of it. You will hardly find a stock in the entire store but what has on its counters a reasonable showing of early fall goods and with opportunities for profitable buying not often enjoyed. While we are cutting down the heavy parts of the stocks by special sales, special prices, etc., we shall keep you supplied with everyday necessities such as you run in hurriedly to buy, expecting the departments to have them.

BIG MEETING OF N. J. C. E. SOCIETY

EVERYTHING IS IN SHAPE FOR MORRISTOWN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

All is in readiness for the opening of the nineteenth annual State Christian Endeavor convention Wednesday afternoon in the South Street Presbyterian church, Morristown. The various committees have been working hard for months and the programme is one that should attract a large gathering of Endeavorers from all parts of the State. The State committee will hold its final session tomorrow evening. The report of the secretary, Miss Stephens, it is expected, will show a marked gain both in membership and girls to home and foreign mission work.

The State finance committee has issued an appeal to the New Jersey Endeavorers in which they say:

"In order to meet the expenses of this year which closes at the Morristown convention the finance committee should secure the sum of $500 to make the total of $1,200 which was asked for at the Elizabeth convention. This means that many societies throughout the State have not contributed this year. Will you kindly bring this matter before your society at once so that your treasurer can forward your contribution to the State treasurer, Mr. Hottel, without delay as we desire to have each and every society in the State enrolled in the State treasurer's report at Morristown in October."

The Central Presbyterian Endeavor Society has elected these officers: President, John Lingerman; vice president, Miss Elston; recording secretary, Miss Cobb; treasurer, Miss Wilson. Chairmen of committees, lookout, John Beyerle; prayer meeting, Arnold Horrocks; missionary, Miss Harper; Sunday-school, Douglas Quelch; junior superintendent, Fred Schaeffer; social, Miss Schanz; music, John Rothrock.

When all the world was sending its congratulations to President Roosevelt upon the conclusion of the treaty of peace between Russia and Japan, Dr. Clark felt that it was only right that Christian Endeavorers should have some part in these felicitations, and so he sent to the president the following letter:

"President Theodore Roosevelt:

"My Dear President Roosevelt—May I add my word to the great chorus of congratulations which you are receiving from all parts of the world on account of the success of the peace negotiations so largely due to yourself? I venture to do this especially because the millions of members of Christian Endeavor societies in this and other lands are peculiarly committed to the cause of peace and arbitration, and because I am confident they would wish me to express their gratitude to you for your part in the wonderful history of the past week.

"With sincere respect, faithfully yours. FRANCIS, E. CLARK."

In reply to this Dr. Clark has received from the president a card thanking him heartily for these congratulations.

DECIDE TO QUIT HAZING.

Students of Stevens Institute Declare It Is Harmful.

Hoboken, Oct. 3.—No longer despised as "dogs," fit only for hazing and amusing the lordly upper classmen, the freshmen in the Stevens Institute of Technology, of this city, which opened Wednesday, were received with unusual cordiality by their presumed superiors in knowledge and experience. All hazing is to cease. The days of making a freshman pole-vault with a toothpick, laugh and cry simultaneously, or black boots, are passed. The lordly upper classmen have so decreed it. Therefore it is so. The freshmen will be received in the arms of sophomores and seniors as brothers.

The students of the institute met and voted there should be no more hazing, which was pronounced harmful, undignified, ungentlemanly and cruel. So the freshman is safe, unless he presume too much. To show their good faith the upper classmen held a reception in the auditorium of the institute to welcome the freshmen. This was in marked contrast from last year, when sophomores skulked through the buildings looking for the scalps of freshmen. The newcomers were taught the college cheers, got a stein of beer and a bit of cheese apiece and were permitted to smoke the pipe of peace. They received much good advice from the president, the instructors and the seniors—much more than they possibly can digest within the next four years.

At the opening of the institute more students were enrolled than ever before in the history of the institution. President Alexander C. Humphreys announced many new plans for the coming year's work. The new chemical laboratory will be ready for use within a few months.

Revival Services in Hoboken.

Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, formerly pastor of the Grace M. E. church, of the borough, but now pastor of the First M. E. church, Hoboken, is one of the leaders in an evangelistic movement in Hoboken planned by Evangelist J. Wilbur Chapman. The members of the First M. E., First Presbyterian and First Baptist churches of Hoboken are to unite in the series of special services.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance, I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., cars Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SHOES AND GLOVES MATCH.

A great deal should be said about the new shoes, which are pretty enough to be seen. They need not be hidden by the gown, for they are dressy in themselves. They are made of handsome material and no matter how large they may be, they are pretty to gaze upon, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"We make fancy shoes all the way up to number nines," said a shoe dealer who caters to the elegantly dressed women of the day, "and we make these big shoes of the most beautiful material. Women with big feet do not try to hide the feet. On the contrary, they exhibit them, preferring to have them show as well as they may.

"We made a pair of boots a few days ago for a young woman whose foot draws a number 8 last. She is very tall, one of the tallest girls in society, and her feet are in proportion to her size. We made her shoes of crushed strawberry broadcloth. They were patent leathers with crushed strawberry tops. They were low shoes and the tops looked like gaiter tops. The buttons were brilliant black enamel. With these shoes were supplied a handsome pair of white openwork lisle thread stockings, the smartest things you ever saw.

"One of our customers last week ordered a pair of patent leather low shoes, with pointed toes. The uppers were to be in pale green broadcloth to match a pale green linen suit. We sent a sample of the cloth to the glove maker, who will make three pairs of pale green gloves to match the shoe tops.

"Women are trying to spend money this season. I have made nine pairs of patent leather low shoes for one customer. In every case the uppers were in colored broadcloth to match a gown, pale pink, light green, violet, blue, brown, tan, champagne and every other color, it would seem, of which a gown could be made. At the same time we ordered three pairs of gloves to go with each pair of shoes. This is a sort of feminine fad."

FOR SCHOOL WEAR.

The most serviceable of school hats are those made of cloth with stitched brims and soft crowns. Sometimes the entire hat is stitched and is entirely devoid of trimming except for a small quill. There is no end to the range of colors in which these are shown and all the new and fashionable shades are reflected, thus having one exactly matching the little one's coat or frock.

Ribbons are very markedly a feature of juvenile millinery. The simplest of flats tied about the crown with wide sash ribbon, knotted in a big bow in front, is always in the best of taste, and style as well. There are other flats in soft French felt, faced half-way underneath the brim with velvet, and the flat crown almost entirely covered with a thatching of ribbon loops.

Still another good model is of fine French felt—and, by the way, a mother who can afford it will do well to buy a good quality of felt, its service is so much longer. The brim of this hat falls in graceful lines, and the small crown of the shape is replaced by a large tam crown of silk of exactly the same shade as the felt. Wide bands of the silk, the edges deeply stitched, are knotted to form the huge front bow.

Velvet hats will be chosen for the little miss's dressier appearance. This winter will probably see more of these large velvet shapes than have appeared for some time past. Of course, they are out of the question for school wear, but many of them are picturesquely simply in outline and in trimmings.

Ostrich is shown on some of them, but many mothers, even in the wealthier classes, have an aversion to the use of this plumage on little folks' bonnets, and these will choose the large velvet hats rolled away from the face slightly to one side of the front, bent over the hair in the back, the crown and upper brim caught with a huge bow of the same material.

BOUDOIR SECRETS.

The woman who wears a "switch" gives it a curly, natural effect by dampening and braiding it at night.

To make the natural hair more fluffy and abundant looking dampen it and plait it in several small braids, front and back.

A preparation that will help to bleach muddy skin is composed of buttermilk and one-third the quantity of rosewater. To a cupful of the liquid add a third the amount of salt and mix. Let it stand for an hour and then smear over the face, remaining on for half an hour at least, and preferably an hour. Wash off in clear, cold water. This will be efficacious in slight cases of sunburn.

Salt is a tonic for the hair and a most excellent dry tonic shampoo may be made of it. A coarse quality should be sifted so that no lumps remain and then scented with orris root powdered to proportion of two ounces to a pound of salt. Sift again to mix well and then rub well into the hair up by the head. Brush with a long-bristled brush.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Christian," which is to be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre, is well remembered here by the patrons of our theatre as one of the most meritorious of the season. The forthcoming engagement will, it is said, include an excellent cast, many of whom were seen here before, while the scenery accessories, etc., which have always marked Liebler & Company's productions, will be complete throughout. Ralph Stuart takes the part of John Storm.

Another Blaney play is booked at the New Plainfield theatre for next Monday night. "For His Brother's Crime," the latest offering from the pen of this prolific author and producer, will be the attraction. "Blaney Shows" hold the record for big business in this city. His "Across the Pacific," "The Factory Girl," "Only a Shop Girl," etc., always playing to capacity. During a somewhat speculative season theatrically, Blaney continued to sign big box office statements and poor business is an unknown quantity. That there is a reason for this goes without saying. The answer though is very simple. He simply understands his business and knows what the patrons of popular price houses want. Knowing this, he proceeds to "deliver the goods," and this is the answer in a "nutshell." Action, or in other words, "something doing," is the basis of Blaney's success.

The presentation of "David Harum," which is underlined to be made here tonight, and which is being awaited with considerable interest, will be notable for several reasons. In the first place, the presentation will make known what is absolutely the most successful dramatization of a popular book that the stage has known in many years. Proof of this is furnished in part by the fact that the play is now in its fifth year having outlived many works which were given to the public at the time it was staged, and by the further fact that its popularity seems to increase rather than to diminish. A particularly strong and well balanced company will be seen in the play. William H. Turner, who has played the part of David for the past four seasons, will retain the role and the supporting company is said to be admirable. The play contains all the things which made "David Harum" as a novel, so entertaining. "David Harum" is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

The New York Hippodrome has become the mecca of the amusement seekers of the universe; the one place in the world where the attractions offered are so varied and of such excellence, each being in itself incomparable. Testimony to and appreciation of this fact is offered by the throngs which day and night crowd the mammoth playhouse. "All the world knows," as a critic aptly put it recently. Success and the Hippodrome have become synonymous terms. No other amusement enterprise can compete with the programme offered by Thompson & Dundy, a programme which is replete with action, life and novelty from the time the curtain rises until it falls and hides from the dazzled sight the stirring scene pictured vividly in the realistic battle of "The Raiders" and the horses plunging madly in the great water tank. The drama and opera combined with the greatest circus ever witnessed; the gorgeous scenic effects on the planet Mars; the great chorus of pretty girls and trained male voices; the beautiful ballet; the scene at West Point, with the five companies of cadets going through the evolutions of dress parade, a scene described by army officers as second only to its great military prototype on the Hudson, are a combination that cannot be equalled and one which caters to the pleasure of those satiated with mere theatrical offering.

LITERARY.

The Popular Science Monthly for October contains the following articles: "The Lapses of Consciousness," by Professor Joseph Jastrow; "Fake Weather Forecasts," by F. J. Walz; "The College of the White Deer Grotto," by Dr. Charles Keyser Edmunds; "Unconscious Assumptions in Economics," by Dr. W. Cunningham; "The Distribution of the Daily Time of Cornell Students," by Dr. Guy Montrose Whipple; "Greek Ideas of Vulcanism," by Dr. Charles R. Eastman; "Western Explorations for Fossil Vertebrates," by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn; Dr. William Osler; Professor Wilhelm Ostwald; The Total Solar Eclipse.

Making 'Em Jump.

The Public Service is educating many of the people to catch on moving trolleys. Nearly every afternoon Main street cars in order to make up time run without stopping for passengers to and from Passaic. At the night hour people coming home from work do not like the idea of waiting for the car behind and they show considerable skill in boarding the moving car. Yesterday afternoon a car started at Passaic for Paterson with seven people on board. The car did not stop all the way into Market street, Paterson, but when it reached its destination is was crowded to the platforms.—Paterson Guardian.

COLONELS TO BE ON THE MILITARY BOARD

PROPOSES TO INTRODUCE BILL TO MAKE REGIMENTAL HEADS MEMBERS.

Interesting to the local guardsmen, as well as members of the National Guard of the State, is the news that in the new military bill to be introduced into the coming Legislature, will be a provision for placing the colonels, having regimental commands, on the State Military Board.

For many years the enlisted men have believed that they were not property legislated for by the State Military Board. This contention is based on the lack of knowledge of conditions with the generals. The colonel is the closest to his men of all high ranks and his advice is that of a practical man in the counsels of the generals.

During the last winter, when it was intended to send a provisional regiment to the inauguration of President Roosevelt, the colonels said that they could get their men out at a moment's notice, but the generals, not knowing this, said that a provisional regiment could not be gotten ready for two weeks. In consequence there was no infantry at the inauguration. The men and their colonels declared that this was lack of knowledge of conditions by the generals.

Adjutant General Breintnall ever since he was promoted to the colonelcy of the First Regiment, and even since his elevation to the office of adjutant general, has been in favor of the colonels on the State Military Board because of their knowledge of conditions in the ranks.

The only drawback to increasing the membership of the State Military Board is the expense the State will be put to for every meeting of that body. It costs transportation and pay while on duty, but it has been suggested that the generals compose the executive committee of the Board to carry out the orders of the full Board. In this way it may not be necessary to call the Board together but a few times a year, yet the colonels with their knowledge of existing conditions in the ranks can be called upon in an emergency for information and legislation that will be of the highest benefit to the National Guard of the State.

DIED IN HIS ARMCHAIR.

E. K. Smith, Former Auditor of Jersey Central, Dies Suddenly.

Stricken suddenly with heart disease, Elijah K. Smith, one of the oldest residents of Elizabeth, expired Wednesday night in an armchair at his home, 113 Mary street, in that city, while conversing with members of his household. He was seventy-four years old and a former auditor for the New Jersey Central Railroad.

He leaves an only child, Professor Herbert S. S. Smith, of Princeton University. His wife, who was Miss Squier, of Rahway, also survives him. Mr. Smith's father, in conjunction with John O. Stearns, helped to build the Elizabeth and Somerville Railroad, which afterward became the Jersey Central.

Mr. Smith started in life as a conductor on the Somerville Railroad, his father then being its agent in that town. He afterward became a purser on the steamers Red Jacket and Kill von Kull, which plied between Elizabethport and New York City, the former place being then the terminal of the Jersey Central in this State. He had this position during the Civil War.

He afterward took charge in New York of the Central Long Branch and Sandy Hook route when it was opened. Later he resigned from the Central to engage in the lumber business at Bayonne, where he conducted it for several years. He returned to the Central to accept the position of auditor, which he held until failing eyesight and health compelled him some years ago to retire.

He was an active member of the Presbyterian church and in politics was a stalwart Republican. He is survived by two brothers, Elias D. Smith, a former superintendent of Elizabeth Public School, and Walter A. Smith, for several years cashier of the Elizabethport Banking Company. His only sister, widow of Judge Joseph Alward, is also living.

—George Sweeney, who recently fell downstairs, receiving painful and serious injuries about the head, is still at the hospital in a semi-conscious condition.

Recorder Doud Also Lectures Two Borough Belligerents.

In addition to getting one of the severest lectures in Recorder Doud's repertoire, Howard Sharp was fined $5 and Albert DeCamp $3 when arraigned in the borough court last night. They had been arrested for fighting and Sharp in particular was warned that if he continued his policy of making trouble he would be sent to jail for a long term. Edward Griffin and James Brown, who they engaged in an altercation, had sentence suspended, the evidence showing that they were blameless.

Leonard Young, another fighter, was fined $3 and sentence was suspended on William Conway, who had been his adversary in an argument.

"Windy City" Cancelled.

Believing that the production is not up to the standard demanded by the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre, Manager Counihan has cancelled the date for "The Windy City," the show that was to have appeared here Thursday night. With his treasurer, Samuel Cunningham, and Frank L. C. Martin, he made the trip to Perth Amboy by auto last night and viewed the performance at the opera house in that city. Immediately afterward he notified the manager that he need not make Plainfield a stopping place. The latter declares he will bring suit for violation of contract, but Mr. Counihan said today he was not a bit concerned, as the play is nothing like what its advance agent represented when the booking was made.

UNION CO. COURT OPENS

Judge Fort Delivers Lengthy Charge to the Grand Jury.

MANY LAWYERS THERE

Court Dwells on Duties of Assessors —Refers to the Scaduto Murder Case.

The October term of court began at Elizabeth this morning with Judge J. Franklin Fort on the bench. There was a large attendance of lawyers from all parts of the county, many being present from this city.

E. C. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, is foreman of the Grand Jury, and the Plainfield members are William A. Woodruff, D. W. Littell, Cornelius van Herwerden and Floyd T. Woodhull.

Judge Fort delivered a long and technical charge to the Grand Jury, dwelling chiefly on the work of the tax assessors in the county. A complaint had been made to the court concerning one assessors, who, it is alleged, had performed his work illegally. Judge Fort did not mention the name of the complainant of the assessors, but they will be known by the Grand Jury and the case will be investigated.

The complaint was the basis of the charge by Judge Fort and he spoke at great length, going into detail as to the duties of assessors and cautioning them about violating their oaths.

Judge Fort also referred to the Italian shooting case here, when Luigi Scaduto fatally shot Lorenzo Fauch. Scaduto is now out on $5,000 bail, and the case is to be considered by the Grand Jury.

QUIT SOCIETY TO MANAGE A DAIRY

THE MISSES FISK, OF TRENTON, TIRED OF WHIRL OF PLEASURE.

Trenton, Oct. 3.—Miss May L. Fisk and Miss Evelyn Fisk, daughters of the late Harvey Fisk, are the moving spirits and managers of the Riverside Produce Company, a modern dairy plant on the Fisk estate, near Wilburtha.

The Misses Fisk, who have been prominent in society in New York and Trenton, became tired of the social whirl, and decided to devote their time to something useful. They owned a farm near Wilburtha, near here, and turned their attention to agriculture.

Miss May Fisk projected the building and operating of a modern dairy. She made a careful study of the subject and drew plans for the buildings. Every detail of the designing and drafting was attended to by her, and the buildings as they stand today have been pronounced by expert dairymen to be the finest in this part of the country.

The dairy comprises cow stable milking sheds, cooling and aerating plants and a bottling house. There are also buildings for making butter and other dairy products.

The dairy has a fine herd of cows, and its employes are all experienced dairymen.

The young women make their home at Riverside the year round, and Philadelphia is the market for their products. Three of the Misses Fisk's brothers are interested in the dairy financially, and take no active part in the affairs of the company.

Outwitted by Bride and Groom.

With the aid of George Voehl and his automobile, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Dunbar, who were married last evening, outwitted a large party of joking friends who had planned to serenade them. The friends believed they were going to the North Avenue station by carriage and spent nearly an hour decorating with ribbons and tinware a vehicle that was drawn up in front of the house where the ceremony was performed. The bride and groom hurried to the automobile at an opportune moment and were whirled away before the watchers realized what they were doing. The guests and friends hurried to the North Avenue station but Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar were taken to Westfield where they caught the train that was to take them South.

Stanischef Sued.

Joseph Stanischef, the Austrian who was arrested on Saturday upon complaint of Julia Agocheek, who charges misconduct and breach of promise, has been sued for $5,000 in tort. He is under $2,000 bail to appear at the hearing. It is said the criminal action will not be pressed, the complainant concentrating effort in carrying the damage case through. William Newcorn is the girl's lawyer.

Frank O. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, who was graduated from Princeton in June, and who is well known as one of the foremost amateur golf experts in this country, has commenced his business career in service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at Fairmont, West Virginia.

HOSPITAL TAX PLAN MAY FALL THROUGH

COUNCILMAN TOLLES VOICES OBJECTIONS TO THE PROPOSITIONS.

Councilman Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, did not report on the communication of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital at last night's meeting, wherein the Board asked that the citizens at the next regular election be given an opportunity to vote for the proposition to give the hospital annually one-third of a mill of every dollar collected from taxes. It was expected that the Common Council would arrange to have this matter voted on in November, but Mr. Tolles, after due consideration, does not favor the plan. However, the city fathers will hold an adjourned meeting on Monday night when the matter will probably be discussed. This will give a sufficient amount of time to vote on the question at the November election if it is thought wise.

In explaining his position in the matter, Mr. Tolles says that the hospital would receive this year, under the new plan, about $3,300, but next year the amount would be close to $7,000 provided the new tax law is applied in this city. But inasmuch as the hospital is a private institution, he says, in which the city has no voice or control, or even is not represented, he thinks it unwise for the Common Council to set aside a certain amount of money for the institution.

The opinion expressed by Mr. Tolles seems to be that of several other members and it is doubtful whether the matter will go through this year.

There is a slight but steady improvement in the condition of Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, who fell off a trolley car a week ago. He is now able to speak a few words, and although unable to tell the story of the accident, is conscious of every word spoken to him. Dr. Adams is more assured of his recovery, although he thinks it will be very slow.

Union county Republican leaders held a conference last night in Elizabeth. Among those present was Frank H. Smith, of this city. The convention was the subject of discussion, but nothing was done of any importance.

The Children's Hour

The evenings, along about story time, are beginning to have a chill that welcomes a small fire but does not warrant the starting of the furnace. This makes a Gas Heater a necessity. Consuming a small quantity of gas it throws out a large amount of heat and can be turned on and off at will. We sell these small stoves at $1.50, including tubing and connections. They can be carried from room to room.

POLITICAL POT BOILING

Prominent Boroughites to be Vice Presidents at Republican Mass Meeting.

TO ANSWER CITIZENS

Speeches on Local Issues—Good Government Club to Change Name.

Arrangements are complete for the monster Republican mass meeting to be held in Saengerbund Hall, the borough, tomorrow night. Mayor N. B. Smalley, who is in charge of the details, has secured a strong list of vice presidents. The following are the names of well-known borough Republicans who have been invited to serve:

B. A. Hegeman, Jr., David R. Weaver, Charles L. Nichols, James C. Peck, L. B. Woolston, George T. Rogers, Murray Burtis, William C. Smith, Peter A. Emmons, Henry A. McGee, Frank H. Ball, Robert Clark, Jr., George D. Hallock, John G. MacLaughlin and Harrison Coddington, all of whom served as members of the Borough Council.

In addition to the above names these persons have also been invited to serve:

J. E. McClintock, Edmund Rushmore, Harold Serrell, John Vanderhoef, Joseph C. Martin, William O. Worth, E. S. Hooley, Henry Nischwitz, W. J. Buttfield, Martin I. Cooley, B. S. Braider, Richard E. Coriell, H. P. Opdyke, W. A. Conger, George Schoeller, E. A. Vermeule, Frederick Burner, John P. Kirch, Robert Carson, A. M. Stine, C. M. Burt, C. C. Davidge, Fred L. Lancaster, Francis J. Blatz, Allen Coddington, William Morrison, William E. Brock, William H. Morris, Henry Weiss, George S. McGinnis, John J. Kline, John H. Green, Andrew Carpenter, Randolph Gaskill, D. K. Young, L. M. French, William Lindsay and William Jeffery.

There will be several good speeches. James R. Joy, well-known in the borough, will act as chairman of the meeting and will have something of interest to say. Other speakers will be Mayor N. B. Smalley, Charles A. Reed and others. It is the intention of those in charge to confine the argument at this time to local conditions chiefly and it is expected that Mayor Smalley and Mr. Reed will answer at some length the arguments put forth by the opposing faction. This was partially done at the meeting last week, but the speeches tomorrow night will go more into detail.

Several other mass meetings are being planned by the Republicans to be held in Saengerbund Hall before election and a lively time is predicted in the North Plainfield political arena within the next few weeks. It is quite likely that steps will be taken tomorrow night to change the name of the organization from "The Good Government Club" to another name that will incorporate the politics of the club.

Women are invited to the meeting and seats will be reserved for them.

GRAND JURY INDICTS "HACK" LAHEY GANG

REPORT ALSO THAT ILLINGSWORTH MUST FACE MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

The Somerset County Grand Jury finished its labors late yesterday afternoon, after having been in session four days, all told, returning thirty-one true bills out of about ninety-five cases.

The "Hack" Lahey gang, comprising Dennis Harrington, John Regan, "Hack" Lahey and Gat. Wyman, were indicted on five different charges: Attempting to escape from jail by dynamiting, breaking and entering a bottling place in town, carrying concealed weapons, attempting to rob Joseph McManus in broad daylight and robbing the country residence of C. N. Sterling at Finderne. To all of these charges they pleaded not guilty and their trial was set down for Monday, Oct. 16.

It is rumored that Harry G. Illingworth, who while quarreling with a boy at Raritan, threw a stone at his little sister fracturing her skull, from the effects of which she died, was indicted for manslaughter.

Completing Plans for Field Day.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 855, B. P. O. E., will hold an important meeting tonight to complete arrangements for the second annual field day and clambake to be held Saturday at the spring water company's plant on Mountain avenue. A big programme is being arranged and from indications the affair will exceed last year's success.

HORSE STOLEN FROM IN FRONT OF HOUSE

F. V. L. JONES' RIG TAKEN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON BY DARING THIEF.

F. V. L. Jones, of Evergreen avenue, reported a daring horse theft to police headquarters last night. The horse, attached to a runabout, was taken from in front of Mr. Jones' house shortly after 6 o'clock.

Mr. Jones stables his horse at W. L. Callahan & Son's livery stable, and it has been his habit to leave his rig in front of the house, from where one of the liverymen would take it to the stable. Yesterday afternoon bewteen 5:30 and 6 o'clock Mr. Jones drove to the house, and as usual left the rig at the curb for the stableman. Shortly after 6 o'clock he heard it moving off. He thought the hostler had come for it and paid no attention to the occurrence. A short time afterward Callahan's man came in to ask about the rig, and Mr. Jones learned then that the liverymen had seen nothing of it.

The police were notified at once, but no trace of the missing rig could be found. At the time Mr. Jones was not positive that he had tied the horse, and it was thought the animal might have strayed off. When information regarding the animal's whereabouts was still missing this morning the officers decided that it was a case of theft. It is supposed that someone familiar with Mr. Jones' habit with regard to leaving the horse at the curb for the stableman executed the job.

The animal is a seal brown mare 15 1-2 hands high, with wind puffs on both front legs. The carriage is a rubber-tired runabout with green striping.

PROFESSOR GRIGGS ON LUTHER'S LIFE AND WORK

HIGHLY INTERESTING STUDY OF THE GREAT GERMAN REFORMER.

Prof. Griggs delivered the second of his lectures on great moral leaders at Vincent chapel, last night, his subject being Martin Luther. There was a large attendance, and the usual close attention was accorded the lecturer. Those who hear Prof. Griggs at any time can hardly fail to pay anything but the most undivided attention to his discourse, and his lecture last night was particularly interesting.

Explaining in a brief preface the condition of German religious life in the great reformer's youth, the lecturer sketched the environment and the occurrences that led to his breach with the papal authority. He told with admirable clarity and compactness of phrase how Luther, in a thunderstorm, frigtened over the prospect of immediate death in his sin—Luther at that time was deep in a spiritual struggle with himself—vowed to consecrate himself to the service of God if his life was spared; how he spent three years in an Augustinian monastery, leaving there to take up teaching at the request of the Elector of Saxony; how he finally took issue with the body of the Church on the doctrine of indulgences, and finally settled all doubts in his own mind as to his position on the subject of reformation by publicly burning the papal bull of excommunication.

Prof. Griggs painted an illuminating picture of Luther's character and his work, making the great reformers' intolerance of religious belief other than his own plain. The lecturer pointed out, however, that Luther was still to be regarded as a great factor in bringing religious tolerance about, as the breach he forced between the mother church and the Protestants, leading to the terrible religious wars of the sixteenth century, and the struggles and bitterness of later days, forced the world to enter into that spirit of toleration that is the boast of latter-day civilization.

"David Harum" Enjoyed.

The interpretation of "David Harum" at the New Plainfield theatre last night was a source of delight to the large attendance that witnessed it. The company was a capable one from leading man to the most unimportant role, and the performance moved with a balance that is seldom attained. It was one of the most delightful productions Manager Counihan has secured for the pretty playhouse since it opened.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The first fall meeting of the Sesame Club will be held tomorrow morning at the home of the president, Mrs. Tennant, 750 Kensington avenue. The club will study the life of Emerson this season, devoting most of the time to the essays and a short time to poems.

LAWRENCE FOR SHERIFF

Summit Physician Probable Nominee of Tomorrow's Republican Convention.

HARD FIGHT FOR HIM

Something About the Career of Man Who Will Likely Succeed B. F. Coriell as Union County's Sheriff.

The Republican leaders of Summit have been for some time advocating the nomination of Dr. William H. Lawrence, Sr., for sheriff of Union county, and the delegates selected at the primaries to represent that city at the Union county Republican convention, to be held in Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon, are pledged to his support. He is the probable nominee.

The Summit leaders have been making a plea for the last few years for county representation in office, but so far have been turned down in favor of Elizabeth, Plainfield or Rahway. Last fall, when the name of Summit's candidate for county clerk was withdrawn by Councilman Franklin, of Summit, who was a delegate to the convention, the latter made a telling speech, in which he said that while Summit would withdraw all claims to a nomination that year, they would come down this year with a candidate for a county office, and expected the nomination to be honored. His speech was received with cheers of approbation, and shouts of "We'll be with you next year" were heard from all parts of the room.

Taking the expression of feeling last year as a criterion, and the tacit agreement of the county leaders that Summit should be recognized, the local Republican leaders early induced Dr. Lawrence to become Summit's candidate for the nomination of sheriff. Dr. Lawrence is well known throughout the county as a stalwart Republican, and it is almost assured that his candidacy will be recognized by the county leaders.

Dr. Lawrence went to Summit some twenty-five years ago and built up a large practice as a physician. The city was for years under Democratic control, and the doctor, thinking that a change in the management of local affairs would be welcomed, embarked in politics, and through his ability as a fighter the then Township Committee became Republican, he being elected a member. Since then (1895) Dr. Lawrence has been high in party affairs and one of the shrewdest Republican leaders, and his advice has been constantly sought on matters of importance. He has represented Summit on the county Republican committee for years. With the exception of a couple of years, the city has been Republican since Dr. Lawrence was elected to the Township Committee, and it was largely through his efforts that the old regime of affairs was changed.

Dr. Lawrence has been township treasurer and is now president of the Board of Health.

Granted County Licenses.

In Court of Common Pleas yesterday morning Judge Vail granted licenses for inns and taverns to the following applicants: Joseph Ehrhardt, Cranford; Walter W. Mooney, borough of Roselle Park; Charles Trees, borough of Roselle; William S. Rapp, Fanwood; Annie L. Bauer, Linden township; Martin Hess, Cranford; William F. Petz, Springfield township; John L. Titus, Roselle Park borough; Lynus Walpole, Fanwood; Stanislaw Sikora, borough of Roselle. Remonstrances were presented against the following applications, which as a result were laid over: William Morrison, township of Springfield; Mauris E. F. Nielson, borough of Roselle Park; Gasper Buhler, Garwood.

DIRECTORS CONSIDER LIBRARY MATTERS

PLANS FOR IMPROVEMENTS OUTLINED LAST NIGHT.

The recommendation of the librarian, Miss Adams, that the time allowed borrowers for retaining books might be extended, was one of the important matters considered at the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library, last night. It is desired that an arrangement can be made whereby a large number of the reference periodicals might be circulated for home use. The matter was referred to the library committee with power.

Dr. Waldo gave notice that at the next meeting he would present a motion for the consideration of the Board, whereby an appointment be made of a new standing committee having for its purpose the preparation of a plan for extending the work of the library and increasing its facilities.

Following the routine business, a letter from the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital expressing its obligations and thanks for its long continued use of the library parlor for meetings was read and placed on file. After the appointment of L. V. F. Randolph as a committee of one on grounds, the meeting adjourned.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

Classes Will Reopen Next Month—Talk of Basketball Team.

The Young Women's Club is preparing for the new season. The classes will begin next month.

Plans for the renewed work were discussed at the annual meeting of the club Monday night. Classes in dancing, dressmaking and millinery will be formed at once. If sufficient interest is manifested in them other classes in any subject suggested will be formed. The formation of a basketball team is being discussed. The five might practice and play in Hope chapel gymnasium. Among the general plans in mind are tentative arrangements for a fair. The advisability of holding the sale has not been definitely decided.

The club room is open every night to members. Young women who wish to join the club may file their names with any of the officers. Miss Olga Lockert is president of the club.

ISAAC FIELD'S FUNERAL.

Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, of which he was a member, and were attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends and business associates from New York. The Lotus Glee Club, in charge of Charles L. Lewis, sang two selections. There were numerous handsome floral tributes, many of them large set pieces.

The interment was made in the family plot at the Bound Brook cemetery.

NO SPOONING IN PARK.

Guards to Drive Out Courting Couples After Nightfall.

Trenton, Oct. 4.—Couples who journey to Cadwalader Park after dark to make love will have in the future to seek a new trysting place. The Board of Park Commissioners decided yesterday to put a stop to the practice. All the guards have been instructed to do duty on the grounds until 11 o'clock each night to keep lovers on the move.

No person will be allowed to loiter in the park after dark, but will be permitted to walk through the pleasure grounds from one trolley entrance to the other on their way home. The board decided to have the grounds lighted at night during the summer months.

Fresh Air Association Meeting.

An anniversary meeting of the Plainfield Fresh Air Association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building Thursday, October 12. Reports of the past year's work will be read and an interesting programme rendered.

Stanischef Lacks Bail.

Joseph Stanischef, unable to furnish the $2,000 bond put upon him in the action for $5,000 in tort, brought by Julia Agpcheek, was taken to the county jail this morning, by Deputy Sheriff Weaver.

To Naturalize 100.

Judge Vail will hold a special session of court Saturday morning. There are about 100 residents of the county who want to be naturalized.

—The season is well advanced, but Neuman Brothers' display of fruit still outdistances any other in the city. They are making a specialty of peaches and Bartlett pears.

PURE MINDED PLAINFIELD

Vender of "Souvenir" Postal Cards Finds Trade Here Very Light.

PINCHED BY HIGGINS

Fakir David Schenkin Says He is Glad to Be Run Out of Town—Sold Six Cards in Two Hours.

David Schenkin, a Newark fakir, came to Plainfield yesterday afternoon to sell some souvenir postal cards. Cop Higgins saw him showing the cards to a group of men on Watchung avenue and went over to see what they were like. Higgins took a look and then he placed David under arrest. The pictures would give Anthony Comstock a fit.

City Judge Runyon blushed when he looked through one of the cards in court this morning.

"We can't stand for this sort of thing here," he said severely. "This is the limit on cards. Ten dollars or twenty days. You can't sell those things here."

David paid with a disgusted look.

"Say," he said feelingly, "this is the deadest town in the world. I'm glad to be run out of it. I was here two hours before the cop got onto me and I only sold six cards. If this was any sort of a place at all I'd a-sold bushels of 'em. They went like thunder every other place I was in. This town is not for me—ever. I'm glad to get away."

David's cards were confiscated. All of them excepting three of the clearest will be burned. The three will be kept for reference. New cops may not know what bad cards, which cops must suppress, are like.

This is the first time the authorities have caught a vendor of indecent cards in this city. All of Schenkin's successors, if any appear, will be as promptly jugged and fined. It isn't likely that there will be any successors. There is a free-masonry spirit among the inhabitants of the fakir world, and David's estimate of Plainfield will probably go into the unwritten rate book of the craft.

BAR ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Union County Legal Lights Discuss Several Matters.

At a meeting of the Union County Bar Association, held yesterday morning, a motion was made to have a committee appointed for the purpose, if possible, of bringing about the appointment of a lawyer police justice in Elizabeth. The motion was tabled.

It was resolved to appoint a committee for the purpose of bringing about the appointment of a jury commission for Union county as allowed under a law permitting such in first class counties.

A report from the committee appointed to procure a portrait of Judge Van Syckel, for the Supreme Court room, was received and filed. With the report the committee turned over to the association $185, a balance of the $187 contributed toward the purchase of the portrait which at the opening of the May term was formally presented and placed in the court room.

J. C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, was to have read an interesting paper before the association, but unfortunately was unable to do so because of being called out of the city.

CONVENTION ON SATURDAY.

Somerset Democrats to Renominate S. C. Childs.

Somerset county's Democratic convention will be held at the court house in Somerville on Saturday morning. The officers of the convention have not been announced.

The convention will be called to order at 11 o'clock.

Dam Injunction Suit Postponed.

The injunction suit instituted by E. S. Hooley against John Herrman, of the borough, seeking to restrain the latter from rebuilding his dam in the upper part of the borough, and which was to have been heard in the Supreme Court, yesterday, was postponed to a date to be fixed by the counsel. Charles A. Reed represents Mr. Hooley and S. S. Swackhamer represents Mr. Hermann.

"NICEST DANCING TEACHER" HAILS FROM PLAINFIELD

PASTOR SCUDDER, OF JERSEY CITY, ENGAGES HER FOR PEOPLE'S PALACE.

"The nicest dancing teacher on earth," according to Rev. Dr. John J. Scudder, of Jersey City, is Miss Marion Hartley, of this city, a member of the teaching corps at the Hartridge school. He has engaged her as dancing instructor for the new People's Palace, which he has established in connection with his church as a place for the physical development of the young people. She will also have charge of a "school of manners," which is to be another feature of the institution, and intended to help the pupils acquire personal grace and pleasing address.

Pastor Scudder is highly enthusiastic over Miss Hartley's appearance as well as her ability, and said yesterday:

"She is a fascinating young woman, twenty-two years of age. All the fellows say they are going to learn how to dance through her teachings. When I saw Miss Hartley I was so captivated with her that I engaged her two minutes after."

The classes will be thrown open to the public and will not be confined to Palace members. Miss Hartley has made quite an impression already among the Jersey City young men, several of whom have said to Mr. Scudder: "If you are going to have a pretty young lady like that teach, put us right down as members of her class." Many who already know how to dance have determined to join for the social life and amusement the class affords.

Miss Hartley will commence her work at the Palace this evening.

"WARRY" M'LAUGHLIN TO PITCH FOR DAABSTERS

CHAMPION HOLYOKE TEAM WILL MEET LOCAL CHAMPIONS SATURDAY.

"Warry" McLaughlin, of the borough, who had such a fine record pitching for the New London team of the Connecticut State League this season, has been engaged to pitch for the Daasbters on Saturday against his old rivals, the Holyoke team, champions this year of the Connecticut State League. "Warry" proved a stumbling block this year to the champions and he can be depended upon Saturday to do the trick with such a fast team as the locals behind him. This will be the first opportunity since last season that "Warry's" friends have had to see him pitch, and they are sure to turn out in large numbers to cheer him on to victory. Otherwise the local team will be the same as usual.

The management of the Holyoke team will use his regular lineup and will use either Hartley, Dolan or Hodge to stand on the firing line. They are all first class twirlers and are sure to give a fine exhibition. Shincel will do the backstop work, and the other positions will be filled by the players who have made an enviable record this year, thereby winning the championship. This will be the first visit of a team from the Connecticut State League here and the efforts of Manager Daab should be fully appreciated. Holyoke will also play the local team at St. George Cricket Grounds, Hoboken, Sunday.

This will be the lineup of the teams:

Plainfield—Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Cregan, lf; Connolly, rf; Dalton, 2b; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; McLaughlin, p.

Holyoke—Hoffman, cf; Deal, 1b; Bannon, lf; Hartley, 2b, p; Lord, 2b; Shincel, c; Rememter, rf; Mauch, 3b; Dolan and Hodge, subpitchers.

HEALTH IN SEPTEMBER

Seventeen Cases of Communicable Disease Reported During the Month.

BAKERIES INSPECTED

Seventy-Nine Dairies Visited by Mr. Thurlow — Nine Cases Quarantined.

It was reported at the October meeting of the Board of Health yesterday that with the opening of the public schools there was a slight increase in the number of contagious diseases. The number of communicable diseases reported were as follows:

Scarlet fever, seven; diphtheria, five; typhoid fever, one; tuberculosis, three; measles, one; a total of seventeen. There were two deaths from tuberculosis.

At present there are nine houses under quarantine, five on account of scarlet fever, three for diphtheria, and one on account of scarlet fever and diphtheria.

The house to house inspection is at a standstill. The board hopes to have the properties inspected during the past summer put in thorough sanitary condition, but no new properties will be inspected.

Health Officer Thurlow accomplished considerable during the past month in dairy inspection and milk analysis. Seventy-nine dairies and creameries and eighteen stores selling milk were inspected. Forty-six of the above dairies complied with the ordinance throughout. Of the remaining thirty-three, sixteen needed only very slight changes, such as whitewashing, brushing down cobwebs and a few other things. During the month twenty-two samples of milk were analyzed with good results.

During September an inspection of all the bakeries doing business in Plainfield was made, and in the majority of cases they were found to be in fairly good condition. A permit was granted Nicola Fassetts to conduct a barber shop at 432 Watchung avenue.

These returns were made to the Board of Health officer during September: Seventeen marriages, thirty-two births, one still birth and twenty-five deaths.

PAUL STANLEY WHITALL MARRIED IN NEW YORK

MISS RACHEL CARRIE VAIL IS HIS BRIDE.

Miss Rachel Carrie Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Randolph Vail, of 686 One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street, New York, and Paul Stanley Whitall, of this city, were married yesterday at the home of the bride by Rev. William H. Kephart, of the North New York Congregational church.

The bride, gowned in white Japanese Habatin silk, and wearing a veil caught up with lilies-of-the valley, was given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Mary E. Edgerton, of Bound Brook, who wore a gown of pink silk mulle. The bride carried a huge bouquet of white roses and the maid of honor carried pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Lawrence C. Whitall.

There was a large number of guests present from New York, Brooklyn and this city. The bride received many handsome gifts, consisting of cut glass, solid silver, rare china and furniture.

After an extended trip the couple will reside in New York. The groom has many friends in this city.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The attention of the public and the county officials has again been directed to the gambling orgies that have made Dewey Park the scene of disgraceful violations of the law nearly every Sunday for several months past. Not long ago a crusade against the gambling at the park was inaugurated by Rev. S. K. Doolittle, and the activity of the authorities resulted in a temporary cessation of the evil. It was not long, however, before the gang of young men and professional gamblers gathered at their old stand, and things went on much as before. Last Sunday there was a large crowd of would-be sports and real sharpers in the woods, and the citizens feel that it is time some decided action was taken to stop the Sunday gathering for good. Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the Baptist church, added his pastoral word of disapproval of the conditions in force from his pulpit on Sunday, and his sermon has aroused a renewal of the general sentiment against a continuance of them. Prosecutor Berdine has been asked to take immediate action, and the ministers and certain citizens who have interested themselves in the matter will keep the subject before him until effectual action has been taken.

The authorities made public yesterday the fact that some law-breaker forced an entrance into the Whittier School on Monday night. He was frightened away a few minutes after he got in, and the school officials have not been able to decide whether or not anything is missing. Nothing of value, apparently, was taken, and there is even doubt that the man, whoever he was, entered the school to steal. Another purpose is suspected and an investigation along those lines is being conducted. The intruder was detected in the school by a passerby at about 10 o'clock Monday night, and Mayor Wyckoff was notified. The Mayor routed out Marshal Mohan and they went to the school in a hurry. The exits were guarded and the officer went in after the suspected thief. Traces of his presence were discovered, but the man himself had disappeared. Entrance had been gained through a window.

Plans are being made by C. D. Taylor for the reorganization of the bowling club that so ably represented the borough on the alleys of neighboring places last winter. Some of the fastest bowlers in this section are available for the team, and if the club is brought together again the cracks of New Brunswick, Bound Brook and Plainfield will have to fight hard to retain their laurels. If the pace of last winter is at all improved upon, and there is no reason to doubt that it will not be, a good many of the laurels will be wrested from the present holders.

A horse driven by a man giving his name as Chester Fouratt was taken suddenly ill at "The Pines" on the Metuchen road Sunday and died in a short time. It belonged to a New Brunswick liveryman, and when he was informed over the telephone of the animal's death he hurried to the hotel with a veterinary from the county seat. The veterinary found nothing to do; the horse was as dead as he ever will be. Fouratt was driving from Plainfield to New Brunswick, where he lives.

Officers were chosen as follows at the last meeting of the Middlesex Borough Association, which is pushing the formation of a borough in that portion of Piscataway lying west of Dunellen: President, M. F. Werts; vice-president, Nelson M. Giles; treasurer, George W. Harris; executive committee, G. W. Harris, A. P. Gulick and M. Gallagher.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Isaac J. Stites tonight to complete the detailed plans for the clam chowder supper and sociable to be held at the church tomorrow night.

The Lake Pigment Company is having the wet and dismal stretch of ground to the west of the plant filled in. It is the company's aim to make the grounds clean looking and attractive, which they are far from being now.

Dan Moody has returned from Newport News, Va., where he was called by the death of Mrs. Moody's father. Mrs. Moody is still in the South, but she will return soon, bringing her mother with her.

The household goods of Charles Ward, who is to move to California, will be sold at auction tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Ward will go into the grocery business in Ocean Park, Cal.

The Alis eleven, of Plainfield, will play the local eleven on the borough gridiron Saturday afternoon. An interesting and hard fought contest is looked for.

Mrs. Sanford Ramsey, of Lebanon, has returned home after a visit to relatives in the borough.

One of the heavy draft horses used by Garretson & Gray died yesterday of colic.

A. E. Curtis has returned home from a visit to relatives in New York State.

Mrs. William Giles has been entertaining relatives from out of town.

A new walk is being laid about the roundhouse.

W. H. Taylor started on a driving tour today.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A horse attached to an open wagon, which contained a few apples, was left by its owner, a Plainfield man, eating grass by the roadside here, when the horse stumbled into the ditch and was unable to arise for a long time until it was pulled out of the ditch by several men.

Thomas Linabury was pleased to have his valuable pointer dog returned to him yesterday after inserting an ad. in The Plainfield Daily Press the day before.

The Women's Missionary Circle, of the Baptist church, will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. H. Manning.

Mrs. Fred Latourette and daughter have gone to visit relatives in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Wayne Clark, of Crescent avenue, are sojourning at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Mrs. John Whitenack, of Craig place, who has been visiting friends at Harlingen, Somerset county, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Volk returned from their bridal trip to Cherryville on Monday. They are making their home for the present with Mrs. Volks parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vail, of Elmwood place.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.
The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.
It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Plainfield, N. J., October 4, 1905.

What will the Union county Republican convention have to say regarding equal taxation?

Excepting a contest over the shrievalty, all will run smoothly at the Union county Republican convention tomorrow afternoon. Ernest R. Ackerman will be nominated unanimously for State Senator, and Peter Tillman and Randolph Perkins will meet with no opposition in their ambition to be returned to the Assembly. E. K. Tucker will be the third man among the nominees for the lower branch of the Legislature. The only fight of the day will be over the nomination for sheriff, Elizabeth and Summit being hot after the plum. Rahway and Cranford also have hopes, but are not in the running. Dr. W. H. Lawrence is Summit's "favorite son" and Captain Robert M. Kirkland is strongly backed by Elizabeth. Dr. Lawrence will win, at least that's what the wise ones say.

TROLLEY ROAD MAY BE A FAST FREIGHT LINE

FINAL PLANS OF COMPANY KEEPS ELIZABETH CONJECTURING.

Elizabeth, Oct. 4—Recent developments in the plans of the New York and Philadelphia Company to construct a fast line between New York and Philadelphia and the West, show that the company intends to cross this city at an elevation of twenty-two feet above the level of the street. The road will connect with the Waverly freight yards. This fact leads many to believe that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is directly behind the construction of this road. Additional strength is given this belief, in that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company recently made an announcement in Philadelphia that it was to abandon its freight service on its main lines, and would send all its freight from Philadelphia and the West over a separate line. The road now in construction behind this city, and which has a terminal at present at Bayway, this city, is supposed to be the new Pennsylvania freight line.

In the office of the Union County Trust Company, a few days ago, testimony was taken in condemnation proceedings between John Vogel, of Linden, and the New York and Philadelphia Company for the condemnation of a certain plot of ground owned by Vogel. The testimony was taken before Charles H. K. Halsey, William Howard, of Rahway, and John Bernhard. The commissioners allowed Vogel $250 for the plot of ground, which is a very small one. It was accepted by him.

This gives the company a clear right of way from Trenton to Elizabeth, all other properties having been secured either by purchase or by condemnation proceedings.

The company was organized under a State railroad charter, and it has had surveyors at work for some time outlining a route from the point in Bayway, where the road ends now, to the northern boundary line of Elizabeth, indicating that the destination of the line is the Waverly freight depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. Halsey, one of the commissioners who heard the testimony in the condemnation proceedings, stated to a newspaperman that the lawyer for the New York and Philadelphia Company had assured him that the company, as far as he was aware, was constructing the line for trolley purposes.

Bad Colored Boy Fined.

Clarence Mitchell, colored, was fined $3 in the city court this morning for pummeling David Golden, white, yesterday afternoon, on West Front street. Mitchel is seventeen years old and Golden fourteen. The colored lad had a grudge against the white boy.

—Edwin Daniels, of West Eighth street, has accepted a position with the Edison Co., of New York.

A Real Fall Opening.

The benefits derived from attending the fall opening of L. S. Plaut & Co., Newark, is in many ways invaluable. It is a show of everyday needs, together with extraordinary special selling features that goes deeper than usual occasions of the sort. It is a display of the world's best, selected with great experience and infinite care. Reliability is one of the strongest recommendations. The economy represented is in the inherent goodness, which assure maximum service. But these attributes are only part of the opening attractions. The special bargains are a magnet that will bring thousands. Goods of the same high grade that the Bee Hive offers regularly will be sold much below everyday prices. Every quarter of the store contributes—and most all the myriads of wants that this store fills may be supplied at a great saving—goods right up to the moment in desirability at prices astonishingly low. RETIRING SALE.

The common use of the term "retiring sale" by many people, simply with a desire to stimulate business, has created in the minds of many the impression that all retiring sale advertising is of a "fake" nature. Our employes are frequently asked by people who do not know this store's reputation for straightforward advertising, "Is this a genuine sale?" "Are you really going out of business?" To cover this matter permanently we herewith state:

Mr. Shupp will go to Pennsylvania, his family already having located there. Mr. Hill resides in Wilmington permanently, and has not at any time been active in this business.

AMUSEMENTS.

Since the opening of the New Plainfield theatre, no play has given greater satisfaction than "Marching Through Georgia," which plays a return engagement, matinee and night, on Saturday. The play being comparatively well known here, little can be said about it that has not already been said hundreds of times. It is a wonderful story with a magnificent scenic production, a capable company and every accessory, used on the previous visit will return here. A special bargain matinee will be given for the benefit of the women and children.

Margaret Evans in "Marching Thro' Georgia."

What could be more thrilling than to see a powerful blacksmith, a perfect physical giant, at the risk of his life, grapple with a team of spirited runaway horses and by main strength bring them to their haunches. This scene actually occurs in "For His Brother's Crime," the new Blaney melodrama, which comes to the New Plainfield theatre Monday night. Robert Gaillard, for whom the play was written, is the heroic blacksmith. Mr. Gaillard is the undisputed strong man of the American stage, and it was due to his powerful strength that Mr. Blaney was enabled to write a play of this character.

Among the greatest plays of the modern stage, "The Christian" takes important place. This great success will be put on at the Plainfield theatre Friday night, when our theatregoers will have an opportunity of welcoming many of the old favorites seen before, with others chosen for their fitness to the various roles. New scenery is to be brought, and the details of perfection, which was a strong feature heretofore, is promised—giving assurance of a most perfect whole.

The success of "The Prince Chap," which has been transferred to Weber's theatre from the Madison Square theatre, New York, promises to recall many famous runs which marked the career of that playhouse in its early days. Mr. Lawrence has in "The Prince Chap" a play of unusual sweetness and strength. Its popularity is easily understood. Cyril Scott in the title role has emerged from the chrysalis of light comedy which has confined him for so long a time and has now burst forth into the more expansive life of legitimate art. Next in prominence to Mr. Scott are the two little children, Helen Bullman and Edith Speare, both charming little actresses, as the two Claudias. They carry out the intention delightfully of showing the evolution of the character. There is rich humor, and unctuous humor at that, in the appearance of Thomas A. Wise in the part of Runion, the man servant. "The Prince Chap" is so well cast and so well played that there is little opportunity for discrimination. Grace Kimball, however, continues to give an excellent portrayal of the part of Alice Travers.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

AN ATTRACTIVE TABLE.

The comfort and enjoyment of a meal must, to a great extent, depend upon the arrangement of the table.

If it is carelessly laid, with unpolished silver and glass, a dirty tablecloth, and no flowers, it is not likely that those who sit round it will care to spend more time upon their meals than is absolutely necessary.

Just as much care should be taken in laying the table for the home meal as for a dinner party. Doubtless there will not be as many articles used, or quite such elaborate flower arrangements; but everything should be at any rate spotlessly clean and bright, and flowers of some kind or a plant should always be on the table.

It does not need expensive glass or china or table linen to make a table look inviting. Cheap glass, if it has been chosen with taste, and very inexpensive china may decorate the table; but if these belongings are clean and bright, they will look far better than they would if ugly, unpolished and dirty, even though ever so costly.

It is no use taking pains with the laying of the table if the room is untidy. The first things to be done, then, is to see that the room is quite clean and free from dust.

The tablecloth is the next consideration. This should be quite clean, of course, and as fresh as possible. If it is to look well it must never be put on the table singly, with nothing between it and the boards. An old tablecloth or a piece of thick flannel should always be placed beneath it.

Besides looking better, anything spilled is not so likely to injure the table, it is more comfortable to the touch, and dishes can be placed on it more quietly.

The tablecloth being laid smoothly and neatly, the various articles needed must next be made ready. It is a very good plan to keep a piece of wash-leather handy, and give every article an extra polish before placing it on the table.—Boston Traveler.

The Children's Hour

The evenings, along about story time, are beginning to have a chill that welcomes a small fire but does not warrant the starting of the furnace. This makes a Gas Heater a necessity. Consuming a small quantity of gas it throws out a large amount of heat and can be turned on and off at will. We sell these small stoves at $1.50, including tubing and connections. They can be carried from room to room.

ANTI-AUTOMOBILE TICKET MAY RESULT

PROBABLE CANDIDATES FOR SENATE OWN MACHINES.

Farmers in Somerset county having formed two organizations pledging themselves not to vote for any candidate who owns an automobile, are now considering the advisability of putting an anti-automobile legislative ticket in the field.

They are forced to this course by the fact that the Democratic candidate for Senator probably will be Samuel S. Childs, who owns several high grade automobiles, which he uses largely in the Bernardsville section, while Colonel Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, an insurance broker at No. 76 William street, New York, cast by the Republicans for Senatorial nomination this week, also owns an expensive touring automobile.

The Highway Protective Association, a third organization, was started in Somerset county for the same purpose as the other two and is getting branches in other counties. All these associations are planning to take a hand in politics this fall and to carry the problem to the Legislature. They have eminent lawyers connected with them who have offered their services.

The Farmers' Club, of Harlingen, made the first move in this direction early in the summer. It is composed of most of the influential farmers of the southern townships.

The Anti-Automobile Association at North Branch, which consists of farmers and business men of the central and western part of the county, held an enthusiastic meeting last week. Every member who took part declared that he would not vote for anybody who owned an automobile. Resolutions were adopted declaring that the public roads had been built and maintained by the people at a great outlay, that the people should have the right to use them freely without unnecessary obstruction or danger, that they were deprived of this right by the way some automobilists run their machines, and that the organization is for the purpose of restoring the rights of the public to the free and reasonable use of the roads.

Information received by letter concerning Mrs. Josephine Lapsley, of this city, who was recently injured in London, when she was knocked down by a cab, states that no bones were broken and that she will soon fully recover.

O. Hermance has sold his beautiful home, 529 Woodland avenue, corner East Seventh street, Netherwood, to Mr. Gassert, of Gassert & Dunlap, publishers, of New York, and the new owner will take possession the last week in October.

The Daabsters have struck their old-time form again and are due to win from Holyoke on Saturday.

It is likely that Manager Daab will use "Phil." Smith in the box for the game with the All-Plainfield team on Saturday, October 14.

This will be the first visit in Plainfield from a Connecticut State League team and the fans should turn out and see the contest.

Interest is steadily increasing in the game for Saturday, October 14, between the Daabsters and All-Plainfield aggregation. Manager Dixon, of the Stars, says that his team will win.

In the opinion of "Jack" O'Neill, "Phil." Smith will rate among the top-notchers in a year or two with proper coaching. "Jack" says that the lad has the makings of a good one.

The manager of the Holyoke, Connecticut State League, champions, who play here on Saturday, informs Manager Daab that he intends to win the game. He will use his strongest battery and regular team.

With such fine exhibitions as given at the Oval last Saturday the crowd should be doubled this week. Manager Daab is giving the town as fine an article of ball as can be seen anywhere. Turn out and give him the best support.

Every member of the Plainfield team holds Manager Daab in the highest regard and speak his praises continually. He has every confidence in his players and they return the feeling by true appreciation of his efforts in their behalf. It is doubtful if there is a team in the country today where players and manager are harmonious.

"Rube" Oldring, who will be remembered as having played here early in the season, has New York fandom singing his praises because of his fine showing with the Highlanders. He is playing short-stop in place of Elberfield, who was injured. On Monday in the first of a double-header he secured a three bagger, two singles, and had five assists, two put-outs and one error. His sensational work has won for him great praise from the metropolitan press.

Captain Dave Driscoll, of the Commuters, was one of the central figures in the burglar hunt on upper Somerset street Monday night. Dave, who has been staying in town for a few days, was calling on Jimmy Beisel, who pitched for the Daabsters early in the season, at the time the alarm was sounded. Jimmy lives close to the scene of the excitement, and the hide tossers got into the thick of the chase right away. With Dave leading the way, they rooted boldly through the cellar and other haunts frequented by fleeing burglars, dauntlessly taking the chance that the burglarious gent shot in the 500 class and was ready to swat them. After Dave got through with the subway he hot-footed to a hotel and told the landlord to ring for the officers. A few minutes after that the fire department appeared on the scene. The hotel keeper says that was what Dave asked him to call out, but the athlete swears he asked for the police. It didn't matter, because the cops came after a while and poked around. "What did the burglar look like?" asked the chief cop of Dave. "He had a ring in his nose," said Dave without a suspicion of guile in his tone. The chief looked at him sternly and not a man dared to laugh. "Gosh," said Dave last night, "I thought they were going to pinch me for a fresh guy. Say, I laughed about that show today until my side had kinks in it. I lost two pounds laughing over it, without kidding." Jimmy works with Dave in the Equitable office, and he had a large bunch of Paul Morton's bright young men snickering at the North Plainfield police force and fire department over their books.

GOLF.

Foursome matches are growing in popularity steadily, and inter-club matches among professionals and members of clubs are a source of good practice to those who wish to improve their game.

Over fifty-four entries have been booked for the women's national golf championship and the total list is expected to exceed any previous tournament. They include Mrs. C. T. Stout and the more prominent of the Eastern players, and some newcomers, including Miss Julia A. Mix, of this city, who reached the semi-finals in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association championship last June at Baltusrol and Mrs. H. C. Munn, who has just won the women's trophy at the Hackensack Golf Club.

One encouraging feature of the game of golf at the Plainfield Country Club this season is the interest shown by the women in the various events. A larger percentage than ever of the Plainfield women is taking part in events not only at home, but throughout the State. Among those who have been seeking honors abroad are Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, Miss Maude VanBoskerck, Miss Tracy, Miss Goddard and Mrs. Walter Gaston, and in every instance they have made a most creditable showing.

Charles Kirchner, of this city, who has been a prominent figure in golfing circles this season, and was instrumental in arranging the recent open professional tournament held at VanCortlandt Park, is chairman of a committee to arrange a world's open professional tournament to be held July 11 and 12 next year. Those interested have held a meeting and discussed plans for the next tournament. The executive committee to have sole charge comprise Charles Kirchner, William H. Beers, Harry Easton Pyrke, William C. Freeland and J. P. O'Connell. Correspondence is to be opened at once with the leading players of the world and the committee expects to have such players as Vardon, Braid, Hurd and Taylor play with America's crack players. From the support already given the committee, it is expected that the largest purses ever offered professional golfers will be played for. In addition to eight purses for the regular contestants, prizes will be given each day to those turning in the lowest score. A feature of the tournament is to be a team match between England, Scotland and America for a large purse. The purses are to be made up of voluntary contributions of golfers and those interested in the development of golf in America.

FOOTBALL.

The Alis football team will meet for its first regular practice on the club grounds tomorrow evening. A full attendance is desired as a business meeting is to follow. The team will line up against the Dunellen eleven Saturday.

ROD AND GUN.

DEPUTY COMPTROLLER ORDERED TO RETIRE

STOKES FAILED TO APPROPRIATE FOR HIS SALARY AND HE WILL QUIT.

Trenton, Oct. 4.—Attorney-General McCarter has given an opinion that Deputy Comptroller Isaac Doughton, of Camden, must retire from office October 31, because Governor Stokes failed to approve the item in the general appropriation bill for his salary after that period.

This means that the office of Deputy Comptroller will remain vacant until the Legislature meets and authorizes an appropriation to pay such an officer.

The reason Governor Stokes did not approve the salary item for the Deputy Comptroller was because he did not approve of that official's salary being raised by the appropriation committee. The Governor takes the position that this work should only be by statute.

Despite the fact that he will not get any salary, Doughton will likely remain in office, and work until such time as his salary is fixed and he gets back pay.

WON'T INDICATE WHAT "MIDDLE GROUND" MAY BE

MR. M'CARTER REFUSES TO DISCUSS REFERENCE TO FRANCHISE LIMITATIONS

President Thomas N. McCarter said in his speech at the banquet of the American Street Railway Association in Philadelphia last week that he believed, in view of the public sentiment against unrestricted franchises for public streets, "that somewhere there is a middle ground upon which public sentiment and corporate management may meet in accord." He did not indicate what that "middle ground" might be.

Mr. McCarter was asked if he or the Public Service Corporation would agree to the limitation of franchises in cities, say, of the first class, if the public agreed not to ask for the same restriction in franchises for country districts.

"I have nothing further to say now," President McCarter replied. "It is too long a subject to discuss offhand."

METUCHEN'S GALA DAY.

Town Ablaze with Flags and Bunting in Honor of Visiting Firemen.

Metuchen, Oct. 4.—Brokers and business men from New York, many of them members of the local fire department, were yesterday assisting the citizens of the borough to do honor to their invited guests who came here to participate in the firemen's parade. It is six years since Metuchen had a firemen's parade, and that of yesterday eclipsed all previous celebrations. Nothing was omitted by the committee in charge of the gala day to make it a success. The parade was under the auspices of Eagle Hook and Ladder Company.

The parade was held yesterday morning and there were about 500 firemen in line.

There is a novelty in the engine house, an invention of William A. Smith, a foreman, which is a horse spanking machine. It was gotten up to stir up one of the horses which was lazy. By means of electricity a whip stirs up the horse as soon as the alarm is rung.

LYNCHING THREATS.

Policemen Saves Stabber from Hands of an Infuriated Crowd.

Prompt action by Patrolman Max Lazarus was all that prevented early yesterday an angry mob that was clamoring for the life of William Webster, a young negro, of No. 23 East Twenty-first street, Bayonne, from carrying out their plans of violence.

Webster had stabbed in the stomach Peter Fitzsimmons, twenty years old, of No. 597 Avenue C. The wounded man had been carried to the hospital, probably mortally hurt.

The trouble that resulted in the stabbing started on a trolley car going to Bergen Point. According to the police, Webster and a friend, Charles Foster, of No. 467 Avenue C, talked in a manner that shocked women passengers. They were taken to task by Fitzsimmons and the three got into an argument.

When the car reached Twenty-seventh street the three men were in a fight. Suddenly Fitzsimmons threw up his hands and shouted "I'm stabbed!" The car was stopped and Fitzsimmons made his way into William Cassidy's saloon, where were a number of his friends. He called to thm to catch his assailant.

Fitzsimmons' friends hurried out in search of Webster. He had alighted from the car, and seeing the crowd coming toward him, ran down the avenue until he fell into the arms of Patrolman Lazarus, near Twenty-first street.

"Save me, they're going to kill me!" Webster cried.

In a moment the crowd was on top of him, crying "Lynch him!" Lazarus drew his revolver, and pushing the terrified negro ahead of him, kept the crowd at bay. He took Webster to the station house.

Fitzsimmons' ante-mortem statement was taken, and he identified Webster as his assailant.

OSCAR BOWERS KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT EL MORA

Two Other Plainfielders Hurt When Trolley Car Crashes into Furniture Van.

CREW LOCKED UP

Eye Witnesses Declare Motorman to Blame—Victim Had Completed Preparations for His Postponed Marriage.

Speeding down a steep grade on the Aldene trolley line just east of ElMora at 11 o'clock last night, a car of the closed type crashed into the rear of a heavy furniture van belonging to William Hand & Son, killing instantly Oscar Bowers, of East Third street, this city, the driver, and injuring Albert Nolan, colored, of East Sixth street, and Milton Hand, of East Second street. The big vehicle and its load were almost completely demolished and the horses attached were badly cut. The drivers of two vans following, also belonging to Captain Hand, hurriedly called physicians and the ambulance from the Elizabeth General Hospital, but Bowers had died almost as soon as he touched the ground.

The force of the collision threw him eighteen feet from the van and he landed squarely upon his head. His skull was fractured in two places, just over the left eye and back of the right ear, either one of which would have proved fatal. Nolan was hurled to the left and was also rendered unconscious, but was revived after doctors had worked over him an hour. Hand, who was wrapped in a blanket and sleeping on a couch inside the vehicle, escaped with a severe shaking up and a few bad bruises. He attributes his good luck to the thickness of the covering about him.

As soon as the body of Bowers had been taken to Martin's morgue at Elizabeth and Nolan and Hand had been sent to Plainfield, the other drivers jumped on the trolley car and directed the crew to proceed until they met Patrolman Isaac Booth. Both were taken into custody and locked up for the night, but will be bailed out by the company today. They described themselves as James Terry, motorman, and Hugh McCaffrey, conductor, both of Elizabeth.

The three vans left this city at 8 o'clock last night bound for New York, and were proceeding along Westfield avenue, El Mora, in single file, the one driven by Bowers in the lead. Just before the Elizabeth city line is reached there is a down grade and the vehicles were on this when the car came up behind them. According to the drivers, it was bowling along with every bit of power on, yet the motorman was not sounding his bell.

The two rear vans were to one side of the road, while the first was directly on the tracks. The car struck it from behind with a trrific crash, the force all but derailing it. Bowers, Nolan and Hand had absolutely no warning, as the whole affair occurred so quickly it was over before the other men realized what had happened. Motorman Terry was pinned in the wreckage, but escaped injury, as did the conductor. It was bright moonlight at the time and it is a mystery as to how he failed to see the obstruction. As yet he has made no statement.

The accident is doubly unfortunate from the fact that Bowers had completed all arrangements for his wedding next month, once before postponed because of the death of his mother. He had purchased all his household furniture, and his bride-to-be, Miss Eva Sergeant, of East Second street, finished her trousseau a few days ago. The young man had been in the employ of Captain Hand for five years and was always regarded by him as one of the most trustworthy and capable drivers in the city. He very seldom went out of the city, as he remained on duty nights as driver of No. 2 fire engine, for which Captain Hand provides the horses. He resided with his father, Ira C. Bowers, on East Third street and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Robert Wood and Miss Ray Bowers, and two brothers, George and Ira Bowers. The body will be brought from Elizabeth today.

POLICE CHIEFS' OUTING

Annual Banquet of Superior Officers of New Jersey at Lorraine.

ON THURSDAY, OCT. 17

Judge Runyon and James E. Martine Invited to Speak—Former Governor Voorhees to be Toastmaster.

The Superior Officers' Association of New Jersey will hold its annual outing at Lorraine on Tuesday, October 17, and prominent men throughout the State will be present as guests of the police chiefs. Chief P. S. Kiely, of this city, is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees will act as toastmaster and speeches will be made by United States Senator John Kean, Governor Edward C. Stokes, Frank Bergen and William N. Runyon.

Among the invited guests from Plainfield are James E. Martine, Mayor James F. Buckle, Police Commissioners Andrews, Marshall, Ivins and McCardell, and Charles A. Reed.

Mr. Martine was assigned to make a speech. The topic assigned to him was "Our Country." The "farmer-orator" sent the following letter of regret to Chief Kiely today:

Plainfield, Oct. 5, 1905.

Patrick Kiely, Esq.,
Chief of Police of Plainfield:

Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your kind and most flattering invitation to be present at the banquet of The Police Association of the State of New Jersey, to be held October 17, and to speak to the sentiment and toast "Our Country."

I assure you it would be a great pleasure for me to be with you were it not that I have arranged to be absent from this grand and beautiful State on that day.

It has been my pleasure to have been acquainted with many of the police force of this State, and feel that the people may point with pride and satisfaction to the force, as true guardians of peace and law.

The very suggestion of the toast, "Our Country," enthuses and inspires me. A country grand and glorious beyond the most vivid imagination is ours, blessed with a government whose touch is so light as to be scarcely felt, it is almost a divine creation and the emulation and envy of the people of the civilized globe.

Respectfully,
J. E. MARTINE.

STUCK FAST TO THE THEATRE SWITCHBOARD

ELECTRICIAN HAD PAINFUL TIME WHILE COMEDY IS IN PLAY.

One of the fuses in the switchboard of the New Plainfield theatre blew out Tuesday night, and Charles Mumford, an electrician, was sent for to put it back into shape. He began to work on the job while the play "David Harum" was in progress. In fastening a wire his hand came in contact with a bit of metal that was getting the full charge from the board, and he received the full benefit of it.

He stuck fast and yelled for help. His cries weren't at all subdued, but it happened to be a noisy spot in the play, and nobody in the front of the house heard them. One of the stagehands jumped to the switch and released Mumford by turning off the current.

The electrician was badly shocked and suffered a lot from kinked and contracted muscles. Several fingers were painfully burned. He wasn't in any great danger, but it hurt just as much as if he had been.

Roland Randolph, the well known baritone, of Newark, will sing and the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will furnish special music. Mr. McConaughy will also be at the Y. M. C. A. building on Saturday evening, when he will answer questions and give information of interest about the young men of India.

RIG FOUND; BOY GONE

Liveryman's Adopted Son Believed to Have Stolen Jones' Horse.

SEARCHING FOR HIM

He Will Be Sent to Reformatory if Captured—Man Located in One Place, Runabout in Another.

F. V. L. Jones' horse and runabout, which disappeared mysteriously from in front of his residence Tuesday night, were found yesterday. Charles Bruyster, a thirteen-year-old boy, is believed to have taken the rig. The boy is missing.

News of the horse was received at noon yesterday by Chief Kiely, over the telephone, from William Kelly, of Oak Tree. Kelly notified the chief that he had found a horse standing in his yard early in the morning. The description of the animal tallied so exactly with that of the Jones horse that there was no doubt of its identity. Kelly said it had no harness on except the bridle. At two o'clock A. B. Tappen, of New Durham, a small place beyond Oak Tree, on the road to New Brunswick, telephoned that a runabout answering the description of the Jones wagon had been found in the roadway near his place. A set of harness, with the exception of the bridle, was found near it.

Yesterday morning, before word of the horse or wagon had been received, the police learned that Bruysten, the suspected boy, had disappeared from the home of W. L. Callahan, of Woodland avenue, his foster father. Callahan is a liveryman, and the Jones horse was kept at his stable. Callahan has been in the habit of sending the boy to the Jones house every evening for the rig, and when the police gathered these facts the obvious connection between Bruysten's disappearance and that of the boy's guilt was removed when it was learned from some of Bruysten's champions that he had said on several occasions that it was his plan to run away to the West with the Jones rig.

It is supposed the boy drove at full speed to New Durham and then rested to form plans for his journey. It is surmised that he decided to continue on horseback, and unhitched the mare for that purpose, riding to the neighborhood of Oak Tree. What led to his abandonment of the mare is a mystery. The police believe he lost his nerve and turned her loose.

The authorities of all the surrounding sections have been asked to hunt for the boy. Mr. Callahan adopted him when he was little more than a child, bringing him up as a member of the family. Until this escapade he had given no hint of depravity. If he is captured Mr. Callahan will have him put into the Jamesburg Reform School.

Mr. Jones went to Oak Tree and New Durham yesterday and identified the horse and carriage. He brought them back with him.

MISS FISK BRIDE OF WILLIAM S. ROGERS

SOCIETY WELL REPRESENTED AT NUPTIALS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Society was well represented at the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Fisk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fisk, and William Spoor Rogers, yesterday afternoon at 4 in the First Presbyterian church in Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. John Dixon, assisted by the pastor of First church, the Rev. Dr. Henry Collin Minton. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, of this city.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Annie Fisk, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Katherine Hall, Miss Mary A. Rogers, of Omaha; Miss Mary K. Howell, of Morristown; Miss Mathilde Hamill and Miss Lucy Slade were bridesmaids.

Herbert M. Rogers, of Omaha, was best man. The ushers were Howard McClenahan, of Princeton; Frederick Geissenhainer, of New York; Ernest H. Webb, of Trenton; Dr. Charles B. Worden, of Philadelphia; Bruce Bedford, of Trenton; Leonard Kellogg, of New York, and Barker G. Hamill, of Trenton.

Following the ceremony there was a reception for the members of the Fisk and Rogers families at the Fisk home, 474 Rutherford avenue, Trenton.

Mr. Rogers formerly resided in Omaha, going to Trenton several years ago to the John A. Roebling's Sons Company. He had charge of the firm's exhibit at the Paris exposition and also at St. Louis.

ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

Mrs. William R. Stabbery, Despondent, Swallows Carbolic Acid.

CONDITION SERIOUS

Three Physicians Quickly in Attendance—Had Brooded Over Recent Auto Accident.

In a fit of despondency and worriment, Mrs. William R. Stanbery, of Fanwood, swallowed a large dose of carbolic acid with suicidal intent at her home this morning. Her condition was discovered soon afterward and physicians summoned, but her life is still hanging in the balance. Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, and Drs. M. B. Long and Marcus L. Clawson, of this city, were quickly at her side and have since been in constant attendance. Her condition is aggravated from the fact that she is of a delicate physique and high nervous temperament.

Ever since the automobile accident at Dunellen, two months ago, Mrs. Stanbery has constantly worried. She was a close friend of Mrs. Westphal, who lost her life at that time, and her death depressed Mrs. Stanbery.

The subsequent suit instituted by Oscar Harrison against Mr. Stanbery, which was won by the former, also added to Mrs. Stanbery's worry, and her condition was such as to give her family and intimate friends much concern.

THREW HOT STOVE OUT

Queer Protest Over Unsatisfactory Meal By Colored Boarder.

DISREGARDED BURNS

William Williams' Exploit Costs Him $5 in the City Court Despite Penitent Mien.

Under the influence of bad whiskey and angry feelings, William Williams, colored, went the storied individual who stole the hot stove one better last night. He took an active stove in his boarding house apart and flung the pieces out of the window, by way of a protest against a meal that didn't please him.

Williams came to the boarding house at 445 West Third street at 11 o'clock very drunk. He demanded something to eat and the housekeeper set out a cold lunch. He was dissatisfied with it and expressed his displeasure by trying to wreck the house. After throwing all the loose things within reach around, he pulled the stove, in which a hot fire was burning. He dumped the fire out of the window and threw the pieces of stove after it. He burned his fingers considerably, but each fresh burn only accentuated his determination to reduce the stove to scraps, and the offending piece of iron was flung out with increased emphasis. The demolition of the stove seemed to cool Williams' vexation and he paused to look with satisfaction at the result of his spirited protest.

Roundsman Flynn broke up the self-admiration society and Williams had a night on a steel bunk to figure just how much satisfaction he got out of the jamboree.

He was evidently doubtful of its value as a regular form of amusement by the time court opened, because he pleaded guilty in a humble and penitent tone.

"It's very nice of you to realize your fault without going into windy exhortations," said Judge Runyon, "but the disorder was of a rather serious nature and I'll have to make it $5 or twenty days." Williams paid.

Ashley, wife of the pastor of the church, an entertainment will be given in Reform Hall, on Thursday night, November 19. Two plays will be given, "Docture Cure All," and "The Fairy of the Fountain." Mrs. Ashley will be assisted by local talent.

BOROUGH BOYS BEATEN

City Lads Won Opening Game in High School Football Series.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 0

Only Touchdown Made in the First Half by Freeman—Douglas Kicked the Goal.

Interscholastic football opened for the season yesterday afternoon with a fast and close game between the city and borough High School elevens. Apart from the interest that naturally centered about the first appearance of the two teams in the field in opposing formation, there was lots of real interest in the meeting as a game pure and simple. The city boys won, 6 to 0.

The borough eleven proved a big surprise. They displayed a degree of strength that was utterly unexpected, even by their supporters, who frankly looked for a defeat by a big margin. As it turned out, the city team was forced to work itself sick to win by the narrow margin that gave them victory. A great difference in weight in favor of P. H. S. was really all that caused the fortunes of the battle to turn as they did. Everything considered, N. P. H. S. outshone her rival.

As far as first games may be depended upon for indications in form, the game gives those interested in the teams their first real idea of what may be expected of the combinations during the season. The performance of P. H. S. was not, on the whole, very encouraging. The boys were slow on signals, fumbled the ball badly twice. Heavier by about ten pounds to the man than their opponents, they were forced to struggle every inch of the way to make their one goal, and after that was attained were never within striking distance of the enemy's vital spot again. Martin, the left end, however, made a brilliant showing. He tore off the only end run of any length, and played a rattling game all around. He is credited with being the fastest end P. H. S. has had in her line in five years, and promises to be a big factor in whatever success the team achieves.

The borough boys played a snappy game, all the better in contrast with the certain amount of unwieldiness with which their opponents moved. The line held well, with the exception of Ammerman, and they gave a lot of promise of developing into one of the teamiest, headiest combinations the borough school has turned out. They were pure pluck, and the dogged, successful way in which they held their heavy opponents down drew admiring comment from the rival camp.

The game went mainly in mass plays. Martin's run for fifteen yards was the only thing of its kind that occurred. Plainfield made most of her gains through guard, and N. P. H. S. found the going easiest through tackle.

In the first half the ball was mainly in N. P. H. S. territory. It went down the line slowly, the borough boys fighting every inch of the way, and it was not until within two minutes of the whistle that the goal was made. Martin made the scoring possible with his run, going around right end. He carried the pigskin to within a yard of the goal, and Stuart Freeman was shoved through center for the touch. Capt. Douglas kicked the goal neatly.

The second half was a series of give-and-take smashes. Both sides bucked the line desperately, but the ball stayed practically in the center of the field and neither goal was actually in danger at any time.

Two of the players suffered in the punishing assaults. Guion Fountain and Loizeaux were knocked out, and the former, although he stayed in the game, was noticeably weaker in play as a result of his punishment.

The lineup:

P. H. S.—Martin, left end; Guion Fountain, left tackle; Osgood, left guard; Leggett and Fluck, center; Gideon Fountain, right guard; Todd, right tackle; Loizeaux, right end; H. Freeman and Flanders, quarterback; Douglas (Capt.), left halfback; Lyness, right halfback; S. Freeman, fullback.

N. P. H. S.—A. Van Arsdale, left end; Burtis, left tackle; Ammerman, left guard; Powlison, center; Fisher, right guard; Day, right tackle; M. Van Arsdale, right end; Peacock, quarterback; Mundy, left halfback; Webster (Capt.), right halfback; Matthews, fullback.

Referee—Lindsey Best. Umpire—Morris Brokaw; Linesmen—Titsworth and Jones. Timers—Kenney and Roe.

Missionary Alliance Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Missionary Alliance will be held tomorrow night in the W. C. T. U. rooms. Rev. Dr. Wilson will be the speaker.

REPUBLICANS NOMINATE AT ELIZABETH TODAY

MR. IVINS NAMED CLERK

Commissioner Accepts Position on Board to Save Expense to City.

NO CHANGES NOW

Additions to the Force to be Made After January 1—Chairman Has High Esteem for Chief Kiely.

Its announced purpose in running the department being efficiency with economy, the police commission has chosen one of its own number for the position of clerk. The member selected for the place is Commissioner DeWitt C. Ivins. The appointment was made at a meeting of the commission at police headquarters last night.

As the naming of a clerk would mean the expenditure of at least $200 a year, the commission came to the opinion that that sum could be saved the taxpayers if one of their own number would accept the position. Mr. Ivins volunteered to do the work and his offer was accepted.

Chairman Amos Andrews in speaking of the commission's plans said to a representative of The Daily Press today that there would be no changes at present. He announced that the councilmanic police committee, which is now out of office, would be asked to come into a conference with their successors.

"We can get some information regarding the work from the old board," said Mr. Andrews, "and I think they will be glad to help us where they can."

Asked whether there would be any additional patrolmen appointed, the chairman stated: "Not at the present time. There will be some additions after the first of the year. We recognize the fact that there is need of better police service in certain sections of the city and intend to see to it that it is given."

The commissioner added that there would be no radical changes in the department. He paid a tribute to the efficiency of Chief Kiely and the personnal of the force. "There are some things to be attended to as soon as possible and we will try to make the service as efficient as possible, at the same time being as economical as we can," he said.

30TH REGIMENT VETS AWAIT ANNUAL REUNION

NUMBER OF PLAINFIELDERS AMONG THEM—NELSON RUNYON FOR PRES.

Somerville will be the Mecca for all surviving members of the Thirtieth New Jersey Volunteers in this section next Wednesday, when the fifteenth annual reunion of the old regiment will be held. Plainfield will be prominently represented at the gathering, over a dozen of the veterans living here. Among them are Nelson Runyon, Charles Randolph, Theodore Runyon, J. Leonce Mundy, Randolph Thorn, Peter V. Weaver, Samuel Moore, John B. Stryker, John Giddes, Jacob Manning and Benjamin Rogers. All, or practically all, of them will attend the reunion.

There has been only one death among the Thirtieth Regiment survivors in Plainfield during the past year, that of Capt. J. F. Hubbard, the veteran head of the Board of Freeholders. Capt. Hubbard was president of the association, and some form of resolution expressive of the organization's deep regret over his death and of its high regard for his character will undoubtedly be passed.

It is very likely that Nelson Runyon will be chosen as Capt. Hubbard's successor. The discussion relative to the succession has developed a strong sentiment in favor of Mr. Runyon.

The reunion will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, with a business meeting. Dinner will be served after the meeting at noon.

Released Only to Be Arrested.

Benjamin Brown, of this city, who yesterday morning completed serving a three months' sentence in jail for having committed an assault and battery on his wife, was at once turned over to officers from Newark and taken to that city to answer before the courts there on the charge of having three years ago stolen an express package valued at $75. Although but twenty-eight years of age, Brown has been an inmate of the State Prison twice.

Charles N. Codding Chairman of Union County Convention.

A GOOD PLATFORM

List of Plainfield Delegates—Contest Over Shrievalty—Ackerman Makes a Speech.

Union county's Republicans through their regularly chosen delegates, are in session at Jacobs' theatre, Elizabeth, this afternoon. The object of the convention is to choose candidates for a county ticket and to make a platform. Everything is already fixed except the shrievalty nomination and it is not altogether an uncertainty.

Former County Chairman Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, is the permanent chairman and the list of vice presidents includes prominent party men in the county.

The convention was called to order shortly after 3 o'clock by County Chairman Frank H. Smith. Mr. Smith made a few brief remarks, paying a tribute to his predecessor, the late Assemblyman E. S. Corne, and outlining the objects of the convention. After the call was read, the various committees were announced.

Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, will be nominated for State Senator to succeed Judge Joseph Cross. The speech placing his name before the convention will be made by City Judge William N. Runyon. Mr. Ackerman is expected to make his speech of acceptance before the delegates adjourn. There is no opposition to his candidacy and a big demonstration in his honor is expected.

Summit, Rahway, Elizabeth and Cranford will each present a favorite son for the honor of succeeding Sheriff B. F. Coriell. Ruppert Franklin, who told the convention last year that Summit would be on hand this time with a candidate for sheriff, will nominate Dr. Lawrence, of that place. C. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, will make a speech in behalf of Robert Kirkland. Robert Wright, of Rahway, will be named by Horace Gore-Kelly, and Emmor K. Adams by E. D. Horton.

There are several candidates for the third place on the Assembly ticket. Peter Tillman, of Rahway, and Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, will be renominated. The third man will be Everard K. Tucker, of Elizabeth.

The Plainfield delegates to the convention are:

First ward—Amos Andrews, G. A. Ballentyne, Uzal B. Crane, Edwin B. Maynard, Percy A. McVoy, Caspar Stadele.

Second ward—Charles H. Hand, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, R. A. Meeker, Ralph Miner, F. L. Montgomery, W. N. Runyon.

Third ward—F. H. Andrews, B. Frank Coriell, Leslie M. Daniel, Alex. Muir, R. F. Murray, D. E. Titsworth.

Fourth ward—Elmer D. Cutting, R. B. Dalley, Fred H. Firstbrook, George E. Greenleaf, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., W. G. Hutchcroft, E. E. Jackson, John A. Kriney, F. DeW. Randolph.

The platform will laud President Roosevelt for his excellent administration particularly congratulating him for his work in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan. It also recommends limited franchises, a plank being devoted to an endorsement of that policy. Another feature is a recommendation to the Legislature that it deal rigidly with insurance companies of all kinds and that those having rights in New Jersey be made to handle their incomes as trust funds of the policy holders.

Mr. Counihan Responds to an Appeal

The members of "The Windy City" company, which was to have shown in this city tonight, landed in town today practically stranded. They appealed to Manager Counihan, of the theatre, to assist them, and he quickly responded by giving each enough to carry them wherever they wanted to go. The show was booked for Mr. Counihan by the syndicate, but after viewing the performance at Perth Amboy Tuesday night he at once decided it was not up to the standard demanded by Plainfield theatregoers and declared it off.

Horse Disappears from Stable.

A horse belonging to Swift & Co. disappeared from the stable in the rear of 243 Somerset street last night. The police have not yet determined as to whether it broke out of its own accord or was stolen. The animal is described as a bay mare about 15 1-2 hands high.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Merely a Social Affair.

The dinner given to Governor Stokes and other States officials by Daniel O'Day, vice president of the Standard Oil Company, was merely a social affair. It was not intended as a Good Samaritan act—the pouring in of oil and wine—because the report had reached the Rockefeller people that the New Jersey administration has been sorely wounded by the recent primaries in Essex.—Newark News.

Poor Chance for Jerseymen.

New Jersey is spending a lot of money every year for the protection of game and fish, and is maintaining a small regiment of game wardens, but between the foreign gun clubs which are monopolizing South Jersey, and the capitalists who are buying large tracts of land and all the lakes in North Jersey, there is not much hunting left for the people of the State. It is almost time for a law prohibiting non-residents to hunt in New Jersey, and for the Forestry Commission to secure control of the lakes for the benefit of the public.—Cape May Wave.

The Prohibition Old Guard.

The Prohibition Old Guard in New Jersey numbers about 6,000, more or less, and it is entirely unaffected by national or State questions. Equal taxation, franchise limitations, and other questions can settle themselves so far as the Old Guard is concerned. The railroad corporations might carry off the State government bodily and put the unhappy people in servitude, but that would be no concern to the Old Guard, whose eyes are steadfastly and unalterably fixed on the one enemy, Rum. But, after all, there is something to admire in this blind adherence to a hopeless cause. It shows faith and constancy.—Newark Advertiser.

SHOT BOYS AFTER NUTS.

Farmer Fires Buckshot at Lads in Tree—Four Hurt.

New Brunswick, Oct. 5.—There is considerable indignation here over the deliberate shooting at half a dozen boys Monday afternoon by a farmer. The boys had gone nutting after school, and while strolling along the road saw some apples over a fence. They were soon over the fence filling their pockets. The farmer drove them off and the boys departed. Some distance further down the road they discovered a chestnut tree and went over the fence again. They did not realize that the same farmer owned this tree. They climbed the tree and shook it. The farmer fired two loads of buckshot at them, wounding four of the boys.

The most badly injured was Barnwell Valiant, son of the Rev. Mr. Valiant, of the Pitman Methodist Episcopal church. Twenty-two shot had pierced the skin.

COST OF GETTING CUT UP.

Abdomen, $50 to $500; Finger, $5; Leg, $50, Doctors Agree.

Atlantic City, Oct. 5.—At the opening session of the New Jersey State Homoeopathic Society at the Hotel Chalfonte yesterday a resolution was adopted fixing rates of fees. It was agreed to charge from $50 to $500 for abdominal operations. Amputating a finger is to be $5; amputation of a leg at the hip will cost from $50 to $150. Ordinary calls will be from $1 to $3. This society and the New Jersey Medical Society have joined hands to fight osteopaths, who nearly succeeded in being recognized and licensed by the last Legislature.

Damns Cost 50 Cents Apiece.

Orange, Oct. 5—Recorder Edward L. Cook, of Madison, has fined James Mack $2, or 50 cents per damn, for swearing at a negro woman. When the Recorder asked the woman how many damns Mack had used, she said she guessed about four. The Recorder then passed sentence thus: "Mack," said he, "you are fined 50 cents per damn." It was Recorder Cook who asserted recently that a "woman's tongue is a concealed weapon."

EQUAL TAX LIVES AS POLITICAL ISSUE

REPUBLICANS FIND IT VERY DIFFICULT TO KEEP QUESTION DOWN.

The State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, stirred by recent popular upheaval in Essex and similar signs all over the State, has called a conference of its members at the State House, Trenton, Tuesday, October 24, for the purpose of taking final action on its report to the next Legislature on the question of the taxation of the main stem and tangible personal property of the steam railroads of the State.

The matter is under investigation by the State Board, pursuant to a joint resolution adopted by the last Legislature and signed by Governor Stokes. The resolution was introduced March 28 after a caucus of the Republican members.

The Legislature has already passed the Duffield bill for the taxation of second-class railroad property at local rates for the benefit of municipalities, having been forced into such a move by the public demand following the campaign of Charles C. Black, Democratic candidate for governor. But the Republican State administration determined that this sop to the people was all the railroad taxation legislation it would grant, in order not to lose the friendship and support of the railroad corporations.

Assemblyman Colby, now leading the fight in Essex county against Boss Lentz, chairman of the State Tax Board, introduced a bill for the taxation of main stem railroad property at local rates. Under the lead of Assemblyman Duffield, now assistant attorney general, the Republicans, barring Colby, fought the measure to the last ditch. Duffield had it referred to a committee and that was the last heard of it.

The Jersey City bill for the equal taxation of railroad property, known as the Record bill, was then pending in the house also. The caucus referred to was called to arrange for the throttling of these measures and keep the Republican administration square with the railroads. The caucus was a lively affair. All the pressure the State G. O. P. machine could muster was brought to bear, and when the joint resolution was introduced ordering that all further matters relating to the taxation of railroads be referred to the new State Board of Taxation it went through with bells on.

The subject of the taxation of main stem and tangible personal property of the railroads has been under consideration by the members of the Board, and at the meeting October 24 it is expected the matter of getting the final draft of the report in shape will be taken up.

Coles. The devotional exercises were led by Miss Mary E. Howlett and Current Events were given by Miss Mary E. Holton.

PARK CLUB BOWLERS WILL ENTER TOURNAMENT

MANY CANDIDATES ARE TRYING FOR THE FIRST TEAM.

The enthusiastic bowlers of the Park Club, under the leadership of F. O. Ball, have begun practice on the club alleys for the purpose of making the first team in the Central Journal bowling tournament, which starts during November. It has always been a source of regret to the Park Club members that with the material at hand the bowling team has not been able to secure a better position in the annual tournaments, and an effort will be made this year to land in first place.

Among those who are trying for the first team are Herbert Rogers, Morgan Townsend, William Barlow, Ralph Willis and many others. Mr. Ball met the likely candidates a few nights ago and a conference was held as to the prospects for the season. Mr. Ball gave some timely hints and suggestions tending to arouse the enthusiasm of the members, in the hope that something may be accomplished. The trouble in past years has been that as soon as the first team was picked the other members would cease to practice, giving the captain no material to draw from in case his regulars failed. It is hoped to remedy this trouble this year.

The Central Journal bowling prize will be competed for this year by the Park Club, the Westfield Club, Roselle Casino, Cranford Casino, Bayonne Bay Boat Club and the Jersey City Club, all being in last year's tournament. Every club has a strong representative team and the series of games this year promises to be unsually interesting, as the teams are evenly matched.

Practice is held at the Park Club every week and Captain Ball is anxious that there should be a large list of candidates to select for the first team.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Stafford says he prints a large number of wedding invitations because he does his work well.

Whenever you need music for social affairs of any kind, have A. F. Naylor, of East Fifth street, provide it.

For legal work of all kinds consult F. J. Huff, Esq., of West Front street, and it will be promptly attended to.

A guest at the Hotel Kensington, North avenue, feels at home. Comfort is the chief characteristic of the Kensington.

Have you purchased your new fall hat yet? If not go to O. M. Dunham's store on Park avenue. The stock is large and the prices right.

The workmanship and the quality of the materials that go into Valentine Gas Engine Co. jobs is better than first class. Sycamore street.

A feature of Timbo's restaurant on North avenue is the fact that the high standard of excellence in meals and service is maintained every day.

John J. Leahy, the Richmond street plumber, would like a share of your patronage, believing that his work and prices will be satisfactory.

Putnam & DeGraw, the dry goods merchants, invite your inspection of their new fall and winter stock of goods, including laces, embroideries, gloves and general dry goods.

Mr. Pipesmoker, try Bagley's new hash-cut Yoc-o-May. Rich and cool-smoking. M. C. Dobbins, Park avenue, has it. Also the mild, delightful Yara and Ultra Pura cigars.

Fish is a doubtful thing to buy in some places. All dealers do not always treat you right. Buy of Fred Ivamy, West Second street, and be sure your fish will be fresh and good.

Wise is the young man, in business or out, who starts an account in the First National Bank. If he keeps adding to it, however little, he will be independent of illness and pecuniary loss in his old age. The wise man leaves his savings account alone until it is twenty years old.

L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, is making extensive repairs at his store, and when completed he will be better able than ever to handle the steadily increasing trade. Handsome showcases and large plate glass mirrors will replace the old style fixtures. In the meantime Mr. Randolph is taking care of his trade in the same efficient manner.

The stamp books of women who trade at the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Store, West Front street, are always filling rapidly. The A. & P. Company is very liberal with its stamps. And they are liberal in other ways—the right ways. Liberality in stamps alone will not win trade. But the A. & P. store is liberal in the values they give for the money received.

Thomas Mimford and family, who have spent a part of the summer at Deal Beach, have returned to Truell Court.

Mrs. Rodman and her daughter, Miss Elsie Rodman, of New York, are stopping for a time at Truell Inn on Park avenue.

Samuel Clouston, of West Front street, returned yesterday after a month's sojourn at Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Selection from the Books Added to the Public Library During the Summer.

Part 1.

(Part 2 will appear next week.)

Arnold, H. L.—Complete cost keeper.

Arnold, H. L.—Factory manager.

"Practical books for those whose work is the keeping track of the financial side of large businesses."

Barbara, pseud.—At the sign of the fox, by the author of a "Garden of a Commuter's Wife."

"In short, a very feminine sentimental book, but not nearly so good reading as, say, the same author's 'Woman errant.'" N. Y. Times.

Bateson, Mary.—Mediaeval England, 1066-1350.

"Deals largely with social conditions, feudalism, monasticism, etc."

"It is well planned, clearly and simply written and amply illustrated." Athenaeum.

Braum, Emil.—Bakers book. 2v.

"Probably the most complete work on the subject of baking, especially full in descriptions of all kinds of bread. Especially valuable for bakers, for hotel and boardinghouse keepers and suggestive also to the private housekeeper."

Brierley, J.—Problems of living.

Brierley, J.—Studies of the soul.

"Two thoughtful and suggestive books with high ethical standard."

Browning, P. E.—Introduction to the rarer elements.

"Compilation of the scattering and oftentimes difficultly accessible literature of the subject. . . . The author's treatment of this quite intricate subject is clear and concise." Journal American chemical society.

Chesnut, M. B.—Diary from Dixie, 1861-65.

"Mrs. Chesnut was the wife of one of the most prominent ante-bellum leaders. Her relations were all of the wealthy slave holding class. Written from day to day, these papers reflect the spirt of the times, better perhaps, that any other account that we have. . . . It is on the subject of negroes and slavery that Mrs. Chesnut's diary will prove most valuable to historians, but the general reader will be most interested in the accounts of the home life of the beleaguered people." Dial.

Conrad, Joseph.—Nostromo, a tale of the seaboard.

"A perfect amazing book. Opinions may vary, according to the varying degrees of comprehension brought to bear upon it, with reference to its interest, its charm, its artistic completeness, etc. . . . There are whole pages in which every word seems deeply charged with thought, though every sentence is vivid and melodious. Nostromo is a romantic tale of politics, adventure and intrigue in a maritime republic of South America, yet before all else it is a novel of character." Athenaeum.

Considere, Armand.—Experimental researches on reinforced concrete.

"One of the best books on a subject of immediate importance to engineers."

Cutting, Mary.—Little stories of courtship.

"Tales of plain, everyday, middle-class people—people who are not over-burdened with the world's goods, but who are educated, cultured and refined—in short, the people we meet daily about us." N. Y. Times.

Dickinson, Emily.—Poems. New. ed.

"Those who are genuinely interested in poetry will like to possess this specimen of the real thing." Athenaeum.

Frenssen, Gustav.—Jorn Uhl.

"Really is a fine novel and deserves to be taken seriously. It has its limitations no doubt, and in the matter of construction it may leave something to be desired, but it is a thoroughly honest and sincere piece of work, and it gives a picture of pleasant life in Schleswig-Holstein that is altogether admirable. . . His insight into human character too, is marvellously keen." Athenaeum.

Grant, Robert.—The Orchid.

"'The Orchid' is an interesting example of a psychological problem, worked out along lines almost purely realistic." Bookman.

Griggs, Edward Howard.—Moral education.

"It is a decided contribution to the philosophy and method of education. Unlike much of current educational discussion, the parent is not here made subservient to the teacher or entirely ignored." Leslie W. Sprague in the International Journal of Ethics.

Harper, William R.—Trend in higher education.

"The majority of the chapters, including all those of importance, discuss either college or university questions or religious and theological education. . . Dr. Harper takes a vigorous and businesslike attitude, modern but not radical, and his general conclusions are likely to be more widely accepted by the university men of the country than those of any other writer of recent years." Dial.

Hay, John.—Poems, including Pike county ballads.

"The complete poems of the late Secretary of State."

Hewlett, Maurice.—Fond adventures.

"Not one of these stories is lacking in intrinsic interest, yet one's dominant impression in closing the book is not of any of the characters or events, but of the cleverness of Mr. Hewlett." Forum.

Hewlett, Maurice.—Fool errant; memoirs of Francis Antony Strelley, Esq., citizen of Lucca.

"An enthusiastic, poetic young Englishman devoid of all conventionality finds himself in the highly conventional Italy of the eighteenth century. . . The language is sometimes rather too unconventional also." Publisher's Weekly.

Higginson, Thomas Wentworth.—History of the United States.

"The history is complete from the coming of the Norsemen to the present time, 1905."

Holyoake, C. J.—Bygones worth remembering.

"As a contribution to the history of the political and social progress of the nation these 'Bygones' are of great value." Athenaeum.

What has become of the "Dove of Peace?" He has not registered a kick this week.

"Rube" Oldring continued his fast work for the New York Americans on Tuesday and won the plaudits of the crowd.

This is ideal baseball weather and a large crowd is expected at the Oval Saturday to see the two champion teams play.

"Warry" McLaughlin is anxious to pitch against his former rivals, the Holyoke team, and will do his utmost to win for the Daabsters.

"Christy" Mathewson, of the Giants, has made a record this season of which any pitcher might feel proud. He has lost only seven games this season.

"Jack" O'Neill, the popular catcher of the local team, makes friends wherever he goes. He has won the admiration of all the local fans by his conscientious work this season.

Local fans who hoped to see the first game in the post-season series will be disappointed to learn that it will be played in Philadelphia. However, the second game will be at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, October 10.

The contest on Saturday between the Daabsters and Holyoke will give the fans an opportunity to compare the strength of the Connecticut League champions with Jersey City, one of the best of the Eastern League clubs.

It will be up to the management of the Plainfield Club to fly the pennant next season. Manager Daab expects to have a staff placed in the new grounds from which the well earned flag will float every day there is a game.

The post-season series between the Giants and Athletics will begin with the first game in Philadelphia on Monday, October 9, and the succeeding games will be alternated between the two cities. Manager Daab expects to have the Giants here on Saturday, October 21, for the final game of the local season.

In addition to the presentation of the pennant to the Daabsters at the banquet on Saturday night, October 14, several other good things will be provided, including several good speeches and songs. The toastmaster has not yet been chosen, but it is expected that Judge William N. Runyon will present the pennant.

With Smiling Jimmy Montross in the box in his old-time form, the Plainfield A. C. had no trouble in winning their game with the Manhattans, of Graceland. The score was 6 to 2. The game was well played, but the Plainfielders were sharp in their fielding and timely in hitting, and held the lead safely throughout.

Jimmy pitched a swift and heady game; the opposing batsmen got nine hits, but the biffs were all scattered, and they were only allowed to score in the eighth, after the Plainfields had a snug lead. George Allen caught Jimmy like the steady veteran he is and the rest of the team fielded faultlessly. Jimmy was effective at the stick. Johnny Jacot, the star of the [illegible] Y. M. C. A. team of last year, shared honors at the bat with the smiling twirler, wrenching hits whenever runners looked to him for advancement; he knocked in three of the runs. The team as a whole batted well, getting fourteen hits off De Hart, a strong-arm Staten Islander. Line-up and score by innings:

Barnes, 1b; Brit, Martin, 2b; Jack Martin, ss; Emery, 3b; Scott, lf; Jacot, cf; C. Montross, rf; J. Montross, p; Allen, c.

NEW SUPREME COURT BLUE BOOK JUST ISSUED

C. N. CODDING HAS PREPARED IT—NEW JERSRY HAS 2611 LAWYERS.

William Riker, Jr., clerk of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, has just announced a new edition of the rules of the Supreme Court. The preceding edition came out about five years ago, and since that time there have been a number of amendments which necessitated the present edition. In addition to the rules there are lists of the present members of the New Jersey Bar, of those who are now deceased, of the justices of the Supreme Court from the time of its formation, of the clerks of the Supreme Court, attorney generals, law reporters, Supreme Court commissioners, Supreme Court examiners and sergeants-at-law, the latter being a degree which has fallen into disuse in this State. Prior to the preceding edition of the rules, the names of attorneys and counsellors had been arranged chronologically and in separate lists. In order to determine the date of admission of an attorney or counsellor, therefore, it was necessary to search the several thousand names on the rolls. In that edition, however, these names were arranged alphabetically, the date of admission as attorney and counsellor being placed after each respectively. This involved an enormous amount of labor, but the results have more than repaid the effort expended. The same plan has been continued in the present edition.

The lists show that there are at present two thousand six hundred and eleven attorneys and counsellors on the roll of present members of the bar. Since the preceding edition four hundred and thirty-nine attorneys have been admitted. The first attorney, so far as the records show, was admitted in 1704, and the list of deceased members of the bar contains the names of fourteen hundred and three, so that about nine hundred more are now practicing than have died since 1704. During the past five years one hundred and sixteen have died, two have been disbarred and one resigned. It is interesting to note that since 1704 there have been but eighteen disbarments, and of this number two were afterwards reinstated. Both the present edition and the one preceding are the work of Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, deputy clerk of the Supreme Court. Mr. Codding and Mr. Hartpence have been at work upon the present edition since early last spring and the books have just come from the press.

UNDERTAKERS RIVALS FOR SHRIEVALTY JOB

QUACKENBOSS, OF NEW BRUNSWICK, BESTS BURKE, OF PERTH AMBOY.

New Brunswick, Oct. 5.—The Middlesex county Democratic convention in Armory hall yesterday afternoon nominated William H. Quackenboss, a local undertaker, for sheriff. His opponent was Thomas A. Burke, a Perth Amboy undertaker, who received only 26 votes to 53 for Quackenboss.

Chairman George S. Silzer, of the county executive committee, presided.

The platform adopted favors equal taxation, more money from the State for macadam roads, and legislation curbing reckless automobilists.

For the Assembly, Charles P. Rose, of South Amboy; Bernard M. Gannon, of Perth Amboy, and Louis Hildebrand, Sr., of this city, were named. The five nominees for the freeholder commission are William Crowell, of Perth Amboy; Thomas Dunigan, of Woodbridge; C. Addison Stults, of Monroe; Thomas Meacham, of this city, and former Assemblyman John J. Quaid, of Sayreville.

The two coroner nominees are A. J. Martin, of this city, and James J. Flynn, of Perth Amboy.

At the city convention last night, presided over by former Alderman Runyon, John Lawrence, former State commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, was named for mayor and Freeholder Arthur O'Neil for recorder. The platform adopted condemned dual office holding by the city Republicans and pledged the nominees to a government for the people and not for any political boss or machine.

FOREST RESERVATION IN ATLANTIC COUNTY

STATE BOARD ACQUIRES 300 ACRES AT MAYS LANDING.

The State Board of Forestry met yesterday and took the first steps toward putting into practical effect Governor Stokes' plan of forestry preserves. The board voted to acquire from Dr. John Gifford, of Princeton, formerly forester at Cornell University, and others 300 acres of land near Mays Landing, upon which to establish the first forest reservation.

A portion of the land was presented to the commissioners and the balance was purchased at a low figure. The board also decided to purchase 600 acres near Tuckerton, Ocean county, at $1.50 an acre.

The Mays Landing tract is to be operated as a sample reservation to demonstrate to the State what can be accomplished under the new plan. It is well protected by streams against forest fires, and contains some good ripe timber. This will be cut judiciously and the proceeds devoted to the expense of maintaining the tract. Most of the land is covered with small trees of a second growth, and this will be turned into a tree nursery to stock other preserves.

The Tuckerton tract contains considerable second growth timber, and from its location will be made the nucleus of a large reservation which may be acquired there.

With these tracts as a basis it is the purpose of the board to demonstrate the best methods of reforesting cut-over and denuded lands, to forest waste and other lands, to show how to prevent injury by forest fires and the general administering and care of forests.

The board also decided upon a plan of co-operation with the East Orange water board, provided that board will accept the terms of the State board. The East Orange board owns 650 acres of forest and farm lands and asked the State board to co-operate with it in forestry work.

The State board has agreed to undertake the work, provided the East Orange board will assume all financial risks and agree to contribute $150 a year toward maintenance, the State to undertake no financial outlay whatever.

If this is agreed to the State board will conduct the forestry work on the tract, the income from the cutting of ripe timber each year to be devoted to the work of making the preserve self-supporting.

COMPLAINANT SCOLDED.

Chancellor Disbelieves Woman's Testimony in Suit.

Trenton, Oct. 5.—Chancellor Magie dismissed with costs yesterday a suit brought by Sarah McMahon, of Red Bank, against Anna Walsh, but before doing so the Chancellor severely scolded the complainant on the character of her testimony.

The suit was to set aside a conveyance of a sixth interest in a property at Red Bank for $350. The complainant claimed that her interest in the property was worth $1,000, and that she was improperly influenced to sign the agreement disposing of it. She told a story of driving to Red Bank on a cold morning with her brother, and stopping at a hotel, where her brother insisted on her taking a drink of liquor as a guard against cold. They went into the hotel for some time, and when the business was transacted the complainant claimed that the liquor had so affected her that she was not competent to judge what she was doing.

The Chancellor subjected the complainant to a rigorous cross-examination, making her describe the hotel and what happened in detail. He then expressed his entire disbelief in her testimony, saying he thought it had been concocted for the purpose of misleading the court. After censuring the complainant he dismissed her case.

PETIT JURORS WARNED.

Justice Fort Calls Attention to the Habit of Discussing Cases.

On convening of Supreme Court yesterday morning, Justice Fort warned the petit jurors from entering into conversation with and discussing the merits or demerits of any cause on the court calendar, no matter of what nature the case might be.

In giving this warning, Justice Fort said that his attention had been drawn to this habit on the part of jurors by a man who evidently knew what he was talking about.

The practice, in the opinion of the court, was one that should be discontinued and the judge hoped that it would not be necessary to speak of the matter again. In conclusion, the court asked each juror to inform him at once if hereafter anyone interested in a case on the calendar approached them in reference to it. The court would then endeavor to teach the person so offending that he has no right to do so.

Finds Socks Knitted in 1816.

While overhauling his stock of winter underclothing, Elias Philhower, of Peapack, found a pair of socks which were knitted by his mother in 1816. Mrs. Philhower made the socks when a young girl. She carded the wool, spun the yarn and knitted them. They were given to her father. Mr. Philhower has had them half a century.

Mrs. Howard Allegar, of West Fourth street, is very ill, and it is probable that an operation will be performed this afternoon.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 8.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The Christian's trials and triumphs.—Jas. i, 1-8.

Trials are a part of every Christian's life. There is no promise of exemption from trial and tribulation to any child of God. Many people have the idea that it is so or that it ought to be so. They imagine that, because one is a child of God, who absolutely controls all things in life, he should be freed from all suffering and sorrow. But God's word teaches no such doctrine, nor does human experience suggest it.

Christ plainly said to His disciples, "In the world ye shall have tribulation." Paul frequently speaks of his personal afflictions and of those which come upon God's children in general, and James speaks of our "divers temptations," or trials. Human experience corroborates the teaching of Christ and His disciples in this as in all other respects. At the time when James wrote the "twelve tribes were scattered abroad," suffering untold trial and hardship. And what child of God has escaped affliction? Indeed, our badge of our sonship is affliction, for "whom the Lord loveth he afflicteth."

But while trials must come to Christians this fact is more than offset by the further fact that trials lead to triumph. God has not promised that He will keep us from trials, but He has promised that we shall triumph over them and that they shall be blessings in disguise. "In the world," says Christ, "ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer. I have overcome the world." And what He means specially to say is that we through Him may overcome also. James says, "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations (trials), knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience; but let patience have her perfect work that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." Trials inspire triumphs that are far superior in their joy than all we have suffered in our trials. "Our light afflictions are grievous for a season, but they work out for us a far more exceeding weight of glory in the life to come." Rejoice therefore in trials and tribulations and think only of the joy to be found in them.

BIBLE READINGS.

Job xxiii, 10; John xvi, 33; I Cor. x, 11-14; II Cor. ii, 14; Rom. v, 1-5; viii, 14-18; II Tim. ii, 8-12.

Europe's Convention Badge.

The All Europe Christian Endeavor convention has recently been held in Berlin, Germany. Herewith is a picture of the badge worn by the thousands of delegates. Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey, the Chicago evangelist, who has achieved much good in some remarkable meetings lately held in London and other English cities, was a noted American speaker at the convention.

THE BADGE FOR THE EUROPEAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Find Its Heart.

[Dr. Francis E. Clark's final message to the Endeavor hosts before the great Baltimore convention was one that has its application to every like gathering, and as such it is worthy more than a passing note.—Ed.]

Let no pilgrim to Baltimore be content without reaching down to the living heart of the convention. What is its heart? Not the throngs, not the beautiful banners, not the wonderful music, not the eloquent addresses, not the helpful schools of methods, not the delightful excursions! These are all important, all necessary, as clothes are necessary to the body, as leaves and twigs and branches are necessary to the tree. But the heart of the man is behind the clothes; the heart of the tree is out of sight in its very trunk. The heart of the convention is the motive which brought Christian Endeavor into existence, which keeps it alive and vigorous, which causes it to root and grow in every land. It is the individual purpose, adopted by more than 10,000,000 of young people during the last quarter of a century, "I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do."

This surrender to Christ, this purpose to do His work in the world, this spiritual aim to serve Him to the uttermost ("whatever He would like to have me do"), is the real heart of Christian Endeavor, and it will be the real heart of the Baltimore convention. He who finds it there and there strengthens his own high purpose to do and be whatever Christ would have him will find in "Baltimore, 1905," the best and most enduring blessing that earth or heaven can give.

In Great Britain.

Yorkshire has 900 Christian Endeavor societies, with 36,000 members.

From returns which have recently come from thousands of societies it appears that 40 per cent of the membership is composed of young men.

The Endeavor penny movement in England has now brought 100,000 pennies ($2,000) from 2,515 societies.

Gaining Ground.

The Christian Endeavor cause is gaining ground in every country, and we hope this coming year will even surpass the last, which was the best that Christian Endeavor has ever known in all its history.—Dr. Francis E. Clark in Japan Endeavor.

Endeavor.

Aspire, break bounds, I say.
Endeavor to be good, and better still.
And best. Success is naught; endeavor's all.

—Browning.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 8: "The Christian's Trials and Triumphs"—Jas. i, 1-8.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

James, the writer of this epistle, was one of the most practical of the early disciples. He put special emphasis on right living. There were then, as now, many who preferred to talk about matters of belief and of their feelings and emotions, but who cared little about striving to do right when it cost pain and effort to do it.

Whoever undertakes to live well and do what he knows is good and right will soon find there are difficulties in the way. His own lack of practice will cause hardship and may lead to mistakes. The bodily powers must be trained. Appetites must be governed. Knowledge must be acquired. Opinions of others, their interests and prejudices may raise serious obstacles.

Every boy who has ever played a game of football or baseball knows that he can never become a good player without hard work and plenty of it. No man seeks a place on any crew in college aquatics without deciding if he can "make it" to put himself in training for the race under the rules of the coaches.

What reason has any one to expect that the best things in life can be gained with less exertion? You cannot train muscles to endurance and application sufficient for success in a boat race without some trials and self denial. The only question to be settled is whether the game is worth the price and your ability and willingness to pay the same.

If it is worth while to be the highest style of man and woman it is worth while to pay the price.

You can be a first class athlete easier than you can be a first class man of clean morals and religious life.

You can pass up in all your mathematics and master history and all sciences easier and quicker than you can master your appetites and control your passions and overcome your selfishness.

Body and mind are not so difficult to educate as the soul powers, but after they are disciplined they are of little or no value unless the soul has been also trained at the same time with them to rule over them and keep all in proper place.

Temptations are one thing, while trials are another, entirely different perhaps in their nature.

James speaks of trials and says it is a matter for joy when trials come. This is not the same as saying we are to be glad when we feel within us the impulse to an evil thing. That is a temptation to do the wrong and we are to be glad when we come to that purity and maturity in character where we no longer feel the inclination to do what is bad, but desire only the right and good and true and beautiful.

We can attain that place where the heart craves only the sweet and finds no pleasure in the sour and bitter things of soul, where God's will and ours have no antagonisms and no strife for mastery, where we seek to know only His will and joy above all other joys to do His pleasure.

But even then we may find keenest trials and sharpest pain. They will come when we find the dearest friend is unworthy of confidence, when we must make choice of shielding others from exposure and forfeiting integrity or rebuking their evil and breaking forever their friendship.

Do you say this will cost no struggle, no suffering? Then you have never had such experience or you have no soul to know things of truth and manhood.

Every advance in character, every step upward in personality, comes at the price of trial, comes by sacrifice and struggle and pain. But the soul that triumphs has nothing to regret in the price paid for success. Scars are a badge of nobility if only they have been earned in noble conflict.

The patience that James says comes as the result of trials overcome is a virtue of rare worth. It is the quality of hardness that comes when the muscles have taken on strength and the softness has been worked out. What sense of conscious power to do hard things comes then, and what exultation in the ability to do the great tasks! No ease one can ever enjoy is to be compared to the joy of great exertion without exhaustion.

When we come in spiritual things to the ability to lift the mighty weights and heave upward and out of the way the obstacles, what shouting of soul we have the right to indulge!

Count it all joy when you are placed before the great burdens, for God knows you. He is not tempting you, but He knows your class and is telling you to go up higher than you have been. You can lift more than you thought. Do it then. And keep doing it, only better and better all the time.

Safe Shelter.

Let us rejoice that it is not only to those who have done their best, but it is to all those who put their trust in God and strive his precepts to obey, there remains safe shelter in this world and for the soul an eternal haven of rest.

Fault Finding.

The man who is filled with the Holy Spirit is less likely to talk about his own holiness than his neighbor's. Fault finding is nowhere enumerated among the fruits of the Spirit.

John the Baptist.

As some lone anchoritish cloud
That leaves the tent of night
And, looking down the depths of day
Beyond our narrow sight,
Catches upon its swarthy face
The first gold gleam of light,
So stood he forth in our gray morn
Upon the desert's rim,
The eager prodrome of the day,
Glowing, that late was grim—
The light of the unrisen sun
Was manifest in him.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

RECIPES.

Apple Jam.—Boil eight pounds of apples with four pounds of sugar and half a pint of water till all is reduced to a pulp, flavor with grated orange or lemon peel, and when it begins to set, rub it through a hair sieve.

Apple Marmalade.—Pare and core any kind of sour apples, cut small, and allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit. Boil over a slow fire till it is all reduced to a fine pulp, put it into jars, and keep it in a very cool place.

Crab Apple Jelly.—Take the apples, and free them from specks, cut in halves and stew with sufficient water to cover, till reduced to a pulp. Pour into a jelly bag, and drain off juice. Allow a pound of sugar to each pint of juice. Put this in an oven in an earthenware dish to heat, taking care that it does not discolor. While this is going on boil the juice for twenty minutes. When the sugar is added to the juice it should be quite hot, and make a hissing sound. Stir all together till dissolved; and then place in glass jars.

Lemon Marmalade.—Sometimes it is possible to purchase lemons very cheaply; then is the chance for the industrious housewife to turn out a delicious preserve. Boil some fresh clean lemons for two hours in as much water as will cover them; during the cooking pour off the water two or three times, replacing with fresh boiling water. Drain the lemons and cut into thin slices, removing the pips. Weigh the fruit, and to every pound allow two pounds of loaf sugar and a pint of the water in which the lemons were last boiled. Boil the sugar and water for ten minutes, then add the pulp and boil for half an hour. Place in jars, and when cold cover very closely.

Orange Marmalade.—Select some large thin-skinned, sour oranges, put into a stewpan whole with enough water to cover them and stew till quite tender, changing the water two or three times; drain, then remove rind, and take away pips from the pulp, weigh the pulp, and allow one and a half pounds of loaf sugar and a half pint of the water the oranges were last boiled in for every pound of pulp. Boil the sugar and water together for ten minutes, add the pulp and boil for another ten minutes, and throw in the peel, which has been cut into strips, and boil for ten minutes more. Put in pots and tie down when cold. It takes about two hours to boil the oranges.

Quince Marmalade.—Slice quinces into a preserving pan, adding sufficient water to make them float, stew till reduced to a pulp, stirring constantly. Pass pulp through a hair sieve, weigh it, and to each pound add three-quarters of a pound of loaf sugar broken small; place on the fire and stir well from the bottom of the pan, and when done it will become like jelly if dropped on a plate. Put in jars while hot, covering with oiled paper when cold. Allow three hours to boil quinces and three-quarters to boil pulp with sugar.

Tomato Preserve.—Slice six fresh lemons without removing the skin. Take out the pips and add to these one peck of green tomatoes, and six pounds of sugar; boil till transparent, and the syrup is quite thick.

Green Corn Cakes.

One pint of milk, two cups grated green corn, a little salt, two eggs, a teaspoonful of baking powder, flour sufficient to make a batter to fry on griddle. Butter them hot and serve.

To Boil Asparagus.

Scrape the stems lightly to within two inches of the points, throw them into cold water for a few minutes; tie in bunches of equal size, cut the ends that they may be all the same length, then throw them into boiling water a little salted, and boil fast for twenty or twenty-five minutes, or until quite tender; have prepared a round of bread nicely toasted, which dip quickly into the boiling asparagus water; then dish the asparagus upon it, with the points meeting in the center; send rich melted butter to the table with it.

Mushroom Sauce.

Wash a pint of small button mushrooms, remove the stems and outside skins, stew them slowly in veal gravy or milk or cream, adding an onion, and seasoning with pepper, salt and a little butter rolled in flour. Their flavor will be heightened by salting a few the night before, to extract the juice. In dressing mushrooms, only those of a dull pearl color on the outside and the under part tinged with pale pink should be selected. If there is a poisonous one among them, the onion in the sauce will turn black. In such case throw the whole away. Used for poultry, beef or fish.

Rusks, with Yeast.

In one large coffee cup of warm milk dissolve half a cake of compressed yeast, or three tablespoonsful of homemade yeast; to this add three well beaten eggs, a small cup of sugar, and a teaspoonful of salt; beat these together. Use flour enough to make a smooth, liquid dough, let it stand until very light, then knead it in the form of biscuits; place them on buttered tins, and let them rise until they are almost up to the top of the tins; pierce the top of each one and bake in a quick oven. Glaze the tops of each with sugar and milk, or the white of an egg, before baking. Some add dried currants, well washed and dried in the oven.

AMUSEMENTS.

No more striking example of what merit will do has been illustrated in the theatrical world of recent years than the career of "The Christian." This great play has been given a repeated number of engagements in all the most important cities throughout the country, and now in its fifth season the success continues to almost the limit of the theatres wherever presented. Liebler & Company, the original producers, have at no time spared expense in the production and in the selection of the cast, and the forthcoming engagement at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night will be notable for its general excellence, and is an occasion which should receive a hearty welcome at the hands of our theatregoers. Mr. Ralph Stuart as John Storm.

Manager Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, is certainly keeping faith with the Plainfield public when he said that he would try to supply them with the best attractions obtainable and ones that would meet with their approbation. "Marching Through Georgia," which recently visited us, made such an enormous hit, was so thoroughly satisfactory and delighted two record-breaking audiences, that Mr. Counihan has arranged for a return engagement of this magnificent play. The piece will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday, October 7, for matinee and night, with the same excellent company and big scenic production which helped materially in the success recently achieved by this play in this city.

"For His Brother's Crime," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Monday night, is the latest and best effort of that popular playwright, Charles E. Blaney, in melodrama, and was written especially for Robert Gaillard, who possesses the unique distinction of being the most powerful athlete on the American stage. Mr. Gaillard appears as the twin brother of Ben Sterling, the wayward brother, who commits murder, and in order to save him from the vengeance of the law, Victor Sterling allows himself to be mistaken by officers for Ben, and is arrested for the crime, prior to which he passes through many thrilling experiences and trying ordeals. Love for his mother and hunted brother is at the bottom of Victor's martyrdom, and his loyalty and devotion to both never wane, not even in the shadow of the gallows. The man murdered by Ben Sterling is Rose Barclay's father. Rose is an attractive girl whom Victor idolizes, and who loves him, though he is only a poor blacksmith. Larry Monckton, an unscrupulous scoundrel, yet a society favorite, is also in love with Rose, or rather wishes to marry her for wealth. She frankly tells him of her love for Victor, and Monkston, in order to prevent their union, employs a gang of hoodlums and thugs to murder the blacksmith, failing in which he tries to have him hanged. This is prevented in the last act by the death of Ben Sterling in a foreign land, who confesses his guilt, thereby preventing a hero from paying the death penalty "For His Brother's Crime."

HUNT FOR IRISH CROWN.

Part of $1,000,000 Plunder Taken in Dublin Burglary.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Property valued at nearly $1,000,000, and including an ancient Irish crown, is sought for in Chicago pawnshops. The property was taken in a burglary committed two weeks ago at the home of John Mulhall, 14 Earlsfort terrace, Dublin, Ireland.

The burglars, it is thought, have come to the United States to dispose of the property. Among the property stolen and which the Chicago police are looking for are: Irish crown, surmounted with hand holding sword, on which are impaled three heads, very valuable; gold waist buckle, George III. period; two gold seals, one with crystal engraved J. M., the other sardonyx with crest; cut crystal box, Louis XV. period, with festoons and other work in gold around edge.

New Locomotives for Fast Freight Service on the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has just received three fast freight locomotives, which completes the order placed some time ago with the American Locomotive Company for ten of these locomotives. They have all been placed in service, and their addition to the power of the road already in freight service places the company in a position to handle all shipments presented promptly and without delays.

STATE INSTITUTION HEADS WILL CONVENE

COMMISSIONER WIGHT CALLS MEETING TO BE HELD ON OCT. 12.

Trenton, Oct. 4.—Dr. George B. Wight, commissioner of charities and corrections, has sent notices to the heads of all penal and charitable institutions of the State and counties to meet at the State house on Thursday, October 12, for a conference. This is in accordance with the provisions of the law creating the new department and which calls for such a meeting to be held quarterly or oftener as the commissioners may see fit.

Dr. Wight said today that he believed the first meeting would be confined to a general discussion of conditions as they exist in the various institutions. Until there had been a general expression of opinion he believed no definite course of action would be decided upon. All of the conferrees will be invited to give their views and make suggestions as to the betterment of the institutions under their care or in the State at large.

MR. HAY BOWEN'S FRIEND.

Late Ambassador to Venezuela Makes Statement.

Woodstock, Conn., Oct. 5.—Herbert W. Bowen, late minister to Venezuela, brother of H. C. Bowen, of Plainfield, dismissed from the diplomatic service as a result of charges he brought against former Assistant Secretary of State Loomis, his predecessor as United States Minister at Caracas, of being in league with the asphalt trust in its fight against President Castro, Tuesday night made a public statement refuting the facts given in the one issued by Mr. Loomis Sunday night, to the effect that the late Secretary of State John Hay considered Mr. Bowen a traitor. The statement reads as follows:

"In answer to the letters that were exchanged recently by President Roosevelt and Mr. Loomis in regard to Mr. Hay, and published in Monday's paper, I have to say only this: After I had sent to Washington all the documents which I found in the legation at Caracas relating to Mr. Loomis, I received a letter from Mr. Hay, stating, 'I have been greatly surprised and pained in reading the documents you sent me.

"The following month he wrote to me a letter containing these friendly words: 'I have always taken your part, not only from personal liking, but from a conviction of your merits, your ability, your courage and your integrity.'

"From a high official of the department of State I received a letter written this last April, stating: 'Secretary Hay remains your stanch friend.' From the same official I have in my possession a letter dated July 8, 1905 (eighteen days after I was dismissed from the diplomatic service by President Roosevelt), stating: 'I had a few words with Mr. Hay the day before he left W. (Washington) for N. H. (New Hampshire), and he spoke of Mr. Bowen in the same kindly and affectionate manner he always did.'

"Every one who knew Mr. Hay knows that he could not possibly have been a friend to a man like Mr. Loomis, and that no power on earth could have induced him to denounce as a traitor an American official who refused to shield corruption.

"In conclusion, in order to show President Roosevelt's attitude toward Mr. Loomis, I will simply quote my last remark to him and his to me in the presence of witnesses the day he dismissed me:

"'Mr. President, you will remember that after I sent to you all this information I had about Mr. Loomis, you offered me a promotion that was intended to lead to an ambassadorship.'

"'Well,' he answered, 'I would have done a great deal to hush up the scandal.'

(Signed)
"HERBERT W. BOWEN."

PRIZE FIGHT FOUGHT IN BARN.

Knockout in the Seventh Round, Vanquished Claiming a Foul.

Billy Hanley, of Newark, knocked out Monday night Eddie Rock, also of that city, in the seventh round of a private fight. The battle took place in an old barn near Brookdale. About 200 sports paid $1 each to witness the mill.

Many of the spectators thought Hanley fouled his man in putting him out. The fighters had agreed to break clean, but Hanley rushed Rock to the ropes in the seventh and "roughed" the latter so that he was unable to stall off the knockout blow. A terrific right on the jaw won the fight.

Until the seventh round honors were even. Rock's followers put up a howl that Hanley had fouled, but Jack Ward, who acted as referee, would not allow the claim.

A side bet of $200 hinged on the outcome. Joe Bateman, of Newark, was in Rock's corner, while Jack Bennett acted as second for the victor.

It was about midnight when the men got together. Both were badly punished.

Miss Hazel Grant, of Arlington avenue, has returned from a short stay at West Point.

MISS CLARA MARTIN AN OCTOBER BRIDE

WALTER HENRY BUTZ MAKES HER HIS WIFE.

In the parlor of the bride's home on Marion avenue, at 6 o'clock last evening, Miss Clara Edna Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, was made the wife of Walter Henry Butz, of this city, formerly of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and was witnessed by a gathering of 150 friends from New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Point Pleasant, Pluckemin, Reading and this city. The young couple stood beneath a floral bell in one corner of the room, while back of them was a bank of palms and ferns. Smilax and white festoons formed the remainder of the decorations in the parlor, while pink and white predominated in the parlor.

Miss Martin was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth R. Martin, who acted as maid of honor. Frederick Phillips, of this city, a near friend of the groom, was best man and two little girls, Helen Woolley and Edith Richards, formed an aisle of white ribbon, through which the bridal party passed. Miss Martin was given away by her father. She wore a gown of white crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. Her sister wore pink crepe de chine and carried carnations.

While the young people were taking their places before the clergyman, Mrs. J. M. Smalley, of Brooklyn, presided at the piano, and rendered the Lohengrin march, afterward giving "O Promise Me."

The wedding was followed by a reception and collation, after which Mr. and Mrs. Butz departed for a wedding trip of two weeks. On returning they will make their home in an apartment at Watchung avenue and Second street, which has been completely furnished.

The gifts extended bride and groom comprised a tasteful array of silverware, cut glass, bric-a-brac and household furniture. From the groom's mother came a complete silver service of elaborate design. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket and chain set with diamonds and to his attendant a pearl stickpin. The maid of honor's present from the bride was a gold brooch set with pearls.

Though not a native of Plainfield, the groom enjoys a wide local acquaintance. He is chief draughtsman at the Pedrick & Ayer plant, where he is held in high estimation. His bride has always been a resident of the city and has always been known as a devoted worker in the Sunday school department of Trinity Reformed church and a former member of its choir.

PARISH HOUSE OPENING.

Bishop Scarborough to be at Grace Church Exercises.

Arrangements are being completed for the opening of the new parish house of Grace church with an elaborate programme on Thursday night, October 12. Rev. E. V. Stevenson is in charge of the arrangements. Bishop Scarborough has been invited and will have an important part in the exercises which will be fitting and appropriate to the completion of the handsome new structure.

There will also be a special programme of music by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. William Freeman, organist of the church.

Music and Reserved Seats for Women

Those in charge of the Republican mass meeting to be held at Saengerbund Hall tonight have engaged Prof. Carpenter's orchestra at the New Plainfield theatre to furnish music and it has been decided to reserve the entire gallery for the women. It is hoped that the fair sex will turn out in large numbers and interest themselves in borough politics.

The Misses Jennie and Fayette Miller, of Roselle, and their aunt, Mrs. Eden Boice, of Central avenue, spent the afternoon yesterday at the home of Mrs. Sarah House, of West Front street.

MISS ELLA TITSWORTH WEDDED THIS MORNING

CEREMONY PERFORMED IN THE PRESENCE OF RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

Miss Ella V. Titsworth, of this city, and Herbert Budd Putnam, of Rochester, N. Y., were quietly married at 11 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. D. Titsworth, of Madison avenue, in the presence of a very few relatives and intimate friends. Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a handsome traveling gown of green broadcloth, with hat to match. Both she and the groom were unattended. The ceremony was performed with a ring and took place in the parlor, which was decorated in green and white. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the dining room, the decorations here being pink and white.

The bride and groom left town early this afternoon for an extended wedding trip, and upon their return will reside at Rochester, N. Y. The bride is the daughter of the late Charles Titsworth and enjoys a large acquaintance of friends here, where she has lived for a number of years. She received a large collection of handsome gifts. The groom is engaged as a traveling salesman for the Parke-Davis Chemical Company, of Detroit, having been with that company for many years.

RESCUED FROM NEGRO.

Crowd Stops Isaac White From Whacking Small Boy; Fined $5.

Isaac White, colored, caught a small white boy loafing in his barn on West Third street yesterday afternoon and threw him out. He followed up the ejection with chastisement, and a crowd gathered. The white onlookers decided that White was going too far and pulled the boy away from him. Things were warming up for a small race riot when Officer McKeon, attracted by the crowd, reached the scene.

McKeon squelched the war talk, and asked some questions. He decided there was basis for the interference and placed White under arrest. The negro denied this morning in court that he had beaten the boy cruelly.

"I was only trying to teach him that loafing around and playing hobo was not right," he protested.

Witnesses of the affair testified against the negro, however, and Judge Runyon decided he had been disorderly enough to merit punishment. He made it $5 or twenty days.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

Grover Cleveland, in an article published in the Ladies' Home Journal entitled "Would Woman Suffrage Be Unwise?" gives reasons for believing that politics is not for women.

"A few years ago," he writes, "the question of allowing municipal suffrage in Massachusetts to women was submitted to all the voters of that State who were eligible to vote for school committees. The number of women at that time qualified to register and ballot on the questian was about 575,000. Of these more than 550,000 declined to vote. There were forty-seven towns in which not one woman's ballot was cast in the affirmative.

"I think twenty States which refuse to women all other suffrage privileges permit them to vote for school officers, either without restriction or under certain conditions. It is alleged, however, that the number who avail themselves of this privilege is commonly very small.

"It is sometimes claimed that woman suffrage would have the effect of elevating and refining politics. Neither its short trial in four States, containing in the aggregate a population very slightly in excess of one-third the population of the city of New York, nor our political experience or observation supports this claim.

"The States in which full female suffrage prevails are Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. In the first two of these States the proportion of female voters is considerably greater than in the others, and yet the voters of Utah have lately elected through their Legislature to the United States Senate a man whose fitness is now the subject of a pending Senatorial investigation, and not long ago they elected to Congress another man whom that body rejected.

"Of the four States permitting full woman suffrage, Colorado should certainly be regarded as affording the best illustration of its results.

"Less than two years ago a member of the House of Representatives from that State, holding his place by virtue of an apparent majority of the direct votes of the men and women of his district, resigned his seat for the reason, as he openly declared, that fraudulent votes had been cast for him in the election. An investigation of the case by a Congressional committee developed the fact that some of the most glaring frauds were committed by women.

"I have sometimes wondered if the really good women who are inclined to approve this doctrine of female suffrage are not deluding themselves with purely sentimental views of the subject."

WOMAN'S BRAVE DRIVE.

Guides Runaway Horse Down Bank and Into Fence.

Somerville, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Charles C. Stimets, of New York, who has been spending the summer here, had a thrilling experience with a runaway horse Monday and narrowly escaped a fatal accident at the Raritan River Bridge.

Mrs. Stimets, who is an accomplished horsewoman, with her little daughter, was seated in a light runabout, driving a spirited bay mare. The animal stumbled and broke its harness. The breeching fell on the mare's legs and she started on a run for the Raritan River Bridge, which is thirty feet above the stream.

Mrs. Stimets foresaw the danger, and with rare presence of mind and a strong pull at the reins, turned the frightened animal from the bridge entrance down a five-foot embankment into a wire fence. The mare became entangled in the fence and plunged frantically until it freed itself from the vehicle.

The animal was badly cut up and the runabout was wrecked. Mrs. Stimets and her daughter were rescued from the wreck with slight injuries.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH ADOPTS NEW HYMNAL

WHAT THE BOOK MAY MEAN TO METHODISM.

The Official Board of the First M. E. church at a meeting held last night following the prayer meeting in Vincent chapel, voted to adopt the new Methodist hymnal for worship at the church services, and a committee comprising James R. Joy, Henry A. McGee and James W. Jackson was appointed to attend to the introduction of the hymnal, which will be done within a short time.

Concerning the introduction of this new hymnal there is a bit of interesting history. At the outbreak of the Civil War there was a division of the Methodists of the North and South, there being a wide difference of opinion on the question of slavery. The Methodist church and what is known as the Methodist church South have never been united, but it is hoped that through the new hymnal this may be accomplished.

The Methodist church South and the church in the North have been using a different hymnal and singing different hymns, but in 1900 the General Conference of the North requested the General Conference of the South to appoint a committee to meet with a like committee from the North looking toward the adoption of a common hymnal. The request was adopted and the new hymn book is the result. Now the Methodist churches throughout the United States will have one common hymn book and one common order of service. There was some objection at first to the new book because it contained Kipling's "Processional," but this was easily overcome. The joint committee compiling this book is far different from the one which arranged the original hymnal and the new book shows a decided improvement in the general arrangement.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The various committees engaged in making arrangements for the first annual outing of the Trenton Republican Club held a joint meeting at the clubhouse last night and completed their plans for this gala day and gathering of the Mercer county G. O. P. at the Interstate fair grounds.

The Municipal Ownership League of New York held a mass meeting last night to denounce the fusion fiasco, which so keenly disappointed the leaguers. Resolutions were adopted denouncing Odell for not going into the fusion, Tammany Hall for its methods, and trusts and corporations. W. R. Hearst was present and spoke.

Because of the differences among Republicans in Essex county, growing out of the stubborn controversy between Major Carl Lentz, chairman of the county committee, and Everett Colby, the Senatorial candidate, the Democrats have become enthusiastic, and have planned to open their campaign next Monday night with a mass meeting. Charles C. Black, the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1904, is to make the opening address.

Refuses a Big Profit.

John Manley, who purchased the Marshall property on Park avenue several months ago for about $7,000, has just refused an offer of $12,000 for it from Charles H. Lyman.

Miss Margaret Counihan, of Chicago, came to Plainfield today for a visit with her brother, W. J. Counihan, manager of the New Plainfield theatre. She will probably remain two months.

WEST END AVENUE BRIDGE A POSSIBILITY

CONCRETE STRUCTURE PROPOSED TO SPAN GREEN BROOK.

Failing in the effort to secure an iron bridge on West End avenue over Green brook, there is still one chance left to get a bridge this year. Those who are interested in the improvement are considering plans whereby a structure of concrete can be put on the avenue. One great difficulty with the plans for an iron bridge has been the trouble of getting iron. Every mill is rushed to the limit, and while they will take orders, will not make promises as to delivery.

In discussing the matter it has been thought that a concrete structure will be just as strong, and as attractive and it will be possible to erect it this year, as the time required for construction is much less than in the case of iron.

The freeholders from the two counties have made a joint appropriation of $7,500 for the bridge, and it is believed that the concrete style can be put up for that money. This form of construction is now being used quite generally in New York and has the highest recommendation from persons competent to judge. No doubt effort will be made to secure the sanction of the freeholders for this kind of a bridge, and doing this they will authorize the drafting of plans for a concrete structure.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Meetings of the Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will be resumed tomorrow night and an interesting talk is expected by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the pastor.

Bishop Charles Tyler Olmsted, of the Episcopal Diocese of Central New York, has asked the clergymen of his churches to do all they can to stop the practice of women going to church with their hats off. He says he hopes the "hatless brigade" fad will soon die out. "Let at least," says he, "this good custom of the mothers in Israel prevail, that they pray in public with covered heads."

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold the regular quarterly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the church parlors. There will be an address by Mrs. J. F. Pingry, former secretary of the Woman's Board. Mrs. Pingry has visited many of the mission schools and will speak from personal observation of the work that is being done.

At the first meeting of the season Tuesday night, the Men's Club of the Congregational church elected the following officers: President, W. B. Wadsworth; vice president, Alexander Millar; secretary, Sidney Dunning; treasurer, Charles E. Steiner. An executive committee was appointed consisting of the officers and William T. McIntosh and Gilbert T. Rhoades. Plans for the winter were discussed and the members will devote more time than ever to debates, mock trials and other forms of helpful entertainment.

Fresh Air Meeting Date Changed.

The Netherwood Fresh Air Home meeting, which was to have been held on Thursday night, October 12, at the Y. M. C. A., has been changed to Saturday night, October 14, at the same place. The change was made so as not to conflict with the exercises attendant upon the opening of the new parish house of Grace church, which takes place on Thursday, October 12.

Engineer Loses Three Fingers.

William J. Dodd, of East Fifth street, employed as an engineer at Hand's brickyard, Netherwood, had his hand crushed while at work this morning. He went to the hospital, where Dr. B. VanD. Hedges found it necessary to amputate three fingers. Dodd will remain at the hospital for the present.

ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH TO CONDUCT A FAIR

WILL LAST A WEEK AND BE REPLETE WITH NEW FEATURES.

Members of the parish of St. Joseph's church met last night and made arrangements for a fair to be given in Saengerbund Hall November 13 to 18. It will be conducted on lines differing from those generally adhered to and an effort will be made to have it eclipse all others in point of success. There is a possibility that some of the exhibits at the recent Irish Industrial Show in Madison Square Garden may be secured as features and there will be an entertainment and dancing each evening in addition to other attractions.

The plans are to be supervised by an executive committee composed of H. P. Greenwood, chairman; A. A. Cannon, secretary, and G. P. Kiely, treasurer. They will be assisted by the following: Men—R. H. McCullough, A. E. Kenney, D. T. Kenney, A. Seal, James Daley, James Hurley, Cormack McDonough, Thomas Gough, Cornelius Guinee, C. Kling, Robert McCormick and Thomas Meaney; women—Mrs. A. Seal, Mrs. R. H. McCullough, Mrs. J. E. Bailey, Mrs. H. Berkhan; Mrs. D T Kenney, Mrs. A. E. Kenney, Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, Mrs. Hegeman, Mrs. Meaney, Mrs. Cornelius Guinee, Mrs. A. A. Cannon, Mrs. Thomas Gough and the Misses Eganey, Jacot, Fitzgerald, Smith, McMahon and Daley.

LOYAL LEGION DINNER.

Plainfield Members Attend Banquet in New York.

General Horace Porter, who was commander of the New York Commandery of the Loyal Legion when he was appointed Ambassador to France, and who recently returned home, was tendered a reception at the quarterly meeting and banquet of the Legion at Delmonico's last night. After the banquet he was the principal speaker of the evening and was given a great ovation. Secretary of State Elihu Root, Admirals Sigsbee, Schley and Coghlan, Generals Wade, Brooke, O. O. Howard, Stewart L. Woodford and several other men of note in national affairs were present. Speeches were also made by Admiral Sigsbee, Generals Brooke and Howard. The Plainfield members of the Legion present included Captain S. C. Peck, Major W. D. W. Miller, Dr. Frank Wells, J. Evarts Tracy, Hugh Hastings, M. C. Dobbins and Walter C. Dobbins.

SUNDAY GOLF THE SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE

MEMBERS OF PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB HOLD A QUIET MEETING.

Hoping to avert any unpleasantness over the Sunday golf agitation, a meeting of the leading factors in the Plainfield Country Club was held at the Casino last night. The purpose was to come to some amicable understanding. What was done cannot be learned. Secretary Leighton Calkins declined to say anything for publication this morning and the Casino people were equally reticent.

It is said that the members favoring Sunday golf, who are in the majority in the club, engaged counsel to ascertain what steps could be taken. R. V. Lindabury, of Newark, one of the foremost lawyers in the State, is said to have advised that a two-thirds vote is not necessary to make the necessary amendment. His opinion is reported to have been concurred in by a New York lawyer of National fame.

There were about eight or ten members of the club present last night, though it was originally planned to have about twice that number at the conference.

According to good authority there is still agitation favoring the organization of a new club unless Sunday golf can be brought about in the Plainfield Country Club. This matter has not taken definite shape and it is said that nothing will be done until the outcome of the present negotiations is known.

ALL DAY QUILTING BEE.

Warren Chapel Women Observe Annual Event.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Warren chapel, the annual quilting bee was held in the chapel yesterday. It was an all-day affair and the women were very industrious in their work of preparing articles for the Christmas missionary box. Three quilts were made during the day, and at 1 o'clock a hot lunch was served to forty members and friends.

The dining tables were prettily decorated with flowers and presented an attractive sight. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, according to the annual custom, presided at the head table. After lunch sewing was continued until 4:30 o'clock.

The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. George Demarest, assisted by her committee, and Mrs. J. W. Gavett and Mrs. Gibson Smith, assisted by their committee had charge of the box work.

ACKERMAN AND LAWRENCE ARE NOMINATED

Summit Man Captures Shrievalty on 12th Ballot at Unbossed Republican Convention

RUNYON GETS OVATION

Tucker, Tillman and Perkins for Assembly—Platform Made to Order—Unusual Demonstrations of Enthusiasm.

Amid wild scenes of enthusiasm at a convention which stretched out into hours, the Republicans of Union county nominated a ticket yesterday afternoon. Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, was their unanimous choice for State Senator. For sheriff they selected Dr. William H. Lawrence, of Summit, but not until twelve ballots had been taken and the friendly rivalry between the supporters of the various candidates for the nomination had demonstrated beyond a doubt that it was a political convention of the genuine type, unbridled and unhampered. As generally expected, Peter Tillman, of Rahway; Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, and Everard K. Tucker, of Elizabeth, were picked out as Assembly nominees. The coronership went to Jacob Hagin, of Elizabeth, and after the favored ones had had their little say, the delegates went home—happy and optimistic.

The scene of the deliberations was Jacobs' theatre, Elizabeth, and the time when the convention was called to order was 3:15. County Chairman Frank H. Smith, of this city, called the convention to order. He was diplomatic enough not to waste time making a speech, for he saw that the gallery of rooters from Summit were anxious for the business to come. They had exercised their lungs for half an hour singing parodies on "Tammany" and "All Work for Father," booming it up for Dr. Lawrence.

Former County Chairman Charles N. Codding tried hard to look surprised when Mr. Smith announced him as temporary chairman, and even Congressman Charles N. Fowler, who was on hand, warmed up with a pleasant smile when Amos Andrews, of this city, and Frank Smith, of Westfield, escorted Mr. Codding to the platform.

After the temporary chairman had made the usual set speech, he announced the vice-presidents and secretaries. The roll was called by former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, and then Judge Runyon, of this city, moved that the committees selected be appointed. Of course this was done.

These are the committees—Vice-president, George H. Kline, Elizabeth; Guy M. Howard, Rahway; William Hopp, Westfield; secretaries, David Strauss, Elizabeth; Robert B. Cissell, Elizabeth; Roger F. Murray, Plainfield; committee on credentials, Joseph F. Cahill, Elizabeth; Neil A. McCarthy, Elizabeth; B. VanD. Hedges, Plainfield; Benjamin King, Clark; W. C. Hope, Roselle Borough; committee on rules, Ed. D. Floyd, Westfield; Joseph Kaufman, Elizabeth; George P. Matthews, Elizabeth; Percy A. McVoy, Plainfield; Peter H. Miesell, Springfield; permanent organization, Henry Clauss, Elizabeth; William R. Littell, Elizabeth; Silas K. Tombs, Rahway; Robert Bond, Union; George H. Johnston, Fanwood township; committee on resolutions, C. Addison Swift, Elizabeth; William F. Groves, Elizabeth; Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Plainfield; Corra N. Williams, Summit; Sylvester M. Scott, Cranford; committee of vacancies, Charles N. Codding, Westfield; James White, Elizabeth; Frank H. Smith, Plainfield.

After a recess the committees made their report. Everything was O. K. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., read the resolutions. Here they are:

"We, representatives of the Republican party of Union county, in convention assembled, justly feel proud of the achievements of President Roosevelt in his administration of affairs pertaining to the nation. We join in the world wide acclaim of his successful efforts in opening the way for a conference between contending powers which happily resulted in the termination of the greatest war in the world's history, and the establishment of peace on lasting foundations. The President has endeared himself to all who abhor strife, and has brought lasting renown to the American people.

"We believe with him that everyone should be given 'a square deal,' and we pledge our efforts to secure the same in the management of State and municipal affairs.

"We believe that the burden of taxation should be so distributed that the same should rest equally upon each and all.

"Anticipating the enforcement of the law which provides for a limited rate of taxation, it is our opinion that in justice to the inhabitants of each municipality, all property therein located and subject to taxation at local rates, should be valued and assessed by one and the same authority. To us there seems no good reason why second class railroad property should be assessed and valued by a State board, rather than by appointees of the various localities wherein the same is located.

"We recognize the growing value of the so-called 'public utilities.' To their extension is due, in great measure, the development of hitherto unoccupied territory, with the consequent growth in population and by them the facility for communication has been increased, and the conveniences and advantages that are so necessary for the comfort of the people of the State have been multiplied.

"Populations in different municipalities, varying in number and with different needs, make necessary, however, different limitations and compensations in granting to quasi public corporations a license for operation. Rules which should apply in granting franchises in populous cities must, of necessity, differ from those to be applied in sparsely settled communities. Recognizing this difference, we believe that it is nevertheless necessary in the interests of our highways should no longer be granted in perpetuity. We urge that existing laws be so amended as to prohibit the granting of perpetual franchises, and yet at the same time provide that limited grants, renewable on equitable terms, may be permitted, leaving the determination of such terms to be the subject of mutual agreement.

"We recommend a modification of the laws fixing salaries in order that the county may be relieved of additional burdens, resulting from laws which will become operative by reason of the increase in population, as determined by the last census.

"We approve of the policy which has for its end the abolition of needless State commissions and the consolidation of others whose functions may be as well discharged by one as by several.

"The administration of county affairs under Republican control commends itself to the confidence of the people, because of its efficiency, its economy, its freedom from scandal and its faithful regard for the public interests.

"We pledge to all the nominees of this convention the personal aid of every delegate here assembled, and confidently commend the choice of this convention to the united and hearty support of the Republican voters of the county."

Judge William N. Runyon arose to place Mr. Ackerman in nomination for the Senatorship after other districts had given way to Plainfield. He got the biggest ovation of the day and was compelled to take the platform. He said:

"To those of us who think seriously upon matters political, who take pride in our beloved State of New Jersey, her history and achievements, must come the conviction that a high and distinguished privilege is ours this afternoon. Upon us, as representatives of thousands of the best citizens of the county of Union, is cast the burden and responsibility of nominating for their endorsement those who are to serve us in the making and execution of our laws.

"A grave responsibility it is, and one which should enlist our highest and noblest efforts, for it is an incident to the highest and best form of citizenship.

"The call for the best men available for public office was never more pronounced or more far-reaching than it is today. The sovereign people of every State are demanding of us who are organization Republicans that we give them the best citizens possible; men of ability and unimpeachable integrity.

"The call of party is not as potent as once it was and the great mass of citizens will support the Republican party only so long as it can place entire confidence in Republican officeholders.

"The history of New Jersey offers many and varied contrasts. Her traditions are, in the main, honorable to the highest degree, and yet we need look back but a few years to see her sunken in degradation and shame. It was then that upright men, irrespective of party, met on a common platform of decency and righteousness, a time when Republicans like Foster Voorhees joined hands with Democrats like Job Lippincott, and cleared the Ship of State of the rats which infested it. In their dire extremity the people turned for relief to the Republican party, and voted their faith in it. The promises of clean and honest government made at that time are just as binding today as when given, and it is our sacred duty to send to

SUICIDE ON THE STREET

Young Pennsylvanian Shoots Himself Under the New Street Bridge.

IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Threatened to Take His Own Life in Talk With Friends in Phoenixville, Pa., Over Long Distance 'Phone.

A young man, neatly dressed in black, walked down New street, between Second and Third streets, yesterday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock. He walked slowly, with bent head. Under the railroad bridge he stopped, drew a revolver from his hip pocket, and shot himself through the head. Ten minutes later he died on the sidewalk.

Letters and papers in the suicide's pocket bore the name H. T. McCabe. They were addressed to Phoenixville, Pa. The same name was punched in the band of his hat. Cards indicated that he was in the undertaking business.

There was nobody in the street when the shot was fired, but some children playing at the Second street corner heard the explosion and saw the young man fall. They gave the alarm, and the police were telephoned for. Patrolman Overbaugh arrived in the patrol wagon less than five minutes after the shot was fired.

The bullet entered the man's head directly above the ear and passed clean through the skull, going out through the left side. His brains seemed to be oozing from the gaping hole above his ear, but he was still alive when Overbaugh bent over him. As the officer stooped the suicide's eyes opened and stared directly into those of the officer, but there was no indication of intelligence in them. Three or four minutes later the death rattle sounded and the young man's purpose was accomplished.

While Overbaugh was looking at the dying man, one of the men in the crowd that was gathering gave an ejaculation of surprise.

"That looks like a man I knew in Philadelphia," he said. This was before the papers establishing the suicide's body were seen. Phoenixville is near Philadelphia. The man slipped away before the officer could learn his name or question him.

The body was taken to the morgue in the patrol wagon a few minutes after the man died, and Coroner's Physician Westcott was notified. The suicide was about 28 years old, and well dressed. All his clothing was of good quality and his linen was clean. Sixteen cents was all the money to be found in his pockets. One of his hip pockets contained a half-pint flask full of whiskey. The revolver with which he committed suicide was one of expensive make.

It is said that the young man telephoned to Phoenixville from the public booth at the telephone exchange a short while before he committed suicide. He did not close the door of the booth tightly and his part in the conversation over the wire was heard in the office. He appeared to become discouraged as the conversation proceeded, and closed it with these words:

"Well, I'll go out and commit suicide."

The authorities of Phoenixville were notified soon after the young man's death. At 9 o'clock last night a Phoenixville undertaker telephoned police headquarters to have the body embalmed and shipped to Phoenixville at his expense.

McCabe was in town only about two hours before he ended his life. He came from Philadelphia on the 2:31 train and as far as the police can find out, he spent the time between his arrival and suicide in walking about. The officers had heard nothing of his telephoning to Phoenixville.

McCabe was well known in Phoenixville, and popular. He was unmarried. The police here have received no direct information respecting the cause of the suicide, but surmise that business troubles led to it. The body will be shipped to Phoenixville today.

BIG RALLY FOR SMALLEY

Enthusiastic Borough Mass Meeting at Which C. A. Reed Makes a Speech.

MAYOR ALSO TALKS

North Plainfield's Counsel Makes Clear Misrepresentations of A. V. D. Honeyman and Other Enemies of the Administration.

Before an audience of 500 people, about fifty of whom were women, in Saengerbund Hall last night, Mayor Newton B. Smalley and Charles A. Reed made reply to some of the misleading statements they allege to have been circulated by members of the Citizens' party respecting Smalleyism and the borough government. The question of taxation, the resignation of Homer J. Wightman as principal of the schools, the withdrawal of borough funds from the First National Bank, following the transfer of the Brunson stock and the arrest of John Goodwin, were among the agitated subjects taken. A. V. D. Honeyman, mayoralty candidate Conroy and S. S. Swackhamer, of the Citizens' movement, also came in for considerable attention and remarks attributed to them were thoroughly sifted and explained for the benefit of the voters.

The meeting was called to order by James R. Joy, president of the borough school board, who was made chairman. On the platform were Clifford McGee and Edward P. T. Smith, the Republican candidates for councilmen; L. B. Woolston, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Edward Rushmore, Councilman Charles L. Lee and F. H. Ball. Carpenter's orchestra was in attendance and roused the gathering at intervals with patriotic airs. In opening the meeting Mr. Joy said:

Gentlemen, you will please come to order. I have been asked by the members of the club to take the chair at this time, and to read the following list of Vice-Presidents at this meeting: B. A. Hegeman, Jr., David R. Weaver, Charles L. Nichols, James C. Pack, L. B. Woolston, George T. Rogers, Murray Bartis, William C. Smith, P. A. Emmons, Henry A. McGee, Frank H. Ball, Robert Clark, Jr., George D. Hallock, John G. McLaughlin, Harrison Coddington, all of whom have served as members of the Borough Council.

Also the following gentlemen, who have not yet achieved that position: J. E. McClintock, Richard E. Coriell, Edmund Rushmore, Stephen Beeching, Harold Serrell, H. P. Opdyke, John Vanderhoef, W. A. Conger, Joseph C. Martin, George Schoeller, William O. Worth, E. A. Vermeule, E. S. Hooley, Frederick Burner, Henry Nischwitz, John P. Kirch, W. J. Buttfield, Robert Carson, Martin I. Cooley, A. M. Stine, B. S. Braider, C. M. Burt, G. G. Davidge, George S. McGinnis, Fred L. Lancaster, John J. Kline, Francis J. Blatz, John H. Green, Allen Coddington, Andrew Carpenter, Wm. Morrison, Rudolph Gaskill, Wm. E. Brock, D. K. Young, Wm. H. Morris, L. M. French, Henry Weiss, Wm. Lindsay, William Jeffery.

It is, as I consider it, quite an honor to be called upon to preside at a meeting of my fellow citizens and at a time like this, when we are in the midst of a political campaign. It seems to some of us as if there was no time in the whole year when North Plainfield was not immersed in politics, but it is said to be a good sign, a sign which makes for good government, when a large portion of the people of a municipality are interested in the conduct of their public affairs, and certainly there is no community within the state of New Jersey of which it can be said, with greater truthfulness, that they are universally interested in politics than it can be said of this community, of the Borough of North Plainfield. And it is, I take it, a happy omen, that where the interest is so universal, we may be guaranteed good government.

We have had it in the past, and we have to show for that good government things which nobody can deny, in the shape of good roads, good streets, good sidewalks, a good fire department, good schools, and, judging from the professions of all parties concerned in the present campaign, to these are soon to be added a good system of sewers. Therefore I think the outlook is very bright for this Borough, and I believe that this meeting, which we hold to-night is a happy foreshadowing of the 7th of November, when there will be a great fall of the ballots, and at the end of that day we shall find that the estimable candidates who have been nominated by the Republicans have been elected to office on that ticket, which is headed by Newton B. Smalley. (Loud applause).

Now, I confess to a little hesitation in working up to that name, because so far as I can make out there are two persons of that name in the Borough of North Plainfield. There is one of whom I have read a great deal in interviews, and open letters and pamphlets, and speeches for the last two or three years, but whom I take to be a creation of the imagination, a figure no more real than Oliver Twist or David Harum. But I am not fond of that figure, as pictured in those works of fiction, and if we should all form our opinions of the person mentioned from the way he has been delineated by a certain literary artist, I do not think we would be drawn towards him. But that is not the real Newton B. Smalley, that is an imaginary one; the real Newton B. Smalley is as real as Theodore Roosevelt, and has a good many of the same qualities. (Loud applause).

It seems to me that the whole key of the campaign which is being urged against our ticket is this, the hope of palming off upon the public of North Plainfield this spurious image of Newton B. Smalley, and making it good at least until election. If you follow out the lines in which the literary artist to whom I made allusion delineates the character of our candidate for the mayoralty, you will find that that imaginary person has a great many phases and sides to his make-up. Some of those will be spoken of by the speakers who will address you later.

I presume a part of the functions of the chairman in a meeting like this is merely to hold you off, hold you at arm's length from the good things that are coming, until when they do come you will have a keen appetite for them, and I shall try to fill that rather unflattering position for a few moments longer.

There is only one of the assertions concerning Mr. Smalley that I care to take up at the present time, and I do so with a great deal of delicacy. None of us like to have the schools talked about very much. The schools go along and do their work very well, and perhaps better, for not being talked about, and I think it is for that reason that the other side have drawn the schools into the arena of politics, thinking that perhaps we would not say anything about it, because of a feeling of delicacy. But I am as much interested in the schools of this Borough as any man is. But in addition to that I am interested in truthful statements, and in the correct representation of the relations of Mr. Smalley to the educational work in our community, and I propose to say a few things along that line.

It is charged that Mayor Smalley has introduced politics into the school. It is charg

WHO THE NOMINEES ARE

Something About the Careers of Men Selected by Union Co. Republican Convention.

THEY STAND HIGH

Ernest R. Ackerman a Successful Manufacturer—Dr. Lawrence a Hard Worker for the Party in Summit.

Something about the lives of the Republican nominees for State Senator and sheriff will be interesting. Ernest R. Ackerman is the Senatorial selection and Dr. W. H. Lawrence the man for sheriff.

Ernest R. Ackerman has been a resident of Plainfield for the greater portion of his life. He was born in New York City in 1863, and was educated at the Plainfield Public Schools, graduating from the High School in 1880. He has been a traveler, and there is hardly a portion of the civilized world but that has contributed to his knowledge of men and things. He has always taken a great interest in local affairs and in matters of general public interest. He is conservative in his actions and his mind and judgment have been ripened by a wide experience.

Mr. Ackerman fought the "Big Six" in the Common Council of 1891-92, when he represented the Third ward in that body, and to his efforts was due in a great measure the setback the "Big Six" received and their final overthrow. He was a Presidential elector in 1896 and was secretary of the New Jersey Electoral College in 1897. He is a member at large of the New Jersey Geological Survey. Fellow Republicans have frequently sent him as a delegate to city, county and Sate conventions of the party, and he was the chairman of the last county convention. He has also been chairman of the Republican City Executive Committee of Plainfield.

In business matters Mr. Ackerman has always taken a leading part. He has been a large employer of labor and frequently has from fifteen hundred to two thousand men on the pay roll. He is president of the Lawrence Cement Company, one of the oldest producers of cement in the world. He is a director of the Plainfield Trust Company, a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Union League Club, of New York, the Lawyers' Club, the McKinley Club, the Collectors' Club, the New York Building Material Exchange, an associate of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and a fellow of the American Geographical Society.

For twenty years Mr. Ackerman has been a director of the Y. M. C. A. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Crescent Avenue church, of the advisory board of the Plainfield Relief Association and is second vice-president of the Muhlenberg Hospital. He is vice-president of the Plainfield Country Club, and is an exempt fireman, having been a member of the Alert Hose Company in the days of the volunteer firemen.

Dr. W. H. Lawrence went to Summit some twenty-five years ago and built up a large practice as a physician. The city was for years under Democratic control, and the doctor, thinking that a change in the management of local affairs would be welcomed, embarked in politics, and through his ability as a fighter the then Township Committee became Republican, he being elected a member. Since then (1895) Dr. Lawrence has been high in party affairs and one of the shrewdest Republican leaders, and hisadvice has been constantly sought on matters of importance. He has represented Summit on the county Republican committee for years. With the exception of a couple of years, the city has been Republican since Dr. Lawrence was elected to the Township Committee, and it was largely through his efforts that the old regime of affairs was changed. Dr. Lawrence has been township treasurer and is now president of the Board of Health.

MRS. STANBERY SUCCEEDS IN ENDING HER LIFE

Doctors Worked Hard Over Melancholy Woman Who Took Carbolic Abid.

HAD ACTED STRANGELY

Husband Learns of Her Death Hours After She Took Fatal Dose—She Came of Good Family.

Despite the efforts of three physicians who worked unceasingly to overcome the effects of the carbolic acid which she drank with suicidal intent, yesterday morning, Mrs. William R. Stanbery passed away at her home on Martine avenue, Fanwood, shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Her plight was discovered by a servant very soon after she had swallowed the fatal draught and Dr. Westcott was by her side in a few moments but her previous physical condition was such that he saw at once that death was almost inevitable. In the vain hope that the last faint spark of life might be fanned into a flame, he summoned Drs. Long and Clawson, of this city, and they continued in the attempt to revive her. At one time during the afternoon it was thought she was improving but it was only fer a few moments and then she seemed to sink faster.

Mrs. Stanbery was never what might be termed a strong woman and the succeeding events to the automobile accident at Dunellen two months ago in which her husband figured and which cost the life of Mrs. William A. Westphal, weighed heavily upon her mind. She became morose and melancholy and wasted away to almost a shadow of her former self. From being fond of sociability she withdrew to her home and received only her nearest friends. By them it was noted that she frequently acted in a manner totally foreign to her nature and for the past week or more they were not a little concerned over her nervous state.

Early yesterday morning Mr. Stanbery left in his automobile for Newark on business and she remarked to a servant that she would rest on a couch for a little while. Her young son, William Stanbery, Jr., was at school and no one was about when she raised the bottle of acid to her lips. The liquid had been imbibed and was performing its deadly work when the house maid came upon the half conscious woman and almost immediately discovered the cause. Efforts were made to get word to Mr. Stanbery but he could not be found and knew nothing of his wife's plight until word of her death was given him in this city at 7 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Stanbery was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Field, of East Front street, and had been a resident of Fanwod and vicinity all her life. She had a host of friends in this city who remembered her as a bright and vivacious young woman and news of her action and death came as a great shock. She is survived by a brother, Charles Field, of East Front street, and one son, William Stanbery, Jr.

CITIZENS HOLD SMOKER; EXPRESS CONFIDENCE

ANTI-ADMINISTRATION FORCES IN BOROUGH PLANNING A MASS MEETING.

While the Republicans were holding a mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall last night the Citizens' party gathered at its club room on Somerset street and enjoyed several speeches by prominent boroughites. The session was largely attended and very enthusiastic. Former Mayor Charles Place called the meeting to order, and Walter C. Linbarger was made chairman. Charles Harden was the secretary.

During the evening speeches were made by W. J. Conroy, candidate for Mayor; Brooks Carson, one of the delegates named to attend the Republican county convention, and named as a vice-president for the Republican mass meeting; Thomas E. Currin, Jr., candidate for borough council; Dr. W. E. Mattison, candidate for justice of the peace; A. V. D. Honeyman, Charles Keller and James Bird.

The remarks were all of an optimistic character and every one present felt confident of success for the Citizens' ticket at the coming election. Mr. Conroy spoke of the enthusiasm with which the ticket was being received by people of the borough and considered this a good indication of the result. The other speakers referred to the strong ticket nominated and the support assured for it.

The Citizens are planning to hold a large mass meeting at Saengerbund Hall, the date for which will be announced soon.

BENEFIT FOR THE EXCHANGE.

VanBuren, Miss Cock and Mrs. O. T. Waring received the guests.

The women conducting the exchange find it very difficut to successfully run this business on the small percentage received for this purpose and they are anxious that the exchange receive the support that it deserves.

Funeral of Collision Victim.

The body of Oscar Bowers, the victim of the trolley car-furniture van collision at Aldene Wednesday night, was brought to this city from Elizabeth yesterday. The funeral will be held from his late home on East Third street Sunday afternoon at 3:45. The motorman and conductor of the car have been released on bail pending an investigation.

A Tale of the Road.

E. R. Meagher, a Boston drummer, displayed a noisy jag on Park avenue last night and Officer McKeon arrested him. He wept in his cell and promised to be a good, good boy if he was let out. Judge Runyon suspended sentence this morning on the most subdued drummer he ever saw.

Approaching Nuptials.

Y. M. C. A. Prospects.

The annual prospectus of the Y. M. C. A. for 1905-06, a neat and interesting little booklet, was issued yesterday.

Principles of Bible Teaching.

W. D. Murray's class in principles and methods of Bible teaching opened at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Twenty members were enrolled, and as many more are expected to join later. The session was devoted mainly to a general discussion of the plan of work to be followed during the term. The course used is that arranged by Edwin F. See, of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., which is founded very largely on the normal lesson by Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, of East Orange, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church.

Stolen Horse Recovered.

The horse belonging to Swift & Company, taken from the stable at 243 Somerset street Wednesday night, was found yesterday at South Plainfield. The animal had undoubtedly been stolen and then adandoned because of its being branded on the hoof, as are all the beef company's horses. Both the city and borough police are working on the case, though they have but small hopes of landing the thieves.

—Levy Brothers' will have their general opening and big fall sale throughout their store Saturday. This will be a special bargain opportunity which will pay you well to attend.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Prosecutor Berdine has instructed Detective Mulvey, of his staff, to exert his best efforts to break up the Dewey Park gambling. The Prosecutor told Mulvey on Wednesday that the Sunday afternoon orgies must be stopped. Mulvey, it is understood, will sleuth about the place next Sunday, and if the games begin will arrest the ringleaders. Should the gang, frightened by the protests of the citizens, stay away next Sunday, Mulvey will hold himself to raid the crowd on receipt of word from Dunellen the first day they gather.

The members of the Dunellen team and a goodly number of their supporters will go to the ball game between the All-Plainfield nine and the Plainfield semi-professionals on the 14th, to cheer Howard Craig, who has been signed by Manager Dixon, of the All-Plainfields, to star work at short and at the bat. His friends are confident the young player will make a brilliant showing in both departments of the game.

The clam chowder supper at the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, last night, was a great success. It was well attended, and the chowder was delicious enough to tempt an anchorite. A pleasing programme of entertainment was presented after the supper.

William Piddington is studying law. His legal knowledge will be used in connection with a position to which he is to be promoted by his present employers, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, of New York.

Frank Hines, who moved from Dunellen a year ago after a few months' residence here, died in New York last week after a brief illness. He was to have been married next month to a Bound Brook girl.

One of the Italian laborers at Garretson & Gray's quarry, known to the office as "Rafferty," turned his ankle on a round stone yesterday morning. He was sent home in one of the wagons.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Lakeside Council, D. of L., last night. Two candidates were initiated and a social time followed the session.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

One of the great needs of South Plainfield is police protection. A few nights ago Albert Springer was held up by a hobo about 9 o'clock in the evening, half a mile out of the village, dragged from his bicycle and stripped of part of his clothing and struck with a club. Since that a man of the description given by Mr. Springer of his assailant has been hanging around the streets. Saturday night a man was frightened away from the premises of William E. Smith about midnight.

Judge Steele and family, of Park avenue, have returned from their summer home to Brooklyn.

DAABSTERS READY FOR THE HOLYOKE PLAYERS

"WARRY" M'LAUGHLIN TO BE ON THE SLAB FOR THE LOCALS.

Every loyal fan will be at Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon, when the Daabsters will meet the Holyoke team, champions of the Connecticut State League. These players from the Nutmeg State are recognized as a fast bunch and they will make the locals work all the time to win. The visitors, knowing the strength of the Plainfield team, will use their strongest battery and they will make every effort to score a victory on their first visit to this city. The Holyokes have been taking a trip through Pennsylvania since their season closed, and have succeeded in winning a majority of games.

Captain Driscoll is sure that his team will be able to defeat the Connecticut State Leaguers, and this is the opinion of every man on the team. Manager Daab has decided to use "Warry" McLaughlin on the slab, realizing that he knows the opposing team and can serve them with his puzzling and deceptive twisters. He will be ably backed up by "Jack" O'Neill and the whole team, every player being anxious to make a good showing in the closing days of the season.

It is the duty of every lover of baseball here to turn out at these games and support Mr. Daab. It costs money to give good baseball, and as Plainfield has had the best, there is no reason why it should not be supported well. This will be tomorrow's lineup:

Plainfield—Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Cregan, lf; Connolly, rf; Dalton, 2b; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; McLaughlin, p.

Holyoke—Hoffman, cf; Deal, 1b; Bannon, lf; Hartley, 2b, p; Lord, 2b; Shincel, c; Rememter, rf; Mauch, 3b; Dolan and Hodge, subpitchers.

TORE DOWN TRESTLE.

Summit Officials Thought Injunction Too Slow.

Summit, Oct. 6.—Summit city officers took drastic measures Wednesday night in the controversy with the Rahway Valley Railroad Company over the erection of a trestle over Sherwood avenue in East Summit. The company had placed the piers of this on the public street there without asking permission from the Common Council, and when the Council applied to Vice-Chancellor Stevens for an injunction to compel the removal of that part of the bridge extending on the public street it was denied.

Last night Councilmen Franklin Vreeland and Owens and Engineer Rich, with the entire police force and a large delegation of the city's workmen, sallied forth at about 11 o'clock nd attacked the piers and bridge. They soon had th eentire structure demolished, the councilmen directing the work. A foreman of the railway company was at the scene, but made no attempt to interfere.

Vice-Chancellor Stevens had refused the application for an injunction because, he declared, no injury had been shown and only the night previous to the attack on theb ridge the Council had adopted a resolution to renew the application and submit other papers on the question of an injunction.

This method was apparently too slow for the councilmen who led Wednesday night's attack.

MIDDLESEX DEMOCRATS NAME COUNTY TICKET

W. H. QUACKENBOSS, SHRIEVALTY CANDIDATE, IS AN UNDERTAKER.

New Brunswick, Oct. 6.—The Middlesex County Democratic convention met Wednesday in Armory Hall. The ticket was not completed until late in the afternoon, after four adjournments and half a dozen caucuses. There were no slates, and the principal difficulty seemed to be to get candidates who would be sure to stand. The ticket named was as follows:

For sheriff, William H. Quackenboss, of New Brunswick.

For members of Assembly, Bernard M. Gannon, Perth Amboy; Louis Hildbrandt, New Brunswick; L. P. Rose, South Amboy.

For county commissioners, Thomas F. Dunigan, Woodbridge; William Crowell, Perth Amboy; Thomas Meacham, New Brunswick; C. Addison Stultz, Monroe; John J. Quaid, Sayreville.

For coroner, A. J. Martin, New Brunswick.

Quackenboss, the shrievalty candidate, is an undertaker. When the notification committee found him he was just about to attend to a professional engagement. He drove up to the door of the convention hall on his hearse, which gave the wags a chance to make remarks, and when Mr. Quackenboss, in apologizing for seeming haste, said, "My funeral is at 4 o'clock," he was cheered.

For the county commission the Democrats have named one of the present Board of Freeholders, which has been legislated out of office, Thomas F. Dunigan.

B. M. Gannon, of the Assembly ticket, was elected in 1903 on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated the following year.

In addition to advocating equal taxation of railroad property, the platform favors an amendment of the automobile laws, economy in the revenues of the State, and the extension of good roads, and concludes with the declaration that "the time is now ripe for the restoration of the Democratic party to control of county, State and city government."

SOMERSET POLITICS.

County Chairman Shurts Thinks Childs Will Be Re-elected.

Bound Brook, Oct. 6.—The rumor that Senator Samuel S. Childs has selected Major Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, to manage his campaign this fall is declared to be untrue by the chairman of the county committee, Jacob Shurts, in an interview with a reporter here.

When asked what he thought of the chances for Democratic success in Somerset county this year Mr. Shurts said:

"Everything looks promising for the re-election of Senator Childs. He has made a good representative and is a man who will draw good support from independent Republicans."

"Who will be the Assembly candidate?" Mr. Shurts was asked.

"Major Dungan would make an ideal candidate, and efforts are being made to persuade him to accept the nomination. There is also a very strong sentiment in favor of Mr. Swackhamer. Personally, I consider him a strong man. The friends of former Sheriff McMurtry are booming him for the nomination. Just what they will amount to I am unable to say."

"Is there any disaffection over the county committee squabble that occurred some time ago?"

"No. Everything is all right now. That trouble was principally due to a misunderstanding among certain members of the committee."

"Is it true that Senator Childs has selected Major Dungan to manage his campaign this fall?"

"No, sir. There is absolutely nothing in that report. Mr. Dungan, I don't believe, ever thought of such a thing. Mr. Clark is the ablest political manager in Somerset county. He has managed Mr. Child's interests in the past and will no doubt do so again this year. At least I have heard nothing to the contrary."

MORE VOTING MACHINES.

Elizabeth to Get Four and Plainfield One.

Voting under the recent purchase of new voting machines Union county will receive five new machines, four of which will be sent to Elizabeth and one to Plainfield.

The Plainfield machine will be set up in the First district of the First ward.

The Elizabeth machines will be placed as follows: Sixth ward, Second district; Eighth ward, First district; Tenth ward, Second district; Twelfth ward, First district.

In addition to the new machines Union county had in operation last year ten machines, located as follows:

Elizabeth—Second ward, Second district; Third ward, Second district; Fourth ward, Second district; Fifth ward, First district; Ninth ward, Second district; Eleventh ward, First and Second districts.

Plainfield had three, located in the Second, Third and Fourth wards.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clifton, of West Seventh street, will leave on Sunday, October 15, for their winter home at Braidentown, Florida.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

"Warry" McLaughlin will do his best to beat Holyoke tomorrow, and the local team will do its share.

Don't miss the baseball at Crescent Oval tomorrow between the Daabsters and the Holyokes. It will be a fine exhibition.

"Red" Waller receives $40 for his Sunday games at Elizabethport, and when he wins an extra ten-spot is added to his weekly salary.

The Holyoke team defeated the York, Pa., team on Thursday, with McGlynn in the box for the Tri-State town. The score was 8 to 5.

Captain Driscoll, of the Daabsters, thinks that Plainfield is one of the best towns in the country and predicts that next season will be one fo the greatest in baseball history.

It is the fond wish of every local fan that after the post-season series between the Giants and the Athletics the Daabsters will be able to score another victory against Johnny McGraw's stars.

Captain Driscoll will give an exhibition of chasing burglars tomorrow when he circles the bases, but it to be hoped that the fire department will not have to be called to put out the side.

Manager Denman, although claiming to be in the game for sport's sake, has not been too magnanimous in his treatment of Plainfield, and his efforts for Uncle Sam's coinage has been just as strong as ever.

After getting five games out of Plainfield at Westfield, Manager Denman thought that he had about all there was in it and gave Plainfield only four games on Crescent Oval. Things will be different another year.

If Westfield returns to amateur baseball next year it will not be long before her fans will want to see the Plainfield games. After the article that has been put up at Recreation Park the fans will not be satisfied to see amateur games.

Manager Daab has made a host of friends in Plainfield during this, his first, season here. He has been found to be a man of his word, has given the baseball public the best article of ball it ever had and he has the admiration of very loyal fan.

Manager Denman says that it was Merity who helped the champions to win the pennant, and Plainfield's arbiter will always be a sore spot in Westfield's side. Too bad that the genial manager does not own right up that the Daabsters are the better players.

KILLED AT DESK.

Explosion in Cincinnati Court House Starts a Panic.

Cincinnati, Oct. 6.—Gas that had been escaping for a long time from a corroded pipe and had accumulated between the flooring and an iron porch of the second floor of the court house exploded Tuesday. Two men, Chief Clerk George Zimmerman, 50 years old, and his assistant, Russell Blair, 22 years old, of the county commissioner's clerical force, were crushed under falling debris, and killed almost instantly while at work at their desks.

George Kleeman, of the county auditor's office, was seriously injured. He was standing at the telephone in the same room, but he was partly out of the way of the mass of plaster, stone and iron that crashed through the ceiling as the gas exploded.

The leak had been sought for a week. Superintendent Patrick Walsh was tracing a pipe to tae point where the odor seemed strongest, when the lighted match he had in his hand caused the explosion. The explosion rocked the entire court house and jail, which occupy a whole block. Many windows in the court house were broken.

When the explosion came clerks rushed from their offices into the corridors; judges quit their benches; jurymen fled from their boxes and witnesses made mad dives for the nearest exits. There was a rush for the stairs and several persons were hurt. None of these, however, was seriously injured.

A LUCKY TUMBLE.

Millville Boys' Peculiar Discovery of Gold Coin.

Millville, Oct. 6.—Eli Hoffman, Jr., and William Slack, two South Millville lads, discovered a large sum of money in an old house at Clark's Mill, three miles south of this city, yesterday.

The old mill has not been operated for thirty years, and the house has not been inhabited since the shutdown of the old historical plant.

The boys were searching through the garret of the house when the floor suddenly gave way with Hoffman. As he scrambled to his feet he found a coin between the flooring and the ceiling of the second story, and, as he brushed away a bunch of straw, he discovered a bag he could scarcely lift.

He called to his friend, Slack, and together they were able to pull the bag out. The sack was rotten with age and fell to pieces, disclosing to the children a rich find in money.

They formed their coats into a bag and carried home the treasure. The parents of the boys are very reticent in speaking of the matter and will not tell the amount of the find, but it is believed that there was in the pile several hundred dollars.

BIG RALLY FOR SMALLEY

ed that he has attempted to control the patronage of the schools. It is also charged that as a result of that, a disorganization of our school affairs has begun which will lead, nobody knows where. For the final prediction I shall have to refer you to the chapter of lamentations which was written and published in the North Plainfield Review a few days after the last school election.

It is charged that this man brought politics into school affairs. Let me tell you they in North Plainfield are as pervasive as mosquitoes and just as hard to keep out, and during the two or three years that have just passed, it would have been impossible for anyone to keep politics out of the School Board, especially while we had the arch-politician of the Borough sitting as a member of that Board. Politics were not kept out; they were kept down as much as possible, and since the last election there has been less politics in the School Board than there was before.

Mr. Smalley's relation to the school affairs has been practically this: As a citizen of North Plainfield, like the rest of us, he has attended the district school meetings almost, if not quite, invariably, at least since I have been in the habit of attending, and has supported the request of the School Board for the vote of the special tax for the support of the school. Whatever influence he had in that meeting—and it is undoubtedly brief—has been thrown in favor of the proposition put before that meeting by the chosen representatives of the district, the Board of Education. In that, he has been, as I think, a good citizen.

A few years ago we were worried about a site for a new school. At that time there was one man and only one, so far as I know, in the Borough of North Plainfield, who had property to sell to us, but the only man in the Borough who came forward and offered to donate a site for the school, not pressing it upon us, but offering it to us, and that public spirit citizen was Newton B. Smalley (Loud applause). And I regret to say that the gentlemen of the Board of that time had not the good manners to acknowledge the kind intention by a vote of thanks. So much for that attempt to embarrass and confuse the work of the School Board.

Thirdly, in December or thereabouts, Mr. Valiant, than whom no better man ever served this Board, Mr. Valiant, the chairman of the Finance Committee of our Board, went to the Mayor and Council with the request from our Board that hereafter the full amount of the taxes voted at the annual district meeting be paid into the treasury of the school, whether it had been already collected from the taxpayers or not. That meant some embarrassment, I suppose, to the Borough Government, to be obliged to advance to the School Board all the funds which have been voted by the public. Before that time the Board had been considerably embarrassed by having to wait for taxes that were in arrears. That request was made by our Board through Mr. Valiant to the Mayor and Council—and we are informed that the Mayor is the Council, and certainly he must have had something to do with the decision which came promptly and courteously, acceeding to our request, and placing the School Finances of your District in the best situation that they have ever been in. There was never a greater improvement in our school administration than was accomplished by that in the co-operation between the Mayor and Council, and the Board of Education. You may say it was the law, and it was proper. It is true that it was the law, but the custom was the other way, and the custom in many municipalities in New Jersey is the other way; and had the Mayor and Council chosen to throw obstacles in our way, instead of assisting the Board of Education in its endeavors to simplify the administration of the school funds, they could have made us considerable trouble and I put that to the credit of Newton B. Smalley. If the voters of the District understood the far-reaching advantages which accrued to the schools from having control of their money annually, there would be a feeling of disgust at these attacks which are made upon the Mayor in connection with our educational affairs.

There is still another matter. The School Board has many teachers to hire, and a few appointments of other sorts to make. It has been my privilege during the five years I have served you as a member of the School Board to serve there as a member of the committee which selects the teachers, and I can say without any hesitation, that never within that time has there come from Mr. Smalley any request for the appointment of a teacher, or the employment of a teacher of any grade, or any demand for the dismissal of the teacher of any grade. It ought not to be necessary to say these things, but the insinuation is made that such has been the case. You all know some of the circumstances connected with the change of administration in the supervising principalship of the schools in respect to the gentleman who served here for eight years with a very large degree of efficiency. I don't propose to go into all the details of that, but I will say that my friend Mr. Smalley's connection with it was in the highest degree honorable. He was dissatisfied at some of the acts of that supervising principal. It is not his way to conceal from a man his opinion, and I have not the slightest idea that he concealed his feelings from the person in question, but so far as I know he made no demand, directly or indirectly, upon the Board, to make a change. He did what every man before me did. He exercised his franchise in public school meetings, in such a way that the person in question took it as an intimation that his work would be carried on elsewhere under pleasanter conditions, at any rate without waiting for the Board to take any action whatever he presented his resignation to the Board. There was no request from the Board for such a paper. It came to us at the time it did, before we had taken up the question of teachers for another year; it came to us as a surprise. I may say that while it was expected, there was, during a week or two when it was known that that paper was before us, there was no request from any quarter to act otherwise in regard to that paper.

If the gentleman left he can hardly say that he went in the face of a very large demand for his retention. And so, it seems to me that the attempt to involve the Mayor in these matters of school administration are prosy to you, but at the same time the facts ought to be brought out. The attempt to involve him in any way so as to bring discredit on him, is an attempt which should bring discredit back on the man who started these accusations. If that is despotism, the way in which the Board has come in contact with the Mayor, why, I think it would be a good plan to have a good deal more of it. I call it good citizenship, and I should welcome the time when the interest in our affairs, and the support of all that we are trying to do in our schools was as real and helpful from everyone as it has been from Mr. Smalley.

I shall not take up your time longer. We have several speakers who are to address you, and among them there is one amply able to meet insinuation with argument, and to answer inuendo with fact. I have reference to Senator Charles A. Reed, who will now address you (Applause, long, loud and continued).

REMARKS OF HON. CHARLES A. REED.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Before proceeding with my argument, which may be wearisome to many, I would suggest to the gentlemen standing in the rear of the hall, that there are plenty of seats right along in front, and I would be glad to have them come up and take them now, as they probably will be more comfortable, as the rest of us will be.

I am proud to be here this evening addressing such a body of citizens of North Plainfield. I am glad to have the opportunity to meet in public, and to speak in public, on the subject of "Our Car," who has been pictured to you from the pen and facile tongue of one or two of our citizens, as a great deal worse man than Nicholas of Russia ever could have been, and as the president of our Board of Education has just said, has been given out in a somewhat dual role of Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.

I feel myself somewhat acquainted with the subject of "Mayors," so far as North Plainfield is concerned. It has been my good fortune, and I trust not bad fortune of the citizens of the Borough, that I have acted as corporation counsel of this Borough under every Mayor, which it ever had, save one, John H. Van Winkle was the Mayor before I came to the Borough, but since that time, my official duties have been such that I have been brought in contact—necessarily brought in close contact—with every administration, which this Borough has had, and consequently I may be said to be somewhat—so far as North Plainfield's administrations are concerned—what you might call, or what they decall, an "expert witness," because I have "seen them all," and I know how they have all behaved, what their objects were, and their purposes, and their actions, and therefore, I say, I am possibly as well qualified to criticize, or to praise, the mayors whom we have had, as any one who has never been mayor, even though he has aspired to that place, and was rejected by the people—any one who has never been in the Council Chamber more than once a year, or something like that, since there has been a Council Chamber.

You gentlemen know me—most of you—and I am accustomed to saying about what I think, and am fairly honest, I take it, as honesty goes, in my dealings with my fellow man, and as I say, therefore, I am in a position to give you some information upon that subject.

Before I go into that further, I want to suggest that this is a Republican mass meeting, and that we are here advocating the election of a Republican ticket. Now, there is a Democratic party in this Borough, and it is natural, inasmuch as there are two parties, to inquire why there is a third one. What is the reason for the Citizens' ticket which was put up? Why was it necessary to go outside of the regular Republican, and the regular Democratic parties, in order to get a ticket for which the members of both parties can vote?

Now I think it stands to reason that if there was any great dissatisfaction among Republicans in the Borough with the administration, if any great number of Republicans in the Borough were opposed to the administration as given to us by Mayor Smalley, that if the Democrats had nominated a good straight Democratic ticket, a good ticket, those of the Republicans who are now supporting the Citizens' party would have supported that Democratic ticket and there would have been, if their predictions and claims are true, undoubtedly a Democratic Mayor elected, and Democratic councilmen elected, and Democratic officers elected, not only this fall, but a year ago last spring.

Now, I say, gentlemen, that being so, it being asserted that there is a great body of Republicans in the Borough of North Plainfield who cannot stand Smalley and Smalleyism, why is it those gentlemen did not say to the Democratic party, "Put up a good straight ticket, and we will elect it?" That is a question which it seems to me is a fair one to ask them.

Why didn't they put up a Republican ticket? Why, gentlemen, it is said that for some reason or other they could not. Well, the law you know, provides that any ten men in the Borough of North Plainfield, legal voters in this Borough, willing to sign a petition asking that the name of any other Republican in the Borough whom they may choose shall be printed on the primary ticket, any such ten men who are willing to say that at the last fall election they voted for a majority of the candidates on the Republican ticket, and that they intend to affiliate with the Republican party at the coming election may file a petition asking for the nomination of any man in the Borough that they choose for mayor, or for any other office to be filled, for all the other offices to be filled, indeed. So that our friends, the Republicans among the Citizens, had ample opportunity and right to suggest and to have printed upon the primary ticket the name of anybody they chose in the whole Borough for mayor, who would accept the office. Why didn't they do it? They say that a great majority, or a large part, of the Republicans in the Borough do not want Smalley; why didn't they suggest somebody else to put on the ticket, go in the primary and nominate him?

Now, I am putting this up to you gentlemen, because I want to make this point, there being regular parties, Republican on the one hand and Democratic on the other hand, through which the people can obtain the nomination and election of such men as they think will best serve their purpose, and the third party coming in that is neither Republican nor Democratic, but which gets together and calls itself a Citizens' party, that party must justify its existence. It is up to that party to show that such a situation arose in this Borough that they could not get a ticket made up in the ordinary way, they could not nominate a Democratic ticket which would be successful or stand a show of success, they were in the minority in the Republican party, and could not nominate anybody in that party who would be the right kind of a person, it is up to them to show why you should leave your Republican or Democratic fold, as the case may be, and follow off after this new god, and I ask you, have they justified the movement which they have begun?

Why, gentlemen, it reminds me of an old story which I think shows the reason why it was—the reason why they have taken this means of getting the offices. It is a story which I heard once about a man who was out gunning one day, and he had not been very successful; if any of you are gunners you will know that very few of us are successful; we never get as much game as we would like, or to have, or think we ought to have—in this part of the country, at any rate. This man had been gunning around all day, and he finally wandered down towards home in the evening, and the only thing he had to show for his day's shooting was an old woodchuck; he was carrying the woodchuck along the street, and it wasn't very much good to him, and he was about ready to throw it away, when he met three boys coming along the road; the boys asked him where he had been, and he said he had been gunning; they asked him if he had gotten anything, and he said he had gotten the woodchuck. What are you going to do with the woodchuck, asked one of the boys. "I don't know," he replied, "do you boys want it?" Oh, yes, all three of the boys wanted it. It was during a political campaign, and the hunter said, "Well you all want it, and I don't know which one to give it to—I will tell you what I will do with you, I will give it to the boy among you who tells me his politics and gives the best reason for his politics." The first boy started in and said he was a Republican, and the hunter asked him why. "Well," said the boy, "the Republican party fought the war, and they freed the negroes and they saved the Union, and they are a sound money party, and they are great stuff, and I am for them for that reason." "Well, that's pretty good, Johnnie, but," turning to the next boy, "what are you for?" The next boy said, "I am a Democrat." Why are you a Democrat?" asked the hunter. "I am a Democrat," said the boy, "Because it is the great party of Jackson and Jefferson, because it was the great party in the old days. It was the party that Tilden and Grover Cleveland stood for, and they were for the masses, and for State rights, and I am for the Democratic party every time." "Well," said the hunter, "that is pretty good, but," he said to the third boy, "what are your politics?" The third boy said, "I belong to the Citizens' party." "Why do you belong to the Citizens' party," asked the hunter. "Well," he replied, "I belong to the Citizens' party because I want that woodchuck." (Laughter and applause) I'm one of them.

Now in my judgment, the reason for the existence of a Citizens' party just at this time—now mind you I don't say the reason for the existence of some differences of opinion around here, and Republicans voting for some Democrats, or Democrats voting for some Republicans, but the reason that there is a Citizens' party is because the leaders of that party, some of them Republicans, and part of them Democrats want the woodchuck, and the Republican end of it can't get the woodchuck if the Democratic end is successful, and the Democratic end of it can't get the woodchuck if the Republican end is successful, and therefore they must have this combination in order that this conglomeration, partly Republican and partly Democratic, shall succeed, and they may divide the offices up to suit themselves.

Now I don't mean to be understood as saying that there are not a great many good people in the Citizens' movement. They have been, in my judgment, most of them misled, misformed as to facts; they have been told stories, they have been listening to insinuations and inuendoes; they have been flattered, some of them by being patted on the back and made to believe by the leaders of that movement that they are very great people, and have been misled one way or another to support the movement. There are among them again people who have been disappointed in political ambitions and would like to see somebody downed, because somebody they think has downed them on some occasion. The bone and sinew of that party, the foundation for it in the first place, is the old volunteer fire department, the men which, I say, and yet there they have been treated badly, some disaffected people who have, one way or another, been led to think that things were not coming their way, but behind them all there are, as I say, a number of good and substantial and honest citizens.

Now our friend, Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman, who seems to be the high priest of that conglomeration of leaders, has fortunately for us put himself in plain type and published a circular containing a speech delivered at a meeting of the Citizens, at which they made up this ticket which they are now running, and I want to take up for a moment of your time some of his reasons why they object to Smalley.

They say he is a perpetual candidate, and they are opposed to perpetual candidates. Very well. Now I am inclined to think that might be a good reason, if it was consistent, a good reason if it is a true and consistent reason. Now let us see. They say Smalley is a perpetual candidate, and therefore they are against him. Honeyman is the man who voices that sentiment. I think it is a creation of his, that "Perpetual candidate" is a term he has coined. He objects to a perpetual candidate. As you gentlemen know, and as has been before, the largest amount of money which you pay into the treasury through your tax bills is spent by the Board of Education. It has more to do with the spending of your money than has the Mayor and Council; the Mayor and Council collect about twenty thousand dollars for the purpose of running the entire Borough Government, they collect that by taxation, while the Board of Education there gets some twenty-five thousand dollars or twenty-six thousand dollars for the purpose of running the schools, and they are run honestly, and they are good schools. We are for the schools—I am, as far as I am concerned; I believe we cannot have too good an education for our children. As long as we are able to pay for it, we want to give them everything we can, so long as we don't go beyond our means, and I do not think we have gone beyond our means. For my own part, while I have children, yet they do not attend the public school, but I am glad to pay my share of the taxes for the public schools because I believe it is a good thing, and I don't want you to understand me as criticizing the schools. But I say that the Board of Education is one of the most important bodies so far as your finances are concerned, let alone so far as the education of your children is concerned, that the community has, and Honeyman is opposed to the perpetual candidacy of any man who is going to take part in the expenditure of that amount of the public funds. Very well. Mr. Smalley has been mayor six years and a fraction; he has served three terms, and has been renominated for a fourth. A. V. D. Honeyman was elected to the Board of Education in 1896, and he has served three terms of three years each, making nine years, and at the end of that third term, at the end of the nine years he ran again for a fourth term so as to make it twelve years, and the reason he is not serving us now is not because he did not believe in perpetual candidacy so far as Honeyman is concerned, but because he did not get enough votes (Laughter and applause). That is consistent, is it not?

Well, now let us take another one; Honeyman will say, "I am not running, I have seen a new light since I ran last spring for school trustee and was beaten. I have discovered since then it is the wrong thing to elect any man for a fourth term, and therefore I am against Smalley." But let us take somebody else,—how about Conroy? Now Mr. Conroy is a good man, I am not going to say a word against Mr. Conroy, and I want to say this, gentlemen, that so far as I know, and I know something about it because I was a party to it, Mayor Smalley did not want to run again, and I and other gentlemen went about this Borough trying to find some Republican who would accept the nomination for Mayor and, I talked with Charles L. Nichols, both of these personally, I went to Charles W. McCutcheon, gentlemen were anti-annextionists. There could not be any annexation in this fight, we were anxious to get them to announce the nomination for Mayor. So, too, with Robert Clark, Jr., Capt. William P. Smith and James K. Arnold, Peter A. A. Emmons and various other people; we tried to find somebody who would accept the nomination for mayor, and I want to give you my word that we could not find and did not hear of a single man in the Borough of North Plainfield who really hungered after being mayor of this Borough, not one of them. William J. Conroy was the only one as far as I know.

But I was speaking about perpetual candidates, and if I am correctly informed Conroy ran for councilman not long ago; he ran again, so I am told, for collector. George Brown tells me that he remembers running against Conroy (Laughter). Now I am told that he also ran for mayor, and Smalley has some recollection of running against him for mayor; that is three times he has run, and now he is running for mayor again,—and yet they do not believe in perpetual candidates! (Laughter).

Isn't that a sweet-scented story to put up as a reason for saying that Smalley ought not to be elected—that they do not believe in perpetual candidates? Honeyman says that this Smalley ticket—that Clifford W. McGee and Edward P. T. Smith, and the rest of the Republican ticket, was made up by a few ringsters, and that every man who was for that ticket in its inception wore the Smalley collar. Now, gentlemen, I say that the petition which was filed for the nomination of Smalley and the rest of the ticket, you will find on the list such men as the following—and not one of those whose name I mention, and it only takes ten to file a petition, not one was in my office or has been in my office as far as I know; would like to see them there, but they have not been there. Who is Robert Clark, Jr.—he wears the Smalley collar does he? They say he does, and he is one of the men who petitioned for Smalley's nomination.

Charles W. McCutcheon is another, and he is a man who goes around wearing a great big starched collar with "Smalley" printed all around the back of it (Laughter). He has not been in my office, and he is one who signed the petition.

Then there is Charles L. Nichols, he was a member of the council under Smalley; he was an anti-annexationist; Smalley could not coerce him to vote or work on that proposition and, he has not been in my office since I don't know when.

Another signer was Edward S. Hooley; he was another anti-annexationist; Smalley could not lead him in that proposition at any rate, and if anybody says that he wears a Smalley collar, I have not seen it.

Garrison Coddington is another; he was an anti-annexationist and a member of the council at the same time with Smalley.

Then there is C. V. D. Van Zandt, Nelson A. Miller, J. E. McClintock and others, and I could go on and give you the names of the gentlemen who signed the petition, asking that Smalley's name be put on the primary ticket, and they are all that same class of men. Some of them were in my office, there were twenty signatures or more to that petition, but most of them were not there, and none of them belonged to any ring which can be cornered up and made to wear any man's collar.

Our friends say that they are opposed to the primary law; they say that any law which will enable a man to go into a primary and vote to make up a ticket which he at the time does not mean to support, is a bad law. There is a good deal to be said on both sides concerning that law, and I, for myself, do not think that any man should go into a primary and participate in making up a ticket in that primary unless he intends to affiliate with that party after the ticket is made up. In other words, I don't think it would have been right for Smalley's friends to go into a Citizens' meeting and try to nominate somebody in that meeting other than the man they wanted elected. I don't think it would be a fair shake, and I don't think it is a fair shake for a Republican to go into a Democratic primary or vice versa. For my part I think a law which says a man who is suspected of intending not to support a ticket that he is trying to make up—a law which says he can be made to say that he does not intend to support the ticket, is not a bad law.

But I did not make that law. It is not my law, but there was a gentleman who sat on the platform of the Citizens' meeting and heard Honeyman denounce this law as an outrageous law, a law which deprived citizens of their constitutional rights, there was a gentleman who sat there who did make that law, or take part in its making, and he never opened his mouth, and that was Samuel S. Swackhammer; he voted for that law, and Samuel Childs voted for that law, and if there is anything bad about that law they should go to the party that made it, and not come to us. We didn't make it—its their animal, let them skin it (Laughter).

Another thing they find a great deal of fault about, gentlemen, is the arresting of a citizen without a warrant. I want to tell you what that means. Have any of you gentlemen been arrested without a warrant; how many of you have been arrested with a warrant or without one (Laughter)? Do you find anybody chasing around and trying to nab you; can you go by the police without dodging; have your homes been invaded and you hauled off to a dungeon without any excuse? I don't think so, and yet there are people would make you believe, or try to make people believe, who do not know any better, that the Borough authorities and the Mayor are grabbing every man who is obnoxious to them and throwing him into the deepest dungeon beneath the castle moat.

Now what does it mean? Why, it is this old John Goodwin case, Charles Sebring, who was a personal and political friend of Mayor Smalley's, had an old house up in Front Street, in Plainfield, which he wanted to move to Grove Street in the Borough; people having property in the neighborhood in which he wanted to put it did not want it there. They said it would be a detriment and injury to their property, an eyesore, and that it was not a proper house to put there. Sebring went to Mayor Smalley and asked him for a permit to move that house into the Borough, and the Mayor said, "No, Charlie, I cannot give it to you, it is something I cannot do." Well, Charlie persisted and the Mayor said "You can go before the Council, and if the Council wants to vote to give you that permission well and good, but I will not do it." Sebring went before the Council and asked for a permit, and the Council unanimously refused to grant it, whereupon Sebring announced that he was going to move that house into the Borough, permit or no permit. What did the Council do? It notified the police and the Street Commissioner to see that the house was not moved into the Borough, and was not taken up Grove Street, and put on the lot where Sebring proposed to put it. Sebring proceeded to move the house. You all know that in moving houses heavy timbers are used. I want to say right here, gentlemen, that Goodwin criticized the Mayor and the Council for refusing to let that house be moved into the Borough; it is my belief that John Goodwin and his associates would have criticized the Mayor just as severely if the vote of the Council on the decision of the Mayor had been the other way. In other words, if the Mayor and Council had said, "Yes, Sebring, you can put your house up there," Goodwin would have denounced that as an outrageous act; they having refused to Plainfield, N. J., October 6, 1905.

Not in many a long year has there been such a convention as that held yesterday by the Union county Republicans. From the very moment that the chairman rapped for order until the nominees made their speeches of acceptance was there the least sign of boss rule or dictation of any kind. Withal it was stripped of any unpleasant features, excepting, maybe, when Dr. Mravlag lost his head and protested against making Dr. Lawrence's nomination unanimous. The ticket is a good one. Ernest R. Ackerman is of the right Senatorial timber. In fact he wouldn't make a bad successor to Congressman Fowler. There is no use wasting words in bringing out the merits of Plainfield's representative on the ticket. Everyone knows him and knows just what he is. The convention made no mistake. As for Dr. Lawrence, the class of men who came from Summit to boom his candidacy speaks well for the man. But the platform—that's another thing. Some shrewd heads were evidently gotten together to build one that would contain a whole lot of empty words. No fear of that platform being battered to pieces—there's not enough to it.

JR. O. U. A. M. CELEBRATION.

Franklin Council to Observe Eighteenth Anniversary.

The committee in charge has about completed arrangements for the eighteenth anniversary of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., which will be observed in the lodge rooms on Thursday night, October 12. Instead of making this affair one for the members of the council, it has been decided to invite the wives and women friends as well, and it promises to be one of unusual interest. An entertainment which will occupy about two hours' time has been prepared. This will be furnished chiefly by local talent, while a professional entertainer from New York will assist. Included in the entertainment will be a farce comedy by members of Franklin Council.

Franklin Council is the oldest of the kind in this city or vicinity. It was organized eighteen years ago in what was then the Sons of Temperance rooms located in the City National Bank building. The affair was an event of more than ordinary interest, councils from all parts of the State taking part in a monster parade. The council has prospered and continued to grow until it has a membership of nearly 300, and is one of the most influential organizations in the city.

Invitations to the anniversary have been extended to nearby councils and it is expected that some of the State officers will be present and assist in making it an event long to be remembered.

LEAL'S FIRST GAME.

The Leal's School and Plainfield High School football elevens will meet tomorrow morning on the Cricket Field for the first time this season and more than usual interest is being shown. Leal's team is in first-class condition. The backs are speedy. Gutieriez will strengthen the line very much, while the ends are very fast and sure of their tackles.

Leal's lineup for tomorrow will be as follows:

ENGINE DISABLED.

Frank Wynkoop in Second Accident at Cranford.

Cranford, Oct. 6.—The forward equalizer on engine No. 219, attached to train No. 105, and known as the Somerville local, due here at 9:15 a. m., broke a short distance east of the Cranford depot yesterday morning. Engineer Frank Wynkoop succeeded in getting the train as far as the station, where passengers for Philadelphia changed to the fast line trains which were flagged to stop.

Train No. 105 picks up passengers all along the line who change at Plainfield for Philadelphia. The disabled engine was replaced for another locomotive from Jersey City, and after a half hour's delay the local proceeded west. Engineer Wynkoop figured in an accident here a short time ago, when the water grate of his engine broke and he was compelled to crawl out of the front end of the cab to save himself from being scalded by steam.

DECISION SAVES $75,000.

Middlesex Cannot Now Spend that Additional Sum on Bridge.

New Brunswick, Oct. 6.—H. B. Willis, counsel for the Board of Freeholders, by his decision that the Perth Amboy bridge is a completed structure, has created consternation in the camp of the board and their friends.

Mr. Willis holds that the board did not have statutory authority to issue the $75,000 bonds for the building of the three steel spans, which were designed to correct the faults of the present structure, because the bridge was already completed, and the act under which the money would be raised provides that "the money shall be spent for building a new bridge or completeing one under course of construction."

The plan to build the three steel spans has, there fore, been dropped.

MRS. BOURNE PRESIDENT.

Newark Woman Made Head of State W. C. T. U.

Passaic, Oct. 6.—At the meeting of the State Women's Christian Temperance Union yesterday morning the old officers were re-elected as follows: Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark, president; Mrs. I. H. Demarest, of Closter, secretary; Dr. Eva Lake, of Pleasantville, recording secretary; and Mrs. H. L. Caminade, of Camden, treasurer.

The Chautauqua salute was given the new officers when election had been declared. The officers each received handsome bouquets of flowers, and the Essex county and Passaic county delegations gave Mrs. Bourne bouquets. The address yesterday morning was that of Mrs. A. Swan Brown, of this city, the head of the scientific department.

Hanged Himself in Barn.

Elizabeth, Oct. 6.—Henry E. Tillou, sixty-three years old, a life-long resident of Lyons Farms, committed suicide there some time last night by hanging himself in his barn. He was a cider manufacturer and ran a large cider mill at the Farms. He leaves a widow and two daughters. The body was brought to Haines' morgue in this city. The dead man has two brothers-in-law here, Lieutenant Thomas T. Tillou and Edward Tillou.

Col. Peart Coming.

Col. Peart, second in command of the Salvation Army in the United States, will be present at the dedication services of the new building on East Second street Sunday afternoon, November 5. By request, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and the consistory of the church have given Col. Peart permission to speak in Trinity Reformed church on Sunday morning, November 5, preceding the dedication of the new hall.

Man Hurt by Train Dies.

Trenton, Oct. 6.—Robert L. Abbott, sixty-five years old, of Stockton, died at St. Francis Hospital Wednesday night of injuries received while working on a coal trestle near Stockton. Abbott was a coal shoveler and was deaf. A train was backing up the trestle, and before he could evade it he was thrown to the track. His skull was fractured, several ribs broken and his right arm cut off at the shoulder.

Council Meets Monday Night.

When the adjourned meeting of the Common Council is held on Monday night it is expected that several matters relative to sanitary and storm sewers will be introduced. These matters have been delayed for over a month and it is now the desire of the street commissioner that action on the ordinances be taken.

Two Horses Burned in Barn.

DID PINCHED PEDDLER SAVE MONEY OR LOSE?

JUDGE RUNYON DISPOSES OF CASE AS SOLOMON MIGHT.

When Harry Friedman, of New York, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, charged with peddling without a license, he had an explanation all ready.

"I got into town so late yesterday afternoon, your honor," he said in a businesslike tone, "that I had scarcely time to get a license. I intended to get one the first thing this morning."

Judge Runyon looked pleasantly at the prisoner.

"Oh, if that was your intention and you still hold to it—you do? Well, I'll send the officer with you to introduce you to the city clerk."

Plain-clothes man McCarthy took Friedman to the city clerk's office and the peddler got his license. It cost him $10. If he told the truth, he is in a fine. If he told the story of his intentions as a bluff he is out about $8. Judge Runyon rarely makes peddlers' fines more than $2. Friedman's expression when he came back to headquarters after his grip led the cynical cops to decide that he had been stung.

A CHURCH RALLY.

Methodist Women Present Program in Vincent Chapel.

The annual fall rally of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church attracted a large number of members of the church and congregation to Vincent chapel last night. The chapel was attractively decorated with autumnal foliage, cozy corners and easy chairs, and the general feeling of genuine sociability added greatly to the pleasure of all. It was the first opportunity that the members had had of getting together since the summer season and the event marked the resumption of activities in this department of church work.

The programme, which was in charge of the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, was a select one. It comprised several delightful piano solos by Miss Frances Weir, and charming contralto solos by Miss Hubbell, accompanied on the piano by Miss Sarah Mae Howell. They opened the programme with selections, and after an intermission of a half hour for sociability they gave other selections, all of which were cordially received. Following the programme the social features were continued and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Henry A. McGee and Mrs. Olin L. Jenkins had charge of the entertainment; Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. James Love and Mrs. I. L. McVoy, the refreshments; Mrs. A. C. McCrea and Mrs. Henry a McGee were at the head of the reception committee and the decorations were the work of Mrs. Charles E. Horne and Miss Sarah Mae Howell.

RIBBONS FOR LOCAL HORSES.

Three Awards at the Morristown Horse Show.

The only incident that caused the least excitement at the Morristown Horse Show, yesterday, was in the exhibition of harness horses in Class 8. Barbara, Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley's chestnut mare, seemed the sure winner of the blue ribbon, but of a sudden she "went up in the air" and began prancing about on her hind feet. For a minute it looked as though Barbara was going over backward, but she soon dropped to all fours and received the orange. She also received a fourth for runabout horses.

Babe, Miss Mabel Hooley's horse, took first for novice harness horses, and Miss Banahan, W. J. Buttfield's horses, took third for roadsters.

do so, he immediately denounced that as an outrageous act.

As I was saying, large timbers are used in moving houses, and I am informed that Goodwin went to Sebring, who was using the timbers, and said to him, "I am one of the trustees of the church which owns the lot down by the brook, and you can store your timbers on that church lot if you want to." And that Charlie did put timbers on that Church lot until the time came when he wanted to use them. He got the house down on the bridge and had a gang of men there for the purpose of moving the house, and they took the timbers and laid them in the street; the Street Commissioner notified Sebring to remove the obstruction, and he refused to do so, whereupon the Street Commissioner hooked a team of horses to one of these logs and started to move it out of the middle of the street, when Goodwin ran out and took the team by the head and said, "You can't put that log on the Church lot." Goodwin was not on the church lot at the time; he was in the street at the time; the Street Commissioner had not even said that he was going to put the logs on the church lot. There were logs on the church lot, and as I understand it Goodwin said, "Sebring can put all the logs on the church lot he wants to, but Newton Smalley cannot put any there." He grabbed this team of horses and attempted to stop the removal of this obstruction from the street. The Marshal was there and made an arrest. They say that the Marshal should have gone down town somewhere and hunted up some body and got a warrant and then come back and made the arrest. But that is not the law, and it never has been. It has always been the law that if a police officer sees a man in the act of violating the law or an ordinance, he has a right to arrest him on view. If he did not see him do that, and if somebody else saw him, it is the duty of that someone else to make a complaint, and the warrant is then issued. But if the officer sees the act committed, he must arrest immediately without any warrant. That has always been the law, and what would follow if it was not? Suppose a couple of men got in a friendly scrap out in the street, and were knocking each other's heads off, would you advise George Weiss to hunt up somebody and get a warrant for their arrest, or should he arrest them then and there? If an officer sees a violation of the law being committed, of course it is his duty, without waiting for any warrant, to make an arrest. This arrest was made, the man was taken before the Recorder and fined ten dollars; he took his money out of his pocket to pay the fine, and some of the citizens immediately set up a yell and cried, "Don't you pay it; we can make something out of this. Don't you pay it; we can raise money and appeal the case and make something out of it." They did raise money, and they gave it to our friend Swackhammer, who took the case to the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court said that the conviction was right, that he should have been convicted, and yet they are going around now talking about —think of it, gentlemen—the outrageous arrest of this man Goodwin as a reason why Smalley should be put out of office. Now that is the kind of argument they are using.

Time is getting on, and I must not take up too much of your attention, but there is another thing that Honeyman says, and this is really amusing to one who likes to look into that sort of thing, to see how inconsistent it is. He takes up a list of the mayors of North Plainfield who have served through previous years, and he says their names should be painted high on the roll of fame, that they were great men, and that such men as they were we should return to. Then he proceeds to say that no one of these men ever did something or another, and he enumerates a whole lot of things which no one of these mayors ever did, and after I got through reading it I was trying to find something that one of them ever did do (Laughter).

I do not mean to criticise the former mayors of North Plainfield, they did the best they could under the circumstances. They were all honest men and all capable men, and all men who were doing the best they could, and I don't mean to criticise them, but Honeyman says that no one ever did certain things, insinuating that Smalley did those things. I will take one of the things that Smalley did in a minute. But Honeyman says more than that. He says, "Talk about there being 'nothing wrong in Borough affairs,' and and that 'This administration stands on its past record,' why," he says, "there isn't a good thing about which credit is claimed by the present mayor that was not put in operation first by the preceding mayor, John F. Wilson, who renovated the old-fashioned custom of doing business in a slip shod way." Why does he want to be slapping at them? "And that Wilson alone is entitled to the credit of the reforms in bookkeeping, in having public accountants approve of the Treasurer's accounts, and in requiring that public expenditures be made upon a business basis."

He said that Wilson put the Borough on a business basis, that everything before that was slipshod. Is not that a kind of a left-handed slap at those fellows he has just put on the roll of fame (Laughter). It looks to me as though he had forgotten what he said. But he says that everything good that Smalley has done during the last six years, is the result of Wilson's administratiog, and Smalley deserves no credit. I will admit that Wilson was a good mayor, one of the best you ever had; he did investigate the accounts of the financial end of our Borough, and it did result in putting back some nine thousand dollars into the Borough treasury that had gotten out in some way; he did make a good mayor, and he did, with the councilmen who were with him, do good work, and when he went out of office at least three of the councilmen who served under Mayor Wilson continued to serve with Mayor Smalley, and when they went out of office everyone of them said that Mayor Smalley's administration of the office had been admirable.

Among those men was the late lamented John Valiant, who said no longer ago than last spring whe he was asked to run for Mayor of the Borough "You could not get a better man for that office than Mayor Smalley, I have not got the time to attend to it, I give it to him again." (Loud applause.)

Then Honeyman goes on to make out that the Mayor is responsible for increased tax rates.

I have gone over that recently and have sent out a pamphlet on the subject and the fact is, as you can read, or learn by reading it if you have a mind to, that there is only one item in the tax bill that the Mayor has the slightest control over and that is the single item of the Borough tax, that is to say, the item which goes under the head of "Borough Tax"—rate seventy-six cents this year on the hundred dollars, the only money spent by the Mayor and Council. All the rest of the tax bills comes from entirely different courses over which he has absolutely no control. The department over which Smalley has been "reigning" as they say has reduced that tax rate since he went into office five cents on the hundred dlolars; the increase is another department over which he has no control.

There is another thing Honeyman says Smalley does that no former Mayor ever did. Now listen to this, "no one of these Mayors whose names are high on the roll of honor ever caused a Borough Treasurer to take the fund of the Borough out of a strong National Bank," now listen to it—now "just because some of the employes in that bank refused to vote for him." If Smalley had caused that treasurer to take the funds out of a strong National Bank for that reason we might say he was a petty sort of a fellow, but he did not do it. Every bank wants the Borough account because the Borough gets its money in December at the end of the fiscal year and has to borrow money all the year round; it is a borrower and the banks make money out of the borrower and that it the reason they want it, and they all want it.

Now did Mayor Smalley force the Borough Treasurer to take the Borough funds out of strong National Bank because somebody in that bank would not vote for him? That is a fair specimen of the sort of statements which you get from this "Baron Munchausen" of later days.

Up to and including 1902 the stock of the First National Bank held by the Van Deventer or Brunson estate was assessed for taxation in the Borough. The reason for that is that bank stock is assessable in the taxing district in which the owner resides and the owners of that bank stock resided in the Borough and consequently the stock was assessable in the Borough and the Borough treasury got the benefit of the tax. I know A. J. Brunson and I know his name is on the registry list and he expects to vote here this fall; while he happens to be occupying a house elsewhere, he claims to vote here.

In 1902 the assessment on that bank stock was as follows:—It was valued for the purpose of taxation by the assessor at $65 per share although the par value was $100 per share and the market value $128 or $130 per share, but the valuation placed upon it by the assessor was a fair one under all circumstances. In that year, 1902, the number of shares of the capital stock of that bank held by the Brunsons and the Van Deventer estates and taxed in the Borough was six hundred and forty-four shares. The assessed valuation was $41,860 and the taxes paid into the Borough treasury thereon that year amounted to $1,050.

Now I want to tell you gentlemen that the valuation of the Borough being about two and one-half millon in order to raise a thousand dollars by tax four points must be added to your tax rate; one point increase on your tax rate will raise about $250 in taxes and a raise of $1,000 means four points and this $1,080 meant four points in the tax rate.

In 1903 and subsequently that stock was not taxed in the Borough for the reason that it was transferred to a corporation called the Van Deventer Corporation, having its principal office located in the obscure rural township of Buena Vista in the County of Atlantic. The total tax rate of that Township in 1904 was $1.34 on the hundred. So you see, when the stock was transferred to the Van Deventer Corporation, the principal office of that corporation being located for the purpose of the incorporators, in Buena Vista Township, Atlantic County, the stock became, according to law, owned in Buena Vista and therefore it became taxable there because the corporation which owned it resided there, its principal office being there and as I said, the tax rate in that township is $1.34. The result of transferring that stock out of the Borough and into Buena Vista Township would be to take $1,080 out of the Borough treasury, that is to say out of the tax rateable and to put whatever it was assessed at in Buena Vista Township into the treasury of that township, but the rate down there being very much lower than it is here it would be a benefit to the owners even though it was assessed at the same price. Buena Vista Township is something like Warren Township, it has not any street lights or police or anything which requires the expenditure of very much money, consequently their tax rate is very low.

I have a letter here as follows:

Trenton, Aug. 16, 1905.

Mr. N. B. Smalley,
North Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your favor of the 15th inst. I beg to say that the charter of the Van Deventer corporation was filed in this department May 13, 1903. The object of the corporation, briefly stated, is to deal in securities.

The authorized capital stock is $100,000; the amount actually issued and outstanding is $1,000 as set forth in a report filed June 5, 1902.

Very respectfully,
S. D. Dickinson,
Secretary of State.

P. S.—I would respectfully refer you to the Hon. J. Willard Morgan, State Comptroller, relative to the taxes assessed against this corporation.

And here is another letter:

Trenton, Sept. 5th, 1905.

N. B. Smalley, Esq.,
Mayor,
North Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of the second inst. has been received. The Van Deventer corporation has been assessed a State tax of $1 for the current year, which tax was paid June 20, 1905.

This department has no knowledge of the location of any property belonging to the company and the tax assessed is for State purposes only.

The address of the corporation is, Chas. North, Agent, Richland, N. J.

Very respectfully,
J. Willard Morgan,
Comptroller.

The following letter is from the Board of Assessors of Plainfield and is dated August 17, 1905.

Mr. Alfred Pennock,
Beuna Vista, Atlantic Co.,
New Jersey.

Assessor Beuna Vista Township.

Dear Sir:

It is reported by the First National Bank of Plainfield, N. J., that 923 shares of the capital stock of that bank of the par value $100 (or $92,300) belong to "The Van Deventer Corporation," organized under the law of this State. The Secretary of State informs us that the principal office of "The Van Deventer Corporation" is Richland, Beuna Vista Township, Atlantic Co., and that the name of the agent in charge of the office is Charles North.

Of course you understand that if the principal office of this corporation is in your township it is my duty to notify you about this stock and yours to assess it for the benefit of your township just as if it was held by an individual heir. The stock of this bank held in Plainfield is assessed here at $75 per share, which would make an assessment here of $69,225; that is what we would assess this stock if it was owned here.

As I am Assessor of the District in which this bank is located, please advise me whether or not you have assessed this stock and if so for how much.

If you are no longer Assessor, please forward this to your successor.

Yours very truly,
H. C. VanEmburgh,
Secretary.

Here is the reply from the office of the Buena Vista Assessor, Mr. Alfred Pennock:

Buena, N. J., Aug. 21, 1905.

Mr. H. C. VanEmburgh.

Dear Sir:

Yours of the 17th at hand, in reply would say that two years ago I was directed by the Township Committee to assess $20,000 bank stock to the Van Deventer Corporation of Plainfield.

Nine hundred and twenty-three shares at one hundred dollars make $20,000.

"There was on alteration made at the revising of the duplicate last July by the Committee. I am writing A. J. Brunson, President of the Van Deventer Corporation, with your letter enclosed advising him that this stock has to be assessed here the same as you would assess it as assessor somewhere else. This corporation has an office at Charles North's store in Richland, but I never could meet anybody there."

I don't think he could.

"I laid your letter before the Township Committee on the 17th. As I understand this, the reason they have headquarters here is our rate is low.

I think that is the reason too.

I will advise you when I hear from Mr. Brunson.

Yours respectfully,
Alfred Pennock, Sr.

Now gentlemen what does that mean? Smalley was Mayor of this Borough, he was a director in that bank, the bank had the business of the Borough and was making money out of the Borough. The President of the bank who controls nearly a majority of the whole capital stock and to whose credit goes nearly fifty cents out of every dollar that bank makes, whether from the Borough business or elsewhere, for the purpose of relieving himself of the payment of taxes in the Borough transfers this stock to Buena Vista Township, thus depriving the Borough of $1,080 in taxes, he transfers it legally, I do not pretend to say he did not technically have the right to do it, but he did it, and what would the Mayor—what would anybody—do? Mayor Smalley said, "If you are going to treat the Borough in that way the Borough funds will go into another bank." And that is what they did and that is the reason they went there. (Loud applause.)

Not only that but he resigned from the the directorate of that bank and I say that the citizens of this Borough ought to feel proud of the man. And then this man Honeyman gets up and says no former mayor ever resigned simply because the employes of the bank would not vote for him. What do you think of that? That's the kind of powder they are shooting, that's the kind of stories they are telling and that is the kind of truth there is in them.

It is said that the Citizens' candidate for mayor is a customer of that bank. It is certain that one of the Citizens' candidates for the Council is a clerk in that bank. If you want the account put back in that bank vote for them.

My old friend, Dr. Carroll, was down at the Citizens' meeting and he made a speech. We have a report of it taken stenographically and I have no doubt it is correct. He is a friend of mine, I like him and admire him in some respects. He said, "What we want is an honest, faithful, impartial and economical administration of the business of the Borough; anything more than that we have no right to ask and we do not ask for." Well now, do you gentlemen want a dishonest, partial, unbusinesslike administration? Has anybody ever charged out in the open where he could be met and answered that a dollar of the Borough's money has been filched or stolen or misapplied since Smalley has been Mayor? If anybody knows of such being done let him get up and say so now. I have not heard of it. Has anybody claimed that the administration has not been economical—is it true? Has not the department over which this Mayor has presided reduced the tax rate as applied to that department and at the same time given you a great many things you never had before when you had a higher Borough tax rate? A paid and up-to-date fire department that everybody knows is better than any we ever had before. (Loud applause.) And increased the street lights, increased the police force, secured street sprinkling at the expense of the public instead of private subscription and yet put down the tax rate! And they say he is not economical. And they talk about being "impartial"! Mr. Conroy in his speech of acceptance says that if he is elected Mayor he will run the Borough on a business basis and not on a political basis; and he is going to appoint people to office with regard to fitness and not with regard to votes. I wish Mr. Conroy would answer me this—maybe there are some of the citizens here and if so I would like them to take it to him and see what he says—if he is elected Mayor is he going to appoint people to office who vote against him and work against him now? There are some people around the borough who would like to know, I would like to know myself. Do you suppose he would appoint me corporation counsel for instance?. (Laughter.) Anybody who thinks you are going to run a government by appointing to office the fellows who criticise you, who use every opportunity to stick you in the back, who go around finding fault with your acts, who are not in sympathy with your administration, anybody who thinks that any mayor or any man who is a candidate for mayor is going to, do that, ought to go up to Cooley's.

They say Mayor Smalley has done some vicious things; that he has deposed from office the Rev. William E. Honeyman, a man who for seventeen long and weary years, they say, has acted as a member of the Board of Health and Smalley deposed him! As a matter of fact, Mr. Smalley did appoint Mr. Honeyman once and Mr. Honeyman during the canvass here for annexation took the other side, as he had a perfect right to do, but not only did that but took every occasion he could to find fault with the Mayor during that campaign, and ever since. There was a department of the Borough Government over which the Mayor had the power of appointment and when at last Mr. Honeyman's term expired Mayor Smalley did not depose him, he simply did not reappoint him, and who would expect him to reappoint him. They say they are opposed to perpetual candidates and that man had been seventeen years in office already! (Laughter). He did not reappoint him and that is the reason why Mayor Smalley should be removed—because he did not reappoint Honeyman.

A gentleman came and told me the other day that he had been talking with a gentleman connected with the street car line, and this man said he went over to the Citizens' meeting, he said he felt, from what he had read in the paper, some sympathy in their movement, and he went to their meeting with an idea of taking part therein and becoming associated with that party, and he said that a gentleman, by the name of Swackhamer, addressed that meeting, and Swackhamer told about how the Rev. William E. Honeyman has been deposed from office by the vicious Mayor, and he pictured the Rev. William E. Honeyman as the only man who ever lived, who really knew how to run a Board of Health, and as a man who should be supported and reappointed as long as he would take the office. This man said: "I did not know the Rev. William E. Honeyman. I never met him in my life. I would not know him if I fell over him, and I did not know if he was telling the truth or not; pretty soon he began to talk about John Goodwin, and how he had been arrested and thrown into a dungeon cell, and how he had been ill used by this vicious Mayor, and," he said, "I knew who John Goodwin was; I had seen his around, and I did not know whether he might have been abused or not, and maybe he had. But then he commenced about that old veteran, that old hero of the Civil War, who had given his life blood for the country and had been filling capably the office of health inspector, and he said how he was taken by this vicious Mayor and thrown out of his office. Well," he said, "I have seen Bill Pangborn drunk up and down Somerset street every time I ever passed him; and," he said, "I made up my mind if that was what he was giving me about a man I knew all about, I was going to vote for Smalley; for if Smalley hadn't put Bill Pangborn out, he ought to have been hung."

I will not take up any more of your time, except for a moment, and that is to say this, if one-half—if even one-half—what certain members of the Citizens and leaders of the Citizens say about this man Smalley is true, why Smalley ought not to be elected Mayor and ought never to have been elected in the first place. I have read the utterances of that mighty leader of that host, Mr. A. N. D. Honeyman, who was once a candidate for mayor, and unsuccessful, and therefore knows how the place should be run for that reason. But I want to tell you that I have yet to find in his utterances a single sentence where he praises Mayor Smalley for anything that he ever did. Through Mr. Honeyman's spectacles, that man is black inside, outside, from head to foot; there is not a white spot in him anywhere. No, gentlemen, I don't claim that Newt Smalley is a perfect man. Why he would graciously, he makes mistakes; all of us make them. Why, I don't believe that Newt himself claims to be perfect. I am inclined to think that he admits that he makes mistakes; but, gentlemen, did anyone of you ever know that man to turn away anyone who came to him in time of trouble and distress and asked him for help? I would like to know if anyone ever knew a man to go away from Newt Smalley needy? (Applause.) He is as honest as the day is long. He says what he thinks. Nobody ever had any trouble in finding out where Newt Smalley stood on any subject. Did they? No. That is probably one of his weaknesses that he tells just what he thinks. He uses the King's English, and he uses it a little rigidly, a little bit briskly, and he does not choose his words with as much care and precision and study and eye to beauty as Mr. Honeyman does; and once in a while, when he is wound up by an attack upon him, charges, lying stories told by people who know them to be lies, it may be that in a burst of righteous indignation, he will say something that does not look well in print. But do we think less of him for that, though ought he not to do it? Perhaps it is what a man who had more tact, or who was slicker and all that sort of thing, would not do; but does it make him a bad man? I don't think it does. He has devoted his time to the duties of his office. Why, I heard a man say the other day: "I am a Democrat; I never voted for Smalley in my life, but I am going to vote for him this time." I said: "Why are you going to vote for Smalley?" I was glad to hear it, but I wanted to hear his reasons, and he replied: "The other day after the flood the water was not off the street before I saw Mayor Smalley at work in the street like any common working man, with his coat off, saving the Borough property." This is the kind of man he is. That is the kind of work he does for you. (Applause.) He is Johnny-on-the-spot every time. (Renewed applause.)

Gentlemen, it has been my good fortune to have served under various mayors and councilmen in this Borough, and I have never yet seen anything in all the years that I have served which has indicated an effort or a wish on the part of any one of the officers elected, to have the mayor or councilmen do anything by the people which was not open and square, and upright, and honest, and I am proud to say for North Plainfield that we look back over these last sixteen or eighteen years at such a record as that, where there has not been a crook so far as I know or ever saw, elected to the office of mayor or to the office of councilman, and I want to say right here that you never had a better mayor—you may have had mayors just as good for a shorter time, or just as good in some particulars—but you never will have a better mayor than Newton B. Smalley. (Loud applause.) And I defy any one of the opposition to come up here before a crowd of honest citizens and tell us of any dishonest act he ever did while mayor. We have challenged them to joint debate, but we have never been able to get anywhere nearer at them than I am to the outside door. They don't want any joint debate. They tell a story today and they run away and tell another; we come around and say the first story is not true; it is a half truth; it is a distortion; it is false. I have told you about this bank stock and the taxes and other

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c things, but they don't come back and meet you like men, but they run off and tell you some other tale.

But, gentlemen, I have taken up too much of your time. (Voices—Go on. Go on). But I want to say to you now that whether Smalley is elected or defeated does not make very much difference to him, but this does make a difference, that when a man who has done his best and done it honestly, on the level, for a community like North Plainfield is urged into accepting another term against his wishes the thing he wants to know is that the people of North Plainfield know the truth; if you know the truth, if you know the facts, if you know just exactly what you are talking about, and then disagree with Smalley and say: "We don't want you any longer, Newt, we think you have outlived your usefulness," or something like that, or "We disagree with your plans" that is one thing; but to be lied out of a job; to be lied down into a place where a man is disgraced—is another thing. If he is beaten because you people don't understand, because stories are told which are not true, and which we cannot get at you to tell you the truth about—to defeat him on that account would be a dastardly act, with such a man as Smalley, and one who has done what he has done. And, gentlemen, do not forget, on this ticket there is also Clifford W. McGee, who is one of our borough's best men, he belongs to a family which stands high, and whose name is as good in this community as anybody's; is he to be downed too, because Newt Smalley has done something that these people don't like? How about Edward P. T. Smith, who was born and brought up among you, a son of that old hero of the Civil War, Captain William C. Smith? (Applause.) Is he to be thrown down and beaten because of this?

But, gentlemen, I do not believe it; when the votes come in—we don't have the ballots fluttering down like snowflakes any more,—but when the voting machine is opened on the seventh of November you will find the Republicans and Democrats of North Plainfield are not to be fooled so easily as A. V. D. Honeyman thinks they are. (Loud and continued applause.)

Mayor Smalley followed Mr. Reed and talked for about fifteen minutes. He was frequently interrupted by prolonged applause and time and again his witty remarks brought forth roars of laughter. He reviewed borough affairs and spoke in a fearless and straightforward way.

The concluding speaker of the evening was Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, who had been seated in the audience and who was called upon by the chairman. He paid a tribute to the administration of Mayor Smalley and declared that it "does not lie in the power of these kickers to prevent him from getting into the mayoralty chair for the fourth time."

HUSBANDS ARE SPOILED.

It takes a woman of tact to be a good wife. There are many good men who, under different management, would deteriorate rapidly. There are others who are looked upon as almost cruel husbands, yet who would under wise management be the very reverse. A good wife should study her husband just as a good mother studies her child if she would have a happy, contented home life. It may be bitterly hard in some cases to keep your trials to yourself, but eventually you will feel that you have achieved a noble victory. Often the petty matters that the injured wife seeks advice about are smoothed out happily without intervention; then would she not give worlds to have her secret still her own? Above all things, bear in mind that if you allow your husband to know that you complain about him, or fail to show him proper respect before your friends, you will have lost your strongest hold on him.

FOR THE FACE.

Wrinkles and age travel together. In China both are highly honorable and you are loved for your wrinkles, but to Americans wrinkles are disagreeable, and none but your own family will admire them, says the Pilgrim.

The woman who wished her wrinkles removed was told to do this:

Steam the face once a week with hot cloths.

Massage a good soft skin food well into the skin after steaming.

Massage the flesh every night with pore food.

Take off the accumulation of dust each day with a cream no thicker than cream of milk.

Massage the cheeks nightly with something to make the skin brisk and lively.

Wash the face well every night before putting in the pore food.

And, finally, cultivate the habit of sleeping so that there are no creases in the face. The Chinese women and the Japanese sleep on a hard bed with no pillow.

In addition to the wrinkle cure, the woman who wished to get rid of her furrows was cautioned to eat the right foods. "They are part of the wrinkle cure," declared the beauty doctor.

WOMAN'S WANTS.

All she desires is love, you say?
That shows how much you know.
She wants to see the matinee
And to the circus go;
She wants a handsome diamond ring;
She wants a rope of pearls;
She wants a poodle on a string;
She wants some extra curls;
She wants a bonnet twice a year;
She wants an Easter hat;
She wants to read her title clear
Into a stylish flat;
She wants a four-seat motor car;
She wants a real Worth gown;
She wants a trip to Europe, or
At least to Newport town;
She wants a cask of rare cologne;
She wants a diamond pin;
She wants a carriage of her own
To go out calling in;
She wants the earth, the milky way,
And half the stars above,
And yet you have the nerve to say
That all she wants is love!

TOO MUCH CLOTHING.

It is a great mistake to have too many garments at one time. People who dress well at a moderate expense never do this.

They have what they need, bestow good care upon their belongings, and mend them when necessary; when their clothes wear out they buy new ones, but they never care to have relays of garments. One sometimes reads in the newspapers of wealthy brides having enormous trousseaux, fashionable hats, bonnets and dresses by the score. Such people are not to be envied. They only possess what they do not know what to do with.

They cannot wear out their own finery, and in the long run other persons—their maids or second hand clothes dealers—are certain to get the reversion therof. Fashionable garments very soon get out of date, and the more "stylish" they were when new, the more remarkable they seem when the mode has altered.

So with regard to underclothing. Large supplies of underclothing are only an anxiety. They need constant looking after, or they deteriorate in condition; if laid away for a long time, they may become useless, because the figure of their owner may alter, and they are a great temptation to dishonesty.

At one time notable housewives took great pride in having stores of underclothing of various kinds under lock and key. The fashion has, however, almost passed away among sensible people, and with it there has passed away, also the cause of much waste and many disappointments.

Yet still good housewives are careful to have a sufficiency of underclothing, because it is an even greater mistake to have too few garments of one kind than to have too many.

People who have exactly what they require for a change, and no more, always get into difficulties when their clothes begin to wear, because they seem to be constantly mending or needing to mend their garments.

And it should be remembered that linen, cotton, and flannel wear longer when they have an occasional rest between their periods of service, just as certainly as they deteriorate in quality through being of no service at all.

THE WISE WIFE.

She knows that home is more than half what you make it, and that a builder of a happy home is a success indeed. She knows that it takes two to prolong a family quarrel, one can therefore terminate it. She knows that filling a house with bargains keeps a couple from owning the house in which they place them. She knows that if we thought all we said we'd be wise, but if we said all we thought we'd be foolish. She knows that some people sneer at love in a cottage, but love that could wish to love anywhere else is not love. She knows that proud people seldom have friends. In prosperity they know nobody; in adversity nobody knows them. She knows that to make long-lived friendships one must be slow in making them. She knows that the woman who gains a trifle meanly is meaner than the trifle. She knows that "it is less pain to learn in youth than to be ignorant in old age." She knows that if she cannot throw brightness over her home it is best not to throw a wet blanket over it. She knows that the wife who thinks she is perfect is generally the most imperfect. The unwise wife may profit by studying what the wise woman knows.

WRINKLES.

In rubbing out wrinkles, just fancy that your cuticle is a crinkled piece of tissue. Take, just for practice, a piece of tissue on the lap and rub out the wrinkles. Note how your fingers work. If you were to rug directly in the line of the creases, you would deepen them and perhaps break your piece of tissue paper. So when you rub out the wrinkles in your face, you must rub across them, never in them. And you must work with great care. You can irritate your skin and make it very rough, says the Pilgrim.

In these days of modern improvements, there are other ways of treating wrinkles. One is the method employed by a titled American woman, whose age and high living have just begun to show in her forehead. She came to America, where she knew that complexion specialists abound, and there she had an operation performed on her forehead. It was called the wrinkle operation. Right along the top of her forehead at the roots of her hair there was a little slit made. Then the skin was pulled up and secured. It was stretched absolutely tight and not a wrinkle remained.

When the flesh had healed there was only a very slight scar to show what had been done. Her forehead was as smooth as that of a debutante. "But," said the specialist, "if you frown or think hard, your wrinkle will come back again."

Spreading good thin cold cream on the forehead every night and spatting it until it becomes a part of the cuticle, is a pretty sure way to remove wrinkles. In truth, it answers every purpose. No set of wrinkles, however deep, will be proof against such an attack as this, but you must persist in it.

ACKERMAN AND LAWRENCE

the Legislature incorruptible men who will do that which is right.

"It is small wonder that the people of our State are so insistent upon their rights, when, in spite of almost ceaseless vigilance the great departments of government are discoveed to be tainted with greed and corruption, and the princes of high finance are found to have betrayed their most sacred trust.

"Gentlemen, Plainfield asks your endorsement of her nominee for State Senator. He is a man of broadest culture and experience, an exemplary citizen in every way, and one whose unswerving allegance to her Republican party and its principles is as an open book before us.

"A gentleman he is who at the end of his term of office will return to you as unsullied as when he entered it. On behalf of the city of Plainfield I take the greatest personal pleasure in nominating for State Senator Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman."

There was no opposition, and Mr. Ackerman's nomination was made unanimous.

C. Addison Swift was the first to get the floor when nominations for the shrievalty were called. He named Captain Robert J. Kirkland, of Elizabeth, whom he described as "honest, good natured and jolly Bob." August Schmitt, Commissioner Cissell and Dr. Mravlag seconded the nomination. John K. English, assistant prosecutor, gave way to Summit, and then the fun began.

In a remarkably witty speech, seldom heard in conventions, Rutherford Franklin, of Summit, placed Dr. Lawrence's name before the convention. He caught the crowd in the gallery as well as the delegates from the start, and when he got through everyone was convinced that Dr. Lawrence had some claims and more champions for the plum he sought. Horace Gore-Kelly, of Rahway, nominated W. H. Wright, of that city, and Edward B. Horton, of Cranford, named Freeholder Emmor K. Adams, of that place.

On the first ballot the vote stood: Kirkland, 59; Lawrence, 56; Adams, 14; Wright, 11. From that time on there was little change, excepting that Lawrence made a slight gain now and then. It was not until the twelfth ballot that the eleventh ward of Elizabeth voted solidly for Lawrence; Rahway changed and gave two to Kirkland and nine to Lawrence. Westfield then cast its eight entire votes for Lawrence. At this time the fourth ward of Plainfield joined the other three wards in the Lawrence man's column. The result was a certainty before Plainfield made a move. Then on behalf of Kirkland's own ward, the fourth of Elizabeth, Mr. Swift transferred his votes to Lawrence and asked on behalf of "Honest Bob" that all districts favoring him do likewise. The result stood: Lawrence, 92; Kirkland, 48. The vote was made unanimous.

These were placed before the convention as candidates for the Assembly: Peter Tillman, Everard K. Tucker, Randolph Perkins, Isaac M. Littell and Captain Parks. The first three were chosen. Jacob Hagin was named as coroner, William H. Donaldson withdrawing in his favor.

Robert A. Meeker, of this city, was on the committee sent out "to hunt up" the candidates. When they returned, Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler were with them.

Mr. Ackerman was first introduced. He spoke as follows:

"I am deeply grateful for the generous reception accorded me. For the nomination so unanimously tendered and for the honor bestowed, for it is an honor quite independent of the election, I am profoundly thankful. I also wish to express my unqualified approval of the platform which this convention has adopted.

"That one of the standard bearers of the Republican party in the coming election is selected as coming from Plainfield is a recognition of the fact that a large part of her voting population has for many years supported the cause of Republicanism, and not because there is any scarcity of eligible Senatorial timber in other parts of the county.

"Union county, both on account of its position as one of the leading counties in the State and on account of the high standing of the men sent to represent the county at Trenton, has taken a leading place in the Legislature. Those now eminent in the higher walks of life as Chancellor, Governor or Judge, have earlier in their careers ably filled the office of State Senator, furnishing those who aspire to succeed them with an excellent example of fidelity to duty and a record worthy of emulation.

"If voters of Union county in November ratify the selection today made, it will be my earnest endeavor to keep always in mind the sacred trust I bear, to walk worthily in the footsteps of my distinguished predecessors and to merit the approval of the people of Union county."

Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler also spoke. Then it was all over and the rank and file will now get down to work until election day.

Remedy for Moths.

Should a clothes press, cupboard or storebox become infested with moths, it is a good plan to have it scrubbed out with a strong decoction of tobacco and then sprinkle it with spirits of camphor. The tobacco should be of the strongest kind, cut in pieces, with a little hot water poured upon it. The camphor may be prepared by simply dissolving a few lumps in methylated spirit.

COAL CAR SHORTAGE MAKES TROUBLE FOR ROADS

COMPANIES ISSUE NEW ORDERS CONCERNING THEM.

The railroads in this vicinity which are specialists in the coal-carrying industry are now keeping a vigilant lookout for the cars that carry the black diamonds.

Notwithstanding the tremendous number of cars that have been ordered, many of which have been received, there is a shortage that is giving the railroads much concern. The Reading Railway, Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central roads, in order to protect themselves against a shortage that will interfere with business, have issued orders not to allow their cars to go off the road, except where it is imperative.

One of the oldest customs in the country is for retail dealers and consignees generally to use the cars for storage purposes. Instead of unloading them promptly and permitting the railroads to remove them for reloading, they serve customers from them in one ton and larger lots, and in many cases hold them until orders are sent them to unload at once. All classes of cars are subjected to this abuse, but the coal cars get more than their share of it, because coal isn't perishable and doesn't have to be handled quickly.

Some of the roads have tried the plan of imposing penalties on consignees who abuse the privilege, but that caused dissension without limit and didn't help the cause.

The railroads are now handling a great deal of coal, and they need all the cars they own. Many of the smaller roads that don't handle coal, except through interchange with the coal-producing companies, are also guilty of misusing cars, and the new orders just issued by the railroads named is aimed at them as well as at the dealers who use coal cars for storehouses.

The New Jersey Central has a big pile of coal on storage at the junction east of Phillipsburg; the Lehigh Valley has another big pile at South Plainfield, and the Erie has another at Coalburg, on the N. Y., S. and W. division.

The holding back of cars is sure to cripple transportation if drastic measures are not adopted to send empty cars home.

J. S. BARNET A SUICIDE.

Wealthy Leather Man Takes His Life After a Quarrel.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 6.—Because he had a quarrel with his two sons, who were also his business partners, J. S. Barnet, fifty-seven years old, of No. 498 Harvard street, Brookline, left his place of business here, went directly to Flax Pond and committed suicide, his body being found floating there three hours later.

WHAT CONTROL MEANS TO THE JERSEY CENTRAL

RAILWAY WORLD TELLS OF THE LINE THAT TAPS PLAINFIELD.

The following is reproduced from the current issue of the Railway World:

"A number of large and important railway systems in the United States are of interest only as their financial condition is related to that of other companies which own their capital stock. The process of merger and consolidation, which is constantly going forward among American railways, is steadily reducing the number of operated companies and, by the attendant process of the conversion of securities, is limiting the number, although not reducing the amount, of railway investments.

"Of such controlled companies, one of the largest is the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Nearly 53 per cent. of the capital stock of this company is owned by the Reading Company, and against it there stands $23,000,000 of collateral trust bonds, guaranteed by the Reading and secured by a deposit of $14,500,000 of Jersey Central stock. The Reading Company pays each year $920,000 interest on these bonds. It received $1,160,000 the past year as its share of $2,193,704 of dividends paid by the Jersey Central, leaving a balance of profit of $240,000 on the investment. At the time this purchase was made the Reading was criticised for the high price paid but the result of the acquisition of the major interest of the Jersey Central's capital stock by the Reading has not only secured the Reading the use of the Central's valuable terminals in New York harbor but the unity of interest resulting from the purchase has also contributed to the harmonious relations among the anthracite producers.

"Like its parent company, the Central Railroad of New Jersey has enjoyed a year of exceptional prosperity under the management of President Baer. The gross earnings increased $937,758; the operating expenses, in spite of a growth of 111,751,862 in ton miles and of 12,995,605 in passenger miles, were only $126,143 larger than in 1904. As a result of this small increase of operating expenses, the net earnings show a gain of $811,615. The gross earnings of the company were $21,676,536, or $36,007 per mile of road operated, and the net earnings $9,729,774, or $16,162 per mile operated. The Central of New Jersey receives a large income from its investments, amounting to $1,119,197 during the past year. The net income of the company, therefore, was $10,848,972, or $18,021 per mile. The company's fixed charges are about evenly divided between interest and rentals—$2,830,004 for interest and $2,528,304 fer rentals. Including also $458,040 of tax payments, the total fixed charges of the company were $5,816,550, or $9,662 per mile, leaving a surplus of $2,334,720, or $3,878 per mile, available for dividends. After paying $2,193,704 in dividends, $141,016 was transferred to the credit of profit and loss.

"This statement, however, does not exactly show the financial results of the year's operations, for the Central Railroad of New Jersey is quite as conservative as is the Reading in charging the cost of renewals and improvements to income account. For the past twelve months $1,072,701 was spent for this general purpose, including $293,057 for sidings and yard improvements, $193,814 for renewal and improvement of bridges, and $294,488 for repairs and improvements to docks and wharves. During the year there was charged against income for depreciation of equipment $625,000, and a further sum of $1,000,000 has been set aside out of the surplus of the year to the credit of the equipment depreciation fund. A large portion of these expenditures, we are safe in concluding, will be productive of revenue.

"The conservatism of the management is also shown in the large maintenance charges. The cost of maintenance of way and structures was $1,696,753, or $2,818 per mile, and the cost of maintaining equipment $1,260,195, or $3,754 per mile. These payments are above the normal for roads of the character and traffic of the Central of New Jersey. The important items of maintenance of way and structures are the renewal of 438,250 ties, the reballasting of 60 miles of track with broken stone, and the relaying of about 42 miles with ninety-pound steel rails. The increased operating efficiency is shown by the fact that, in spite of a large increase in ton and passenger mileage, the cost of conducting transportation decreased $9,995. The number of tons per train per mile increased 3.8. This must be considered as an unusually good showing in view of the fact that two-thirds of the total car mileage of the Central of New Jersey is empty, the bulk of the traffic moving towards the seaboard. The report would be more intelligible if an analysis of the traffic were included.

"Important improvements have been completed and are still in progress on the Jersey Central. The new passenger terminal on the North River between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, New York, was opened for traffic last June, and a terminal was also secured the past year at West Forty-second street, New York. The necessary property for the establishment of a freight terminal on the Harlem River at One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, New York, has been acquired, and it is believed that this will attract additional freight traffic to the system.

"A large amount of equipment was received by the company during the year, including six ten-wheel freight locomotives, six consolidation locomotives, 500 steel underframe box cars, two feddy boats and five car floats. There has been contracted for delivery the coming year 1,000 steel coal cars, 15 switching locomotives, 100 refrigerator cars, two ferry boats, two car floats, and two steam derricks.

"The funded debt of the company was reduced by the retirement of $770,000 of equipment bonds, by the payment of real estate mortgages amounting to $179,100, and by conversion of $7,000 debentures into capital stock. Of available capital resources the company still has $4,909,000 of general mortgage five per cent. bonds, and $2,574,200 of capital stock. In view of the small mileage of the company, and of the fact that no large extension of its lines is to be anticipated, these capital resources should be considered sufficient for any future requirements.

"The Reading Company could well afford to meet a large deficit on its $23,000,000 of Jersey Central bonds in order to obtain the advantages which the control of this company gives it. Instead of a deficit, however, a profit of $240,000 is shown on the investment, and since the traffic position of the Central of New Jersey is steadily improving and its operating efficiency is correspondingly being increased, it is not unreasonable to expect that this profit will soon be added to by an increase in the rate of dividend on the Central of New Jersey stock."

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

ADVANTAGES OF WOMAN'S CLUB

The advantages and disadvantages of women's clubs have often been discussed, and at a gathering of women recently, the matter was again brought up. There were several club women in the party, who had thoroughly enjoyed their meetings, since they were active members of literary and social organizations, while some of the other women had no time and no desire to join them in the sessions.

"I should like to know what these clubs amount to, anyway?" asked one woman. "You hear a baked essay on Washington Irving and go home and read his works and his old impressions, and about a month later you have forgotten all about it."

"It is true that tarts and housework should have the attention of plied, "but one cannot hope to get a knowledge of any author or any country from a half-baked loaf of bread. Some time should be devoted to study. It is the change from ordinary subjects, the suggestion for new and impersonal thoughts, that makes the woman's club valuable. For an hour the weary housewife forgets the problems of food and servant and gives herself up to a most well ordered club programme, which abounds in interesting numbers. She reads essays and discusses various subjects, and even if often they are a little off the point, they teach her something else besides the everlasting household drudgery. If you enter into the club work with all your might there is no doubt that you will be able to solve even household problems with more intelligence and be a true companion to your husband and children.

"Not only are your experiences more appreciated, but your sympathies, your tastes, your convictions are awakened and stimulated and refined, and with it all you have a most delightful time.

"The greatest help will probably come from the insight you will get into the lives of other women. A woman you will probably have thought haughty and disagreeable, you will find, while associating with her during the club meetings, most intelligent and agreeable, and then you will find so much more to appreciate in women. You will forget to gossip about your next door neighbor, but will instead talk about the splendid talk Mrs. So-and-so gave on this or that subject. You will be able to intelligently discuss current events, for you will undoubtedly discuss them at your club meetings.

"Let me tell you that the club women of today are an intelligent lot of people, and every woman should be proud to belong to a woman's club."

Raised Buckwheat Cakes.

Take a small crock or large earthen pitcher, put into it a quart of warm water or half water and milk, one heaping teaspoonful of salt; then stir in as much buckwheat flour as will thicken it to rather a stiff batter; lastly add half a cup of yeast; make it smooth, cover it up warm to rise over night; in the morning add a small level teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a little warm water; this will remove any sour taste, if any, and increase the lightness. Not a few object to eating buckwheat, as its tendency is to thicken the blood, and also to produce constipation; this can be remedied by making the batter one-third corn-meal and two-thirds buckwheat, which makes the cakes equally as good. Many prefer them in this way.

WHAT IS REALLY WORTH SEEING AMONG THE MANY ATTRACTIONS NOW ON THE BOARDS

Scene in "The Christian."

Liebler & Company, prominent among the foremost caterers of the theatre patrons, will present tonight at the New Plainfield theatre their famous success, "The Christian," which includes many capable artists in the cast, and excellence of production which has characterized the engagement heretofore. Among the attractions of this young firm the present season are Viola Allen in Hall Caine's most recent triumph, "The Eternal City;" Mr. Kyrle Bellew, now in his second tour with "A Gentleman of France;" Ezra Kendall in the "Vinegar Buyer;" Eleanor Robson, in "Audrey;" James O'Neill in "The Manxman," and Mme. Duse in her American tour. Some two other new and important productions are under consideration for spring production, other interests upon Chauncey Olcott, the sweet singing Irish comedian, is literally a universal favorite, a fact well demonstarted by the enormous patronage characterizing his engagement at the Majestic theatre, New York. On Monday he begins his second week, and judging from the immense advance sale it will be a repetition of the first. Mr. Olcott has given us another good play, the title being "Edmund Burke," and is by Theodore Burt Sayre. The play has been highly endorsed by the press and the public and in the title part Mr. Olcott has probably made the greatest success of all his successes. The period of the play being in the eighteenth century, gives him (Mr. Olcott) an opportunity to wear silks and satins, in which his admirers prefer to see him. The supporting company has been highly praised, and Mr. Olcott's four new songs have called forth many encores nightly. The matinees next week are on the regular days—Wednesday and Saturday.

For only two times more in New York Mrs. Leslie Carter will be seen as Adrea at the Belasco theatre. Those who have not yet sat under the spell of her great art, who have not been swayed by her power, in this Belasco-Long play, who have not felt the magnetic charm of her personality, should not miss this last opportunity to enjoy what is, in many ways, her most wonderful and impressive creation. Her last "Adrea" matinee will occur next Saturday, October 7, and the same evening will mark her farewell New York appearance in the part. Beginning appearances as Zaza in David Belasco's version of that play, a creation which stands as one of the most artistic and popular of her repertoire. And then, for two weeks, Mrs. Leslie Carter will appear as Du Barry in David Belasco's play, giving New York another opportunity to witness the grace and variety of her art as shown in this wonderful creation.

Klaw & Erlanger's gorgeous spectacular production of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," which now holds the stage at the Broadway theatre, is the most popular and successful entertainment in this field ever made by an American management. Such scenery and costumes have never been before produced by native artists and artisans. It has heretofore been supposed that the efforts of Drury Lane, in the great spectacles which have been brought to America were the highest attainments possible in elaborate scenery and costumes. Harry Gilfoil, who is regarded as one of the greatest comedians and mimics, now plays the role of The Ancient Mariner, and notwithstanding the recognized ability of his predecessor in this part, it is generally admitted that he has greatly improved the performance. Mr. Gilfoil introduces during the various situations several imitations which have never before been heard and especially entertains the audience by remarkable ventriloquism in connection with the talking albatross. "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" will continue the attraction at the Broadway theatre for several weeks to come, and all those who delight in an artistic performance, interpolated with brilliant musical numbers, cannot fail to be pleased by this piece. Seats will be reserved on application, accompanied by remittances, directed to the manager of the Broadway theatre.

Scene in "For His Brother's Crime."

Margaret Evans in "Marching Through Georgia."

Raymond Hitchcock in "Easy Dawson," the new comedy by Edward E. Kidder, is now in his last week of the New York run at Wallack's theatre, New York. The general opinion stands that Mr. Hitchcock's initial move into the ranks of "straight" comedy is not only most laudable, but one that has met with constant approval. He is seen as the village inventor of a little interior town, and while designated "easy" by his townsmen and a neer-do-well in general, he is the chief of the fire department. While the comedy element predominates in "Easy Dawson," Mr. Hitchcock is given several scenes in which there is a call for pathos. He has risen to his opportunities in his usual happy manner. The supporting company includes Julie Herne, Grace Griswold, Flora Zabelle, Jeffreys Lewis, John Bunny, Earle Brown and Scott Cooper. At the conclusion of the long run at Wallack's "Easy Dawson" will begin a road tour.

In "The Romance of a Hindoo Princess," to be produced shortly at the New York Hippodrome, in lieu of "The Raiders," will be witnessed the most gorgeous and brilliant spectacle ever conceived on any stage in the world. The scenic effects are beautiful and the illusion is so perfect that the entranced spectator is spirited away to distant India, amid whose wid jungles the scene of the drama is laid. In action rather than words is told the stirring plot. A haughty Indian prince is a suitor for the hand of the beautiful daughter of the ruler of an adjoining province. He is rejected in favor of another suitor. Angered by her refusal, the Prince determines to storm her father's castle and carry her off by force to his own country. At the head of his army and accompanied by a great herd of elephants he succeeds in accomplishing his purpose in a midnight attack on the fortress, and dashes off with his captive. He is pursued by the enraged father and his followers on horseback and overtaken. Then follows a most exciting and realistic fight, possible only on the Hippodrome stage, the largest in the world.

Manager Counihan of the New Plainfield theatre takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured "Marching Through Georgia" for a return engagement tomorrow afternoon and night. This play, which scored such an unqualified success on its previous visit, will be given in the same painstaking manner and by the same company and with the same gorgeous scenic investiture that was used on its former visit. The play is so well known to the inhabitants of Plainfield that it is needless to say much in its favor. It is almost an assured fact that record breaking audiences will greet this greatest of war plays on its return visit. A special bargain matinee will be given for the benefit of the women and children.

Next week at the New Plainfield theatre the attraction will be "For His Brother's Crime," the latest and beyond question greatest offering in melodrama of modern times. The piece, which is in four acts, is described as a faithful picture of everyday life, full of action and sensationalism, and bubbling over with brilliant comedy, at the same time possessing a surprisingly new plot, and telling an impressive story. It is the master effort in the career of Charles E. Blaney, who is responsible for a dozen permanent melodramatic successes and who is perhaps the foremost of our younger playwrights. As a scenic production it is as stupendous as it is magnificent, outclassing anything ever attempted in the melodramatic line, and includes ten complete and amazing sensations. "For His Brother's Crime" was written specially for that sterling romantic actor, Robert Gaillard, a modern Hercules, and "perfect man," who will be supported by many of the best well known artists. A special vaudeville contingent will also be introduced.

The truly inspiring and interesting play, "The Village Parson," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night. The play has been well constructed and portrays human emotions, true pathos and sympathies. The comedy element has also been kept in mind, and the presentation of "The Village Parson" does not depend upon one good actor and a lot of bad ones, but Manager Nankeville has assembled a well balanced and talented company, each member being well fitted for his or her part, as the situations call for clever dramatic work throughout the four acts. In all plays of this kind, scenery specially painted must be used, and in this instance the entire production will be brought here complete.

"A Message from Mars" is built on lines that hold fast. It tells the truth, an dthe greatest of American humorists, Mark Twain, claims that nothing is funnier than the honest truth, it is so unexpected. he typical English pig is depicted by the American author, Richard Ganthony, and depicted so truly that London enjoyed him immensely for two seasons. Egotism and selfishness is its butt, and as everyone in the audience is "not guilty" the result is unanimous joy. Its production is announced at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, October 13.

Proctor's 58th Street theatre has blossomed forth into a full-fledged vaudeville house, and the high class European and American attractions offered by Mr. Proctor at his 23d Street theatre are also seen on this stage. For instance, during next week the bill is headed by Wheelock's United States Indian Band, in which thirty musical aboringees, dressed in their native costumes, head the list. Another attraction is that of Mrs. Stuart Robson, presenting Edmund Day's delightful comedy, "The Saving of Mrs. Shaw." Nothing but headliners will do for Proctor people and another of these is the most gigantic animal act in vaudeville, Eph. Thompson's elephants; Billy Gould and Veleska Suratt, Clarice Vance, inimitable singer of coon melodies; Hathaway & Walton, and V. P. Woodward and others are announced for that week.

POLICEMAN CHARGED WITH ROBBING CARS

DETAILED TO GUARD HE IS ALLEGED TO HAVE HEADED LOOTERS.

Jersey City, Oct. 6.—The charge that a policeman was at the head of the band engaged in looting freight cars in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards in Greenville, was made yesterday, when Patrolman Frederick E. Scheide, of this city, was arraigned before Judge Higgins in the First Criminal Court.

Scheide had been specially detailed to see that the freight cars in the railroad yards were not tampered with at night. Instead of diminishing, the thefts increased to such an extent that the railroad officials put their detectives on the case.

Scheide, the detectives say, had organized a band that systematically looted the standing freight. The detectives also arrested Charles Artwright. Both his home and that of the policeman were searched. Enough booty was discovered to fit out a shop.

Schiede had barrels of flour, which, the neighbors say, he rolled home himself, clad in full uniform and apparently showing not the least fear of detection. They also found several gross of canned goods and a pile of clothing that would last him for the remainder of his life. He was held in $1,000 bail.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

(OFFICIAL.)

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Sept. 7, 1905, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll-call showed all members present except Freeholder Kline—1.

The minutes of the previous meeting (reading of bills being omitted) were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Lloyd Thompson, Town Clerk, Westfield, N. J., as follows,

August 14 ,1905.

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the Council of this town, held Monday evening, the 7th instant, the clerk was instructed to write to you and request that you turn over to the town that section of North Avenue westerly to the Fanwood line.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Lloyd Thompson.

To S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk of Board of Chosen Freeholders.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and referred to the County Road Committee and County Attorney.

From Louis Keller, as follows:

August 28, 1905.

Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—I beg to call your attention to the bad condition of the bridges on the Shunpike Road on Robinson Hill. The old masonry bridge at the top of the hill has collapsed in four places, subjecting the county to risk of damages in the event of an accident, and the iron culverts inserted two years ago by your Honorable Board are in need of immediate attention, some of them being choked with sand, and others having been heaved some six inches above the road level. Owing to the presence of rock under some of these culverts, I imagine they were not low enoukh when laid two years ago.

Very truly,

(Signed) Louis Keller.

On motion of Freeholder Adams, received and referred to Freeholder Meisel.

From John F. Kenale, City Clerk, Elizabeth, N. J., as follows:

Elizabeht, Aug. 29, 1905.

S. Rusling Ryno:

Dear Sir—Since the election of 1904 two new election districts have been created in the city of Elizabeth, one in the Third ward and one in the Fifth ward, making a total of thirty (30) in the city.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed) John F. Kenale, City Clerk.

With the foregoing were two (2) certified copies of resolutions adopted by the Elizabeth City Council, creating said new districts, and defining the boundaries of same.

On motion of Freeholder Wahl, received and referred to Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings.

From Chester C. Henry, City Clerk, Summit, N. J., stating the location of polling places in said city and showing that a new district had been created in the First ward.

On motion of Freeholder Wahl, received and referred to Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee on Spring Street Bridge, Westfield, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your committee, appointed at the last meeting of the Board on the Spring Street Bridge at Westfield, would respectfully report that they have given the matter proper consideration and would recommend that the same be repaired, at a cost not to exceed $300.

(Signed) W. W. Connoly,
J. Fred MacDonald,
George B. Cladek,
Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll-call by an unanimous vote.

The Committee on Bridge over the Rahway River, North Avenue, in Cranford, presented the following as its report, viz.:

Elizabeth, Sept. 7, '05.

To the Committee on North Avenue Bridge over the Rahway River, Cranford:

Gentlemen—We have examined the bridge at the above point and fine same in poor condition for the travel passing over it. Should the funds permit, we believe that a new bridge should be built. In any case, the floor system and lower chord numbers and posts should be removed or strengthened.

The cost of such repairs would probably be from $1,000 to $1,200.

Respectfully submitted,

F. J. Hubbard,
J. L. Bauer,
Engineers.

We, the members of the committee, submit the above as our report, and would recommend that, in view of the fact that this whole bridge is weak, and carries a heavy travel, the Board meet in a body on the ground to examine the bridge and determine what disposition should be made of the matter, and meet at said bridge Wednesday, Sept. 13, 1905, at 3 p. m.

(Signed) E. K. Adams,
Elston Darby,
George B. Cladek,
Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received, the recommendation adopted, and that the Board, as a committee of the whole, meet at the time and place as recommended, which was so ordered without dissent.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That the bill of The W. T. Kirk Co. for furnishing ironwork on Edgar Road bridge, Linden Township, as per contract—$410—be paid when properly audited by the committee.

Freeholder Wahl moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed, with power, to rebuild the bridge over the stream on First Street, West of Locust Street, in the borough of Roselle, if in their judgment said rebuilding is necessary, and at a cost not to exceed $900.

Freeholder Krouse stated that the condition of this bridge was such as demanded immediate attention, and, on motion of Freeholder Adams, the resolution was on roll-call adopted unanimously.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Krouse, Chandler and Woodruff.

The following resolution was presented, viz.:

Resolved, That the bill of The W. T. Kirk Co. for furnishing ironwork on the Cranford Road bridge, amounting to $330, be paid when properly audited by the committee.

Signed) W. W. Connoly,
John Robison,
M. M. Scudder,
Committee.

Freeholder Darby moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Westphal:

Resolved, That the bill of F. J. Huffs, a justice of the peace, for $114.80, be paid when properly audited by the Prosecutor.

Freeholder Westphal moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was adopted, receiving 18 ayes, Freeholder Woodruff voting nay—1. Absent—Freeholder Kline—1.

By Freeholder Westphal:

Whereas, It is creditably reported to this Board that the Park Club of North Plainfield, or some other parties, are building an abutment wall beneath the bridge over Green Brook, at Washington avenue, which is a line bridge between Union and Somerset counties, and by reason thereof will necessarily impede the flow of said stream in time of high water; and Whereas, Said walls are being built without any permission of authority from this Board; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of three (3) and the County Attorney be appointed to investigate said matter, and if in their opinion necessary, take steps to stop said work, or cause the same to be removed.

After a brief explanation by Freeholder Westphal, the foregoing preamble and resolution, on his motion, were adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Westphal, MacDonald and Cady.

By Freeholder Robison:

Resolved, That a committee of five (5) be appointed to meet a committee of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders to examine the bridge over Green Brook, near the John Marsh place, in the township of Fanwood, and said committee to have power to repair or rebuild the same, as they may deem best for the interest of the county, and cost of rebuilding the same not to exceed $3,000 for said bridge, or $1,500 to Union county.

Freeholder Robison stated that recent heavy rains had greatly damaged the bridge mentioned, which rendered prompt action necessary.

Freeholder Adams moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Robison, Darby, Connoly, Scudder and Marsh.

By Freeholder Meisel:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to investigate the advisability of extending bridge across Van Winkle Brook, Springfield, and report at the next meeting the probable cost.

On motion of Freeholder Swain, the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Meisel, Murphy and Swain.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, the Board took a recess of ten minutes, in which to arrange and prepare bills.

By Freeholder Westphal:

Whereas, It is creditably reported to this Board that the Park Club of North Plainfield, or some other parties, are building an abutment wall beneath the bridge over Green Brook, at Washington avenue, which is a line bridge between Union and Somerset counties, and by reason thereof will necessarily impede the flow of said stream in time of high water; and Whereas, Said walls are being built without any permission of authority from this Board; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of three (3) and the County Attorney be appointed to investigate said matter, and if in their opinion necessary, take steps to stop said work, or cause the same to be removed.

FAITHLESS HUSBAND ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY

WIFE SWOONS WHEN HE SCORNS HER IN COURT.

Asbury Park, Oct. 6.—Augustus Haberghan, of Neptune township, has been placed under arrest here, charged with bigamy. Mrs. Kate Habergahn, who married him twelve years ago, made the complaint.

After he had been arrested and brought before Justice Cross the woman walked up to her husband and offered to shake hands with him. He refused, and the woman fainted, falling upon the floor in a swoon. He has been held for the Grand Jury.

The complaint alleges that Haberghan, in May of last year, married Belle Roe, of Neptune township, the ceremony being performed by Justice George H. Bills.

The first wife says her husband deserted her in Belmar five years ago. She searched for him, but learned he had enlisted in the United States Navy for five years. Recently she was surprised to find him living near here with another woman.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FOR THE COOK.

Cream of Oyster Soup.—Scald one quart of oysters in their own liquor; remove them from the liquor; chop them small and rub them through a fine sieve; put two level tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan; when melted add two tablespoonfuls of flour; add one cupful of oyster liquor, the oyster pulp, salt, pepper and paprika; just before serving add one cupful of whipped cream, beating it well into the soup.

Rib of Beef—If the joint is a large one it is well to cover the top with a sheet of paper well spread with beef dripping; this will prevent the fat from burning and drying up too quickly, which spoils the appearance of the joint; sprinkle with flour, and put in a hot oven or beneath a brisk fire, allow one-quarter hour to each pound of meat, and one-half hour over; baste constantly; when three parts cooked, draw a little away from the fire, or let the heat of the oven go down a little; just before it is dished sprinkle with a little more flour and salt; dish on a hot dish garnished with tufts of finely scraped horseradish. To scrape the horseradish: After having washed it well, peel off the outside, then use a blunt knife to scrape with; if a sharp knife is used one is liable to cut off little shavings rather then scrape it finely.

Special Lemon Pudding.—Put into a deep mold a layer of raisins, then a layer of bread sliced thin, a layer of macaroons and ratafias; sprinkle with lemon syrup alternately until the mold is full. Beat four eggs well, add a pint of milk, a little nutmeg, lemon peel, and sugar; pour this into the mold. Boil well for twenty minutes.

Swiss Tartlets.—Take one egg, its weight in stale cake crumbs and fresh butter, a tablespoonful of sugar and a little flavoring. Beat up the butter to a cream with the sugar, add the cake crumbs and eggs, then flavoring, mixing all together. Line some patty pans with puff paste, and then a layer of apricot jam and a thick layer of the mixture. Bake about a quarter of an hour in a sharp oven.

Soda Cakes.—One pound of flour, one level teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, one-quarter a level teaspoonful of cream of tartar, sufficient buttermilk to mix. Pass the flour, soda and cream of tartar through a sieve, or mix them thoroughly together. Then mix quickly with the buttermilk to a soft dough, but not too moist. Make into little cakes, and bake on a griddle or else in the oven. If buttermilk is not to be obtained use sour milk, or, still better, sour water made thus: Take a little oatmeal and put it in a jug of water; let it stand until next day till a little sour; then use. This will be found to make good cakes, and is an excellent substitute for buttermilk when it cannot be had. This mixture may be baked in one cake, if liked, instead of small ones.

To Choose Apples.—In choosing apples be guided by the weight; the heaviest are the best, and those should always be selected which, on being pressed by the thumb yield to it with a slight cracking noise. With large apples waste is saved in peeling and coring them.

Recipe for Brown Bread Pudding.—Soak three tablespoonfuls of brown bread crumbs in enough cold milk to cover. Make a custard with a pint of boiling milk, yolks of two eggs, sugar to taste, and lemon flavoring. Pour over the bread crumbs. Lastly add the white of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth; stir all together. Bake in a buttered dish for half an hour in a moderate oven.

IN BUYING FURNITURE.

Do not buy dining room chairs with spreading claw feet or with backs curving out sideways, for when the time comes that you want to entertain many around the table, you will find that you cannot get many chairs around it.

Do not get a round table with four legs, Chippendale style, for instance, if you ever want to seat more than four at it symmetrically. The legs at the edge of the table make it very uncomfortable for the persons who sit near them, and necessarily right in front of them, and to obviate this, both chairs and places must often be crowded in between, thus spoiling the symmetry of the set table—one of its charms. A table with a column in the centre will do away with this difficulty.

A round dining table measuring four feet six is the best in size for general purposes. Around this table eight people can be nicely accommodated, while it is not too large for four. But only six can be comfortably seated at a round table measuring four feet in diameter.

When purchasing a china or glass closet see that there are grooves in the shelves. If they are not there the furniture dealer should make good the omission.

When purchasing a dressing table get one that is high enough from the floor in the middle to permit you to get your knees under when sitting at it. Otherwise you will find yourself a considerable distance from the glass.

Always have casters put in all heavy furniture when purchasing, and if these are placed in a dressing table, see that your chair is high enough to correspond. A dressing table and its chair should always be purchased together, so that one will not be too high and the other too low; and as these articles are not found in the same department together in furniture shops, it is well to have this point settled before having the articles sent home.—Good Housekeeping.

SALADS AND PICKLES.

A Russian salad made of apples, pears and peaches is a delicious accompaniment of the game course, or may serve as a salad course with crackers and cream cheese balls. Peel the apples and pears and cut them into dice, covering them with lemon juice as the work progresses, to keep them from becoming discolored. Slice some ripe peaches and chill them in ice water. Toss all together just before serving, dress with oil and vinegar and sprinkle the top lightly with finely chopped mint. Garnish with gherkins.

For Indian pickle, a tasty accompaniment for meats, mix together two big tablespoonfuls each of mustard, curry powder and salt, two large tablespoonfuls of tumeric and garlic, a dram of cayenne and eight ounces of peeled button onions. Stir into the mixture, slowly, two quarts of vinegar, cover and let it stand in a warm place for four days, shaking the mixture up now and then. Then put it into a mixture of cucumbers, string beans, cauliflower and onion.

For green pepper mangoes cut a slice from the top of large peppers, take out the seeds and white pulp and stand the peppers each with the slice cut from the top and a teaspoonful of salt inside, in a dish, cover with cold water and leave a day and a night. Then shave cabbage enough to fill them and season it with salt, spices and mustard seed, allowing for every large cabbage a tablespoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of white mustard seed and a tablespoonful of ground cloves and allspice mixed in equal proportions. Stuff the peppers with it after they have been thoroughly drained, tie on the slices cut from the tops for covers, stand them in stone jars and cover with cold vinegar.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

TO PRESERVE FRUIT.

A new process for preserving perishable fruit and food products has been discovered and tested with perfect success in California. It is said that by the use of a vacuum fresh fruit may be kept from spoiling, and the promoters of the new process say that by this means fresh fruit can be kept perfectly fresh for three months. Decay is warded off in the most remarkable manner. It is claimed that this new vacuum process will revolutionize the transportation of fruits and vegetables from California. So satisfied are the holders of the new method that arrangements are being completed to ship large quantities of pears and plums to British ports during the coming season, and from the elaborate tests that have been made it seems that the possible loss in transit will now be reduced to a very small percentage indeed. Under the present system tons of pears and plums go bad in transit during the season, and the monetary loss in this way is naturally serious. It is even expected that in coming years, and possibly in 1906, California fresh cherries will be dispatched to England, preserved by the vacuum process, to compete with the early French fruits. It is also thought probable that selected California peaches may make their acquaintance with the British public, as well as grapes. The California cherries are exceedingly early and fine, the first fruit on that account often realizing fancy values in New York and other American city centers. Undoubtedly, these mammoth cherries would create almost as great a sensation as the seedless orange did when first put upon the English markets. The size and quality of the California cherry may be gauged from the fact that the first fruit always makes 50 per cent. more than the French first fruit realizes. —Dundee Advertiser.

HISTORY OF SHOES.

Shoes or their equivalent are of a certainty even more ancient than gloves, for they were a necessity of locomotion, while the other was a luxury. Sometimes they were made of skins, sometimes of papyrus, as in Egypt. Often they were gilded and decked with jewels, and the most expert artists of the day were employed to decorate the foot coverings of wealthy patricians, consuls, emperors and their favorites.

In no article of attire have more vagaries been shown. Today a lady who desires to be considered in the height of fashion wears shoes pointed as much as possible, but in the time of Queen Mary the taste was all the other way, and it was found necessary to issue a royal proclamation prohibiting shoes with toes wider than six inches.

But perhaps the most extraordinary development in the way of footgear were the "chopines" introduced by the ladies of Venice to make themselves taller than they really were.

The articles were really a kind of stilts, made of wood and leather, and sometimes reached the absurd height of twelve inches. Even a trained acrobat would have difficulty in walking on such things, and ordinary women had such trouble with them when they attempted a promenade they required the assistance of a servant at each side and another behind to keep them from falling.—From Redfern's Royal and Historic Shoes.

JAMES E. MARTINE WEDS MISS JULIA E. RODMAN

"Farmer-orator of New Jersey" Becomes a Benedict at Noon-day Ceremony.

CHURCH IS THRONGED

Two Uncles of the Bride Officiate—Prominent Politicians Attend the Ceremony—Off For Wedding Tour.

In Grace church at noon today, Miss Julia Edgar Rodman, of Kensington avenue, was made the wife of James Edgar Martine, of Cedar Brook Farm.. The ceremony was devoid of display though more than 500 relatives and friends from this and other States were in attendance. The plain but beautiful Episcopal form was used.

Mrs. James E. Martine (nee Rodman).

James E. Martine.

Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of the church and dean of the Plainfield clergy, officiated. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. George Washington Rodman, of Astoria, L. I., both being uncles of the bride.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John M. Chapman, or Montclair, a relatives of the bride. Jacob Lorrilord Rodman, of New York, was the best man. The ushers were George S. Clay, of this city; Charles Marvin, of New York; Stephen Day, of Orrange, and D. W. Martine, of this city.

Miss Rodman was gowned in chiffon taffeta, cut Princess. She carried an ivory prayer book and a shower of forget-me-nots. The matron of honor carried an armful of cream white chrysanthemums. Her gown was a creation of white chiffon over white. Mrs. W. A. Freeman presided at the organ and rendered the wedding march as the party entered and left the church.

After the wedding ceremony a luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother in Kensington avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Martine leave this afternoon for the West, where they will enjoy their honeymoon. On their return they will reside at Cedar Brook Farm, the Martine homestead.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Bessie Bayard Lorrilord Rodman, who was the only child of the late Jacob Lorrilord, of New York. Her father was H. Scott Rodman, a man of wealth and influence in his day. She has resided here for the last decade and mingles much in society. In addition to devoting much attention to parish work at Grace church she spends much time at the Plainfield Country Club, of which she is a member.

James E. Martine, whole-souled and honest even to his own injury politically, has been a figure in Jersey politics for two score years. When but a lad of eighteen he appeared as a delegate at a Democratic State convention at Trenton. He made a speech and the honest ring of his eloquent words caught the crowd. It also caught Governor Johnston, who sought him out. From that day on James E. Martine has talked constantly for his party from the rostrum and in public meeting places in season and out of season. His ability as a stump speaker gained for him the title "farmer orator" and no one is more proud of the designation than he.

His home, "Cedar Brook Farm," in the southern section of the city, is surrounded by handsome houses, but the place is a farm and its owner takes great pride in acting the part

THREE YEARS IN PRISON FOR ATTEMPTED ASSAULT

NEGRO YOUTH SENTENCED YESTERDAY BY JUDGE SCHENCK.

A sentence of three years in State prison at hard labor was imposed by Judge Schenck upon Francis Smith, the young colored man who attempted to assault the young granddaughter of Lawrence J. Suydam, a wealthy farmer at Franklin Park, when he was arraigned in the Somerset county Criminal County yesterday. At the time of his capture the negro barely escaped rough handling.

Harry Illingsworth, of Somerville, who threw a stone and killed a companion, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter. He was held in $2,500 bail for trial on October 16. Former Congressman Clark will defend him.

Charles Kiszonak, the Raritan saloon keeper, pleaded not guilty to a charge of atrocious assault on John Stevenson and was held in $2,500 bail for trial on October 16.

Martine Dined Newspaper Men.

James E. Martine entertained the working newspaper men of the city at a dinner in the Hotel Iroquois yesterday afternoon, in honor of his then approaching marriage. Covers for thirteen were laid, practically the entire editorial and business staffs of both newspaper gathering about the table. Between the farmer-orator and the newspaper men of Plainfield a warm feeling of mutual friendship has always existed. Mr. Martine is one of the privileged few who may put their feet on the editor's desk in either office without being squelched immediately. The dinner was notable because there were no speeches.

A large cut glass punch bowl is the newspaper men's gift to Mr. Martine's bride.

Robertson's Pictures.

D. W. Robertson's famous projectoscope company, of New York, will give its marvelous entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday night, October 10. In addition to the superb pictures there will be entertainment by Prof. Struck, the magician; Harry Willard, banjoist; James J. Haack, pianist, and others. Among the pictures to be shown will be "A Countryman's Visit to Paris, and What He Saw," "The Beautiful Album and Its Mysterious Contents," and "A Modern Highwayman," which is conisdered better than "The Train Robbery."

OPPOSED TO NEW SEWER

Councilman Humble Votes "no" to Resolution on Bids For Pipe.

MR. SMALLEY EXPLAINS

Makes Statement Regarding West End Avenue Improvement and Value of Doing Work Without Contract.

Brevity and business marked the monthly meeting of the Borough Council last night. The session was finished within twenty minutes, and only one matter of more than passing interest came up. That was a brief discussion on the storm sewer to be laid along the new West End avenue, over which the Cits have been making something of a fuss.

The discussion was precipitated by a resolution by Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, authorizing his committee to advertise for bids on pipe to be used in laying the sewer, the street commissioner to do the work on the job, and the cost of the whole not to exceed $2,350.

"Has this work got to be done this fall?" asked Mr. Humble, who is a Cit.

"Why, it seems to be in order," said the Mayor, looking inquiringly at Mr. Humble. He was plainly puzzled over the questioning attitude assumed by the Citizen councilman.

"The street has been graded, and the next step is the laying of the sewer in the natural order of things," continued the Mayor, carefully weighing his words. "The object of a storm sewer is to protect the street, and it should go down on West End avenue now. That is a great improvement, that street. It will mean much for the neighborhood."

The Mayor paused, and looked inquiringly around. There was no comment, and he went on:

"Laying the sewer in the way proposed by the resolution will save us several hundred dollars. A contractor would figure on a basis that would certainly put the cost beyond what it will amount to in this way. We have the tools for the work, a street commissioner who knows how to execute it, and can buy pipe from dealers exactly as contractors do. The work will not only be done cheaper, but, I believe, better.

"Can you save more having the work done by the day than by contract?" asked Councilman Krewson, another Cit, doubtfully.

"Yes," answered the Mayor unhesitatingly. "On this work we can. A number of things which a contractor must figure in his estimate we eliminate by reason of our equipment for street work.

"I wish you gentlemen of the Council would make it your business, at such time as may be convenient for you individually, to go down and look at that new street. You will be surprised at the wonderful improvement it is making in the neighborhood. It is going to do much good."

When the resolution was put roll call was taken. Mr. Humble voted the only negative. His Cit colleagues said after the meeting that they didn't know why he did it. The sewer was authorized at the last meeting of the Council without a dissenting vote.

A petition for two lights on upper Maple avenue, signed by the Independent Gun Club and four other property owners on the street, was received. The Mayor said he knew the neighborhood and didn't believe more than one light was needed. Chairman Lee, of the fire, water and lamps committee, moved one new light.

Chairman VanArsdale, of the police committee, reported another light month in the calaboose. There were only eleven arrests, the total yield of fines was but $14. Seven of the prisoners escaped with suspended sentence. This is the biggest percentage of suspensions—over fifty per cent.—that has appeared on the borough police books in a long time.

Chairman Arnold's report on the streets for September noted a total of $245 spent on general work during the month.

Hymnal Study Service.

The fifth of the series of new hymnal sutdies and a praise service will be held at Grace M. E. church tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, will speak about twenty minutes, and the rest of the time will be given to song. Miss Alice Carroll will preside at the organ and Dyckman Winckler will assist in the music on the violin.

Mr. Swackhamer's Topic.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer is going to deliver an address in the First M. E. church of Bound Brook tomorrow upon the subject, "The Value of Religion to the Ordinary Man."

FORMER EDITOR IN JAIL

William F. Ford, One Time Plainfielder, Arrested on Father-in-law's Complaint

OTHERS ARE PENDING

Constables Begin Proceedings Against Him for Check Transactions at Perth and South Amboy.

William F. Ford, son of William J. Ford, of East Fourth street, and known throughout the State as a newspaper man, is in the New Brunswick jail on one charge while the police of Perth and South Amboy are piling up others against him. The complaint that resulted in his arrest was preferred by his father-in-law, J. D. Van Horne, of New Brunswick, who asserted that the one-time editor had made threats to do him bodily injury. He was unable to procure bail and was still in a cell last night.

Ford, until lately, has been residing in New York with his wife. She went to the home of her parents in New Brunswick and Thursday night Ford went there to get her. At the house Ford and his father got into an altercation and the scribe declared he would kill the latter. Van Horne wanted Ford to promise to stay away from the house, but he refused, and the complaint was made out.

At the police station Ford made several attempts to get bail, but without success. He appealed to the complainant, the recorder and a policeman, and when they refused he submitted to being locked up.

While he was at the jail, Constable Buckalew served a complaint upon him which he had been waiting to serve for some time, charging Ford with obtaining $16 from Freeholder Michael Welsh, of South Amboy, under false pretenses. Constable Peltier also announced that he had a capias against the young man for forgery at South Amboy, for a check transaction with a saloonkeeper, amounting to $24.

Ford was formerly editor of a paper at Bound Brook. He was also a reporter for papers in New Brunswick, Trenton, Elizabeth, Perth Amboy and this city.

LOCAL ELKS HOLDING SECOND ANNUAL OUTING

BAKE TO BE SERVED BY CATERER BENDER AT 2:30 THIS AFTERNOON.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., is holding its second annual outing and clam bake on the Watchung Springs company grounds on Mountain avenue today. More than 100 members of the antlered host were in attendance at noon and the number was doubled before the back was served at 2:30. This part of the programme is to be in charge of Caterer Bender, of Elizabeth, who has a reputation in three States for knowing how to serve the edibles in the true Rhode Island style.

The remainder of the afternoon is to be spent in athletic games and a baseball contest. Marcus Hoyt will captain one side and William Townley the other.

The committee which arranged the affair consists of George O. Stevens, chairman; Frank Boose and Marcus Hoyt.

Light for Boulevard.

The Public Service Corporation set seventeen poles in West End avenue, yesterday, strung the wires and last night the avenue from the bridge to W. J. Buttfield's property was brilliantly illuminated. The poles are set in the centre of the avenue, on either side of which there is a driveway, and a cross piece carries a light at each end. It is not the intention of the syndicate which is improving this property, to burn the entire number of lights every night for the present, but a test was made last night and everything was found to be working all right. These lights are on a separate circuit.

Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, begins tomorrow night and will continue until Monday. It will be generally observed by those of the Hebrew faith in this city and services will be held at the Synagogue of the Children of Israel. The celebration includes an all-day fasting.

Making More Citizens.

Judge Vail held court at Elizabeth this morning for the purpose of granting second papers to those who had previously applied for naturalization. About fifteen persons were present from this city. On Thursday there were about 150 who appeared before Judge Vail for their papers.

WILL THE COUNCIL ACT?

Its Disposition of Hospital Board's Appeal Awaited With Interest.

MR. LADD'S STATEMENT

Gives Reasons As to Why the City As a Whole Should Help Pay the Expenses of the Institution.

In response to an appeal made by the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, the Common Council has under consideration taking action, through Chapter 223 of the laws of 1904, which provides that after a resolution is passed by the Council directing the city clerk to give public notice of its submission, the question of an appropriation for the hospital may be submitted to the voters for their consideration. The matter was informally discussed at the meeting of the Council on Monday last and laid over until the adjourned meeting on Monday next, at which time something definite must be accomplished if the question is to be voted upon at the next election. A doubt exists as to whether the request will be granted, and as the matter is of great interest to nearly every Plainfielder, a reporter for The Daily Press secured the following interview from E. H. Ladd in asking him to state the case from his standpoint:

"There seems to be some difference of opinion between the finance committee of the hospital and the Common Council as to the advisability of allowing this question to come before the voters. The law provides that the amount to be appropriated yearly shall be a sum equal to one-third of a mill on every dollar of assessable property, and if the assessed valuations shall be increased, as is probable, to $18,000,000, the hospital would derive at this rate about $6,000 a year. I understand that some members of the Council consider this a large amount to be contributed by the taxpayers of the city, but when we consider that the cost of maintaing the hospital was last year about $23,000, and the institution was obliged to raise about $9,200 in addition to $4,800 received from Union county, the amount proposed to be raised by tax is not excessive.

"The entire cost of the new hospital buildings was provided for through the generosity of Plainfield people, but the cost of the service rendered by the institution is large and the demands upon its resources constantly increasing. For the year ending May 31, 1905, the running expenses amounted to $22,781,33, which sum represents the cost to the hospital of the 11,168 days' treatment rendered 525 patients during that time, making an average cost per patient of $2.04 per hospital day, or $14.28 per week; 222 indoor patients were treated without charge, being given 4,616 days' treatment, which, at the rate of $14.28 per week, would amount to $9,416.64. In addition to the indoor patients the institution treated last year free of charge 425 dispensary patients.

"Our committee believes that the question of whether the city should make an annual appropriation for the hospital should, in any event, be submitted to the voters for their approval or disapproval, as the responsibility of their decision will then undoubtedly rest upon the voters themselves and not upon the Common Council.

"The burden of the maintenance of the hospital should not be borne by a few philanthropic persons, but by the community as a whole, each paying his pro rata according to the value of his possessions.

"I am of the opinion that if the taxpayers were given an opportunity they would vote favorably upon this question, and it seems to me the Council should not refuse them the right to speak for themselves. In the city of Bayonne last year a similar appropriation was voted to the local hospital under the law of 1904, and the same question will probably be submitted to the voters in other cities this fall. Plainfield should not be the last to take advantage of so fair a law passed in the interests of hospital charities."

Talk on "The Street Boy."

The subject of the address to be given by Hon. Mornay Williams, of New York, Monday evening, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, will be "The Street Boy and Our Responsibility." The address will be preceded by a short business meeting, when officers will be chosen for the ensuing year. Mr. Williams is a speaker much sought after in connection with subjects of social and civic interest. The club and its friends will have a treat.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen have returned to their home in the borough after spending the summer at Belmar.

SOMERSET'S NOMINEES

The Republican Slate Goes Through, Frelinghuysen and Hoagland Being Named.

PLANKS IN PLATFORM

Congressman Wood Makes a Speech—North Plainfielders on Committees—All Cut and Dried.

County Chairman Joseph T. Frelinghuysen called the Somerset County Republican convention to order at the Court House, Somerville, this morning, and after some delay Henry F. Galpin, of Bound Brook, was chosen chairman and Elmer J. Mundy, of Somerville, secretary. The convention was one of the most quiet in the history of the party, there being no contests, and perfect harmony prevailed throughout. It was "cut and dried" throughout.

According to the slate, Joseph T. Frelinghuysen was nominated, after the recess, for State Senator. His name was presented by Aldrich Beekman. Assemblyman Irving Hoagland was nominated for the office he now holds. The platform was first adopted.

Before the recess the organization was perfected. L. B. Woolston was put on the credentials committee, Mayor N. B. Smalley on the committee on resolutions, William F. MacLaughlin on the committee on permanent organization, and W. W. Coriell on the committee on rules. All of these men were in the delegation from North Plainfield. Charles A. Reed took an active part, speaking several times. It is estimated that fully ninety per cent. of the delegates were present.

The convention was called to order at 11:20 o'clock, and after the organization Congressman Ira W. Wood was introduced and made a stirring address, in which he praised the greatness of the country and its progress as a nation.

After the address was concluded Charles A. Reed moved that when the convention adjourned it be to meet at 1:30 this afternoon. The committees were then named by the chairman and the convention adjourned temporarily.

Prosecutor Speer, of Hudson county, addressed the convention this afternoon. Congressman Wood was obliged to leave early to attend an outing of the Mercer county Republicans to be held at Trenton.

In his speech of acceptance of the nomination, Mr. Frelinghuysen referred to the action of the authorities to put a stop to the high speed of automobiles, and said that he as an automobilist always strived to run his machine within the speed limits of the law. At one time he damaged his machine to the extent of $100 to prevent a collision.

The platform adopted this afternoon favors such a limitation of time on all public franchises, with such a readjustment of its terms with every renewal, as will protect the public and all parties involved. The platform also declares for equal taxation and approves of the work of Governor Stokes and Assemblyman Hoagland. It declares the primary election law to be a good one, but suggests that a change be made whereby the vote will be by districts instead of townships.

A. V. D. Honeyman, of the borough, was in Somerville, and held an earnest conversation with several prominent Republican friends. He did not go into the convention.

Central's Big Warehouse.

Plans for the large storage warehouse to be erected by the Central Railroad at Mechanic, Lawrence and Ward streets, Newark, at an estimated cost of $500,000, were passed this morning by John Austin, superintendent of the building department. The building will have a frontage of 361 feet on Mechanic street and a depth of about 150 feet. It will be six stories high.

Recital at Plainfield Country Club.

The house committee of the Plainfield Country Club, of which Lewis G. Timpson is the chairman, has arranged with W. E. MacClymont to give a recital at the clubhouse on Saturday night, October 14. A fine programme of vocal and instrumental music is being prepared, to be followed by the usual Saturday night dance.

Regret of Law Makers.

There will be sincere regret felt by many an ex-legislator in Jersey, after reading the testimony before the insurance investigators in New York, that "Judge Andy" Hamilton was not on the calling list of the lawmakers at Trenton.—Newark News.

Mrs. Charles D. Stillman and her sister, Miss Sophronia Barlow, of Prospect place, will sail next week for Port Arthur, Texas, where Mrs. Stillman goes to join her husband, who is chief engineer of the Port Arthur Sewer Company.

MAYOR TOOK THE STUMP

N. B. Smalley Received an Ovation at the Republican Mass Meeting.

HIS SPEECH IN FULL

Had Something to Say Regarding S. S. Swackhamer as a Councilman—Challenged His Opponent.

Though former Senator Charles A. Reed's address in Saengerbund Hall, Thursday night, summed up the political situation in the borough, several points he did not touch upon were brought out by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who spoke after him. They dealt with phases of the controversy which encircle him and which gave him an opportunity to refute charges made against his administration by members of the Citizens' party. His remarks verbatim were as follows:

Mayor N. B. Smalley.

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: The hardest work that I have had in the last six years has been to attempt to make an address before any considerable number of our citizens, but I want to say to you that I am more than pleased to have this opportunity to meet with you, and discuss with you in a brief way some of the reasons why this administration of affairs that you have been burdened with for the last seven years should be continued. Personally, I would have been gratified if the Republicans of North Plainfield could have found another candidate; and I say to you now, that if such a thing were possible, between now and the day of election, that a man properly qualified could be found to occupy that position, I would be more than glad to step aside and help him get it.

"I want to say to the Republicans who have favored me with three successive terms or nominations, that if they feel that I have in any way failed to represent them properly or in any manner been unfaithful to their trust, that I should advise them now and at any other time between now and November 7, to vote for some other man. It is not an easy matter, as I have said before, to fill the office of the Mayor of North Plainfield, and it has not been, you are well aware of, in the last few years. I succeeded a man who was a very capable occupant of that position, a man who had business training, who devoted it to our public affairs, and who benefited the people of this borough largely by having done just what he did, bringing about a state of affairs in our finances that was not only a credit when he was there, but will be a credit as long as we exist. He placed our finances on a firm foundation, and I say to you that they are there today. Into the hands of our worthy collector comes the money for taxes. We issue a full report to the taxpayer; and there has never been a moment of the time since I have served you that any citizen of this borough could not find out all about the financial affairs in our departments; and so I feel perfectly safe in coming before you and saying a few words, and giving you an opportunity for a few moments, not to hear Smalley's name mentioned, because it seems that this campaign is a sort of a defense of what I have done in the administration of my office; and to me it is very embarrassing to have my name used so frequently in the efforts of the gentlemen to have you have a full understanding of the conditions.

Now, it is not possible for any number of men to answer in one evening all the charges that have been made, and I do not propose to keep you here a great while or to attempt to contradict everything that has been said concerning the administration, because it is too long.

"It is a remarkable thing that six years ago last March, when I was elected by the ballot, the men who are in opposition to me today were in favor of me then. How do you account for that? I know. It is simply because in that six years I have not let them run the government.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Dunellen is to have a voting machine at the coming election. Four new machines have been assigned to the county by the State secretary, and one of these has been marked for here. There are only eight machines in the whole county. It is expected that a good deal of grumbling by old-time voters will mark the appearance of the machine in the borough hall. In no place where the machines have been installed have the older voters accepted the change from the time-honored method of balloting with complacency. Protests are useless, however; when the allotment of machines has been made the districts picked out must accept the machines.

Collector LaRue will be at Charles S. Day's store in New Market on December 12, from 10 o'clock to noon, to receive New Market's taxes. He will beat the American Engine Company's office, East Bound Brook, on December 7, and at the postoffice, Lincoln, on December 13, during the same hours. Taxes not paid by December 20 go on the delinquent list. Taxpayers who don't make it their business to settle with Mr. LaRue on the dates mentioned will have to go to his home in East Bound Brook.

The Highway Protector's Association has issued the first of its protest and education bulletins. It is entitled "Public Interest and the Automobile Curse," and is lively enough for the stanchest opponent of reckless automobiling. Several New Market people have copies.

The football team was out in force for heavy practice and signal work last night. The eleven goes up against the crack Alls team, of Plainfield, this afternoon. Capt. Maltby is sanguine of victory, particularly as it is Alls' first game.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry has issued an open invitation to those interested in his proposed manual training class to meet at the parsonage next Monday night for organization.

The present rush of orders at the Levering & Garrigues plant beats the record of advance work in to shop, and the stream of new business shows no signs of decreasing.

Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith recited and solos were given by Mr. Truax, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Stricklett and Mr. Goodwin. Those by Mr. Stricklett were especially pleasing, and one in particular, "Where the Four Leaf Clover Grows," he was compelled to repeat.

The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee from the association, consisting of Paul Taylor Brown, Howard Williams and Miss Harriet Halloway. Similar entertainments are to be held during the latter part of the winter.

THE PEOPLE ALL.

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FASHION VAGARIES.

A velvet collar is a foregone conclusion upon almost every coat, whatever be the general nature of the coat. The long coat, the empire coat and the bolero vary widely in line, but all have this one feature in common.

Embroidered buttons, too, are still in demand. Little buttons plainly covered with satin are lavishly used in connection with the satin folds and other satin trimmings.

That satin is to assume much importance in the winter frock scheme seems beyond doubt. Satin models are many, both in evening and in visiting gowns, and nothing lovelier is shown than some of the satin evening gowns in princess or in empire form.

The empire lines are being accepted enthusiastically in coats and in street or visiting costumes made with coats, but whether the empire gowns for house and evening wear will find cordial acceptance remains to be seen. Some beautiful gowns of the kind have been worn in Paris during the past year, and it is said that several of the great dressmakers intend to push the empire evening gown this winter, but we shall see what we shall see. The lines need very skilful making and graceful wearing.

Meanwhile the princess evening gown is a thing established. It is successful only in skilful hands, and on a good figure, but, given this combination, the result is altogether charming.

A WOMAN'S FRIENDSHIP.

It is the fashion to assume that true friendship cannot exist between women. Some foundation for this assumption lies in the fact that women are by long inheritance less fitted for that broad view-point and high reserve necessary to an attachment of this kind. Nevertheless, there have been many women whose loyalty to a friend of the same sex has been strong as death and as worthy to be put down in the annals of friendship as the affection of David and Jonathan and all their masculine successors.

To form a friendship of this sort takes a rare nature. The woman who is small and petty, resentful, envious or jealous is not capable of it. She may form those intimate attachments, heated as a volcano while they last, but quickly burnt out to a white ash, and leaving coldness and enmity behind, such as characterize the intercourse of a certain type of feminine—an altogether too numerous type, alas!—of that kind which "runs in" on all the neighbors in the block at any hour, and calls other women "dear" in the first day of acquaintance. Little lasting devotion is built on any such frail foundation. It is not worth while to look to this type for a deep, abiding and loyal friendship for another woman.

Such devotion as there is is likely to be shaken by the firstt jealousy, the first whisper of adverse gossip.

But there are women of another sort, who do not form friendships without foundation. They can wait until they discover of what stuff another woman is made. Assured of that, it takes more than trifles to shake their allegance.

Such friendships are often begun in girlhood, and blossom into one of the truest pleasures of mature life. But it takes the right kind of girls to compact them.

It takes a girl whose affection for another is not diminished by the fact that that other is more attractive than herself.

It takes a girl who can rejoice in the charms of her friend, without being embittered by envy.

It takes a girl who can take pleasure in her friend's new gown, though she herself longs for one and cannot have it.

It takes a girl who can cheerfully bear to see her friend carry off all the honors.

It takes a girl who can introduce her friend to another one of her best friends, and see that best friend become more interested in the other girl than in herself, and not resent it nor alter her affection toward the girl herself.

These are hard tests, about as hard as girlish friendships could be put to. As said before, it all depends on the nature of the girl. But many natures have stood them, as they have stood the tests that later life brought to bear upon their friendships.

And many strong hearted women rejoice in just such a mutual attachment as this.

—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders will hold the October meeting at the court house, Somerville, Tuesday.

—The Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will meet for the first time this season on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

—Mr. Leon Maron begs to announce that his classes in art will commence for the season on Tuesday, October the tenth, in his studio, room 218, Babcock building.

Charles Ross, of Elizabeth, has been visiting friends in town for a few days.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Holyoke against Daabsters this afternoon at Crescent Oval. A red-hot contest is expected.

The Holyokes will play the local team at St. George Cricket Grounds, Hoboken, tomorrow.

Many Plainfield fans are planning to see the second post-season game in New York Tuesday.

The Holyokes will be here with their strongest lineup and will make the champions hustle to win.

Providence, champions of the Eastern League, will meet the Elizabethport Stars at the 'Port tomorrow.

Conway, of the Dunellen team, will probably play third base for the All-Plainfield team in the game against the local champions.

Captain Driscoll thinks that with "Phil" Smith in the box, his team can defeat the All-Plainfield aggregation with "Lou" Wiltse opposing them.

The tickets for the banquet to the Daabsters a week from today are selling very fast, and those who want to attend should speak early or they may get left.

After today the Daabsters will play two more games before closing the season. On Saturday they will meet the All-Plainfield team, and on October 21 it is expected that the Giants will be here.

Bender, the Indian twirler of the Philadelphia Athletics, who was thought to be out of the game for good a few weeks ago, is doing fine work for the coming champions of the American League. On Thursday he shut out Washington by a score of 8 to 0.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Marching Through Georgia" with its particularly capable company of artists, its magnificent scenic production and its wonderful heart-reaching story of absorbing interest, will play a return engagement at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. This play was such an enormous success and so satisfactory to the patrons of our local playhouse that Manager Counihan persuaded the management of "Marching Through Georgia" to play a return engagement. This piece broke all previous records for a matinee on its former visit and it is safe to predict that more records will be broken this afternoon.

"For His Brother's Crime" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. Lovers of good melodrama, of the right sort, where virtue triumphs over crime, and all that sort of thing, will find much in this new Blaney play to admire, dealing as it does with the trials of the hero and tribulations of the villain, illustrating in the end that the way of the transgressor is hard. The play's strong claim to public approval, however, lies in its marvelous and unexpected climaxes. It was written especially for Mr. Robert Gaillard, the modern Hercules, advantage being taken of his wonderful strength to build great climaxes which are decidedly out of the ordinary. Mr. Gaillard and a strong supporting company will be seen in "For His Brothr's Crime" to good advantage, the production as a whole having been pronounced by the critics as the best play Mr. Blaney ever wrote.

Mrs. Margaret Hibbard, of North avenue, was removed to the hospital Thursday night for treatment.

Elmer Vanderbeek, of South Branch, who has been at the hospital under treatment, has returned home. He is improving slowly.

James O'Conor, of Westfield, who is at the hospital under treatment for injuries received on the New Jersey Central, when he lost a leg, seems to b steadily improving.

Vile Commercialism.

They stood in the shadow of the pyramids.

"Oh, what," murmured the romantic maiden, "will the sphinx say, when, after centuries of silence, it finally speaks?"

"I don't know," responded the practical young business man. "But I'd be willing to pay big money to have it holler: 'Use Dingbat's Tooth Soap. It does not bite the tongue.'"—Courier Journal.

Early Training.

"He is certainly a bouncing baby boy."

"Yes, and his mother hopes some day he may go to college and make a name for himself on the gridiron."

"You don't say. Is she teaching him to stand hard knocks already?"

"Yes, she grabs him by the wrist and pulls him through every bargain rush they have downtown."—Chicago News.

A Proviso.

"Don't you think that government ownership is a thoroughly practical proposition?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustinstax. "I haven't the slightest objection to the government's owning property, provided it is willing to buy it at my price."—Washington Star.

But they gave me this broom,"
She remarked. "I presume,

'Tis Ever Thus.

"You can't please all the people all the time, you know."

"Yes, curse it," replied the man with the get-rich-quick scheme, "I know. Some reporter always comes along sooner or later and puts them next."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Heartfelt.

"Have you learned your duty toward God and your duty toward your neighbor, my son?"

"Yes, mamma, and—"

"And what, dear?"

"How I wish you had gotten me in duty free!"—Life.

A Convincing Sermon.

Mr. Pewrent—Your sermon on economy this morning, doctor, was a very sensible discourse.

Dr. Churchmus—Thank you; it seems to have been appreciated, from the appearance of the collection bag.—Tit Bit.

Just Double 'Em.

"After consulting with the architect I find that my new house will cost me $10,000."

"Oh, you can't go by the architect's figures."

"Yes, I can. He said it would cost me $5,000.—Cleveland Leader.

To a Standstill.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Oh, John, what's the matter with your phonograph? It won't go.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—I guess you've talked it to a standstill, dear.—Yonkers Statesman.

In Doubt.

"Is your son getting on nicely in college?"

"I don't know," answered Mr. Thoreau Bredd. "He stands so well in his studies that I am afraid he is neglecting his athletics."—Washington Star.

Small for Its Age.

Patience—I have had that same bathing suit for five seasons.

Patrice—It's not really five years old!

"Yes, it is."

"Small for its age, isn't it?"—Yonkers Statesman.

She's Dreaming.

"There goes Miss Letters. I understand she is quite literary."

"Who told you so?"

"She did."

"Ah, well, don't wake her up."—Judge.

An Expensive Vacation.

"A week's vacation means a year added to your life."

"It will have to mean more than that, if I am to live to pay for it."—N. Y. Sun.

Advantages.

"A man can live cheaper in Europe than he can in this country."

"Yes," answered the trust promoter, "and with less risk of being bothered by grand juries."—Washington Star.

Out of Order.

"I hate to have anything on my conscience, don't you?" she mused.

"I never have," he replied, quickly; "mine isn't working."—Detroit Free Press.

JAMES E. MARTINE WEDDED

of the gentleman farmer. It was built in 1764 and beneath its roof have been housed men and women famous in the State and throughout the country. William E. Dodge, the philanthropist and millionaire metal man, once claimed it as his home. Then again Clarence Steadman, the banker poet, and his mother, known as the "Quaker poetess," lived there for many years.

In his quaint little study, where hang no less than six pictures of his patron saint, William Jennings Bryan, important political conferences have taken place. The editor of the Commoner, himself, has twice burned the midnight oil there while he chatted with his closest friend in New Jersey over vexing political situations. There too, have sat the late Governors Green and Abbett, and others high in the councils of Democracy. Even Peter Finley Dunne, the man who made "Mr. Dooley" famous, has tasted some of "Farmer Jim's" grape juice while he listened to stories of Mr. Martine's experiences on the stump and in the campaigns of forty years.

At the main entrance of the homestead at the front of a half mile road, is a sort of lynch-gate. This was erected in 1896 and is noteworthy by reason of one fact. At the base of one of the stone columns is planted, about as deep as Mr. Bryan's theories today, a silver dollar of 1896, a copy of the "cross of gold and crown of thorns" speech delivered by the free silverite at Chicago and a picture of W. J. Bryan himself. They are buried forever for according to the lord of the manor, they are not to be disinterred until Bryan's principles shall triumph in American politics.

In every presidential campaign, Mr. Martine has been called upon by the National committee to take the stump, and his voice has been heard in nearly every State in the Union. He has spent thousands in helping his party and has run countless times when he knew that it was a forlorn hope. He has been an Assembly nominee no less than six times and on two occasions he has been the party candidate for State Senator. He made a bitter fight against former Governor Foster M. Voorhees for the Senate and only a year ago made a struggle against Congressman Charles N. Fowler which made the latter hustle. Although worsted by the Roosevelt landslide, he defeated Fowler in his home city, Elizabeth, where the balance of the Republican ticket received a good majority. Some few years ago he was pitted against Charles Joel Fisk, of this iron-bound Republican city, for the mayoralty. The usual Republican majority in Plainfield varies from 1,200 to 1,800 and often creeps up past 2,200, but the well-known banker, popular as he is, only received 200 more votes than "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, the friend of the people and the honest champion of Democratic principles.

Among the guests at the wedding were Miss Katherine Duncan, of Newark; Mrs. Stephen Day, of Orange; Judge Cutler, Mayor Reid, former Congressman DeWitt C. Flanagan and Robert Foote, of Morristown; Captain James Parker, of Perth Amboy; John Weeks and the Misses Weeks, of Montclair; Charles S. Black and Congressman Allan McDermott, of Jersey City; Judge and Mrs. Schultze, of Phillipsburg; former Mayor Ryan, John English, Judge O. P. Mahon, Nicholas English and Mr. and Mrs. James J. Brennan, of Elizabeth; Henry George, Jr., Congressman William Suitzer, Mr. and Mrs. James Camman and the Misses Camman, Mrs. Randolph B. Martine, Jr., of New York; former Congressman Johnston Cornish, of Washington, N. J.; former Congressman Alvah A. Clark and former Senator William J. Keyes, of Somerville.

CRIPPLE'S ROMANCE.

Marries Man Many Years Her Junior.

Boston, Oct. 7.—Brookline was the scene of what appeared to be a runaway marriage yesterday. The couple arrived at town hall in a hack in search of a license. The bride was a cripple, using a crutch on account of some trouble with her left hip. She gave her name as Cornelia Hatch and her residence New York. Her age was put down as 30, although she looked ten years older.

The bridegroom said he was Harry Walker, 23 years old, and that his parents live at Tilton, N. H. No occupation was given, but he had a roll of bills of large denomination. After getting the license, the couple were married by the Rev. Leonard K. Storrs.

Dr. Storrs said he knew the whole story, but refused to tell it.

Mrs. Mary Riddle, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Pattenburg.

Miss Grace Murphy, of West Fifth street, ahs recovered from a recent illness.

Miss Mabel Cardner, of Orange place, has returned home from her vacation.

W. C. LaRue, of East Second street, has recovered from a recent severe illness.

Mrs. George Hoagland, of Frankfort, has returned home after a visit with relatives here.

Mrs. C. L. Hoffman, of Califon, is still at the hospital under treatment, but her condition does not improve.

N. J.'S GAIN FROM N. Y.

Remarkable Overflow of Population During Five Years in Metropolitan Zone.

INTERESTING FIGURES

Included in the Metropolitan District Are Hudson, Passaic, Bergen, Essex, Union, Monmouth Morris and Middlesex.

Trenton, Oct. 7.—A complete tabulation of the returns of the State census brings to light a curious situation—namely, the growth in New Jersey during the last five years has been largely dependent on the overflow of population from Manhattan. There are now 1,500,000 persons in the metropolitan zone, out of a population of 2,137,000 in the whole State.

In the eight counties of the State that comprise the New York commutation zone, there has been a gain of 256,000 in the State.

The gain in that zone is distributed as follows:

	Pop.	Gain.
Hudson	449,874	68,831
Passaic	170,755	15,551
Bergen	100,000	21,562
Essex	409,628	50,575
Union	117,213	17,858
Monmouth	87,919	5,862
Morris	67,394	2,778
Middlesex	77,036	17,274
Totals	1,500,362	195,295

The greatest percentage of increase in the zone is in Bergen county—27 per cent. Middlesex comes next, with 22 per cent. Morris stood last, with only 4 per cent.

The two mountainous counties, Hunterdon and Sussex, have lost population since 1900—respectively, 1,249 and 809.

Some of the suburban communities in the New York commutation zone, which are people almost exclusively by commuters, showed astonishing gains. Here are some percentages of growth in such places:

Roselle .....56 per cent.
Tea Neck .....65 per cent.
Fairview .....70 per cent.
Cliffside Park .....116 per cent.

How amazingly Bergen county has profited by the fact that it lies just across the Hudson from Manhattan is shown by the fact that the following eleven places have sprung into existence in the county since the Federal census—Etna, Haworth, Norwood, Oakland, Edgewater, Alpine, Glen Rock, Demarest, Closter, Harrington Park, Fort Lee. Their combined present population is 10,185.

The increase of 60,860 in the population of New Jersey outside of the so-called metropolitan zone is distributed among eleven counties. Of these Salem county shows only 748 increase, and Cumberland only 917. The biggest gain outside of the metropolitan zone was in Mercer county—15,151, fow hich nearly 11,000 is in Trenton.

There were 142 places which showed a decrease of population since 1900, but in many cases this was due to alteration of town lines. But there were many genuine losses. Two persons had vanished from Saddle River, nine from Cape May, four from Brigantine City, two from Chesterfield, in Burlington county; eight from Oldman's township, in Salem county; two from Fieldsboro, in Salem; three from Pittsgrove, in Salem. Thirteen were gone from New Providence township, in Union county. The enumerator tried to reduce the number to twelve, on account of the unlucky number, but failed, and gave up the job in chagrin.

W. V. R. U. ENTERTAINS.

Union Veterans' Union Auxiliary Holds a Pleasant Social Affair.

The Women's Veteran Relief Union held a highly successful sociable at its headquarters, Pittis Hall, East Front street, last night. The affair was well attended, and a varied programme of entertainment was presented.

Gen. J. R. Naylor, commander of the First Brigade, W. V. U., of New York and New Jersey, presided, and made a speech of welcome. The programme included songs by Miss Agnes Ackerman, Miss Florence Henry, Miss Helen Thompson, Miss Maisie Thompson and Miss Gertrude Blimm; dance by Miss Emily Henry; sketch by Miss Ackerman, Mrs. Emma Cox and Mrs. A. Townley; and a talk bq Comrade Henry Frazee, on a recent trip to a reunion of his regiment in Red Bank. Between the various numbers selections on a concert phonograph were given.

Refreshments were served. The committee in charge was made up of Mrs. E. E. Townley, Mrs. Emma Cox, Mrs. Harriet Gibbons, Miss Liszka and Mrs. Henry Frazee.

Roundsman's Clever Stop.

Roundsman John Flynn made a clever stop of Woodhull & Martin's horse at Park and North avenues last night, preventing considerable damage. The animal started on North avenue while the driver was delivering goods and ran toward Park avenue. At the junction of the two streets it was traveling at a lively clip, when Roundsman Flynn stepped into the middle of the road and grasping the bridle quickly brought the animal to a standstill.

Plainfield, N. J., October 7, 1905.

For Councilman-at-large, George P. Mellick!

Best wishes to James E. Martine and his bride.

Carl Lentz's wail for sympathy is cute, to say the least.

"They have forgotten; they have forgotten" the spite-house ordinance. Come, come, Mr. Bullock, and let us see what you have done!

When he has finished his useful life and passed to the great beyond, New Yorkers will remember C. E. Hughes as the man who "also ran" for Mayor in 1905.

And today it is Somerset county's turn to "point with pride to the magnificent achievements of that gallant soldier, renowned scholar and able statesman, Theodore Roosevelt."

Have you noticed how much attention is being given Colbyism throughout the State? The Elizabeth Leader may have a winning man in its candidate for Governor. Who knows?

He may not be a politician, but Rutherford Franklin, who hails from Summit, knows the art of capturing a convention. His remarks before the Republican delegates put the whole crowd in good humor and made for himself a reputation as the right man to be intrusted with a nominating speech.

When the Equitable was under fire, both the New York Life and the Mutual Life tumbled all over themselves with the "holier than thou" dodge. They pleaded for an investigation of their affairs, putting out the bluff that it would be shown that they had clean hands. They got the investigation, all right, and our respect for Thomas W. Lawson is increased four-fold.

WEDS FIANCEE ON DEATHBED.

She Becomes Bride Just Before He Dies of Appendicitis.

There is deep sorrow at the home of Professor George D. Herron, Elmwood Farm, Metuchen. Miss May Herron, the unmarried daughter of Professor Herron, some time ago announced her engagement to Albert Avery, a prominent young business man of Buffalo, N. Y. The wedding date was set for October 10, but a week or more ago Mr. Avery was stricken with appendicitis and it was found necessary to perform an operation last week in Buffalo.

It was not successful, and word was received that the patient was in a serious condition and could not live. Broken-hearted, Miss Herron took the first train from Scranton to her intended husband's home in Buffalo. Tuesday of this week a clergyman was summoned and the marriage ceremony was performed at the beside of the dying man. That same evening Mr. Avery died, and the body was sent to Metuchen from Buffalo. Yesterday a funeral service was held at the Elmwood Farm home of the Herrons.

Leals and P. H. S. Fail to Score.

The first of a series of two football games for the city scholastic championship was played this morning between the elevens from the Plainfield High School and Leal's School. The game was one of the best ever played here, neither side being able to score after fifteen and twenty minute halves. The work of Mahaffey, who substituted for Captain Douglass, of the High School, was the feature of the game, while Stuart Freeman, Lynas and Loizeaux, of the High School, played a strong game. Will Glenney distinguished himself for Leals, his work being worthy of special mention.

HIS BOOZE NOT CHEAP.

Oscar Nelson Corrects a Wrong Impression Held by Judge Runyon.

Oscar Nelson, alias Green, colored, was brought before Judge Runyon this morning, charged with abusing his wife. Oscar said drink was at the bottom of all his trouble and volunteered a promise to cut it out.

"Booze is a bad thing," said the magistrate, "especially rotgut. It's—

"I drinks nuthin' but fifteen-cent rum," interrupted Oscar, and the courtroom crowd laughed.

The judge suspended sentence, and Oscar promised earnestly to be decent.

WORK FOR CITY FATHERS

Sewer Matters and Other Affairs For Consideration on Monday Night.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE

Bond of Police Commissioners May Be Approved — Anti-Administration Members Are Keeping Quiet.

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting Monday night to consider several sewer matters, including storm and sanitary. It was expected that ordinances would be introduced a month ago to provide for this work, but it was laid over and there was so much business on Monday night that they could not be reached.

It is proposed to introduce an ordinance for the Richmond street sanitary sewer. This will start at Cedar brook and be extended as far toward Sixth street as possible. The sewer, which will be of concrete construction, is very expensive, and the Common Council plans to do a little each year toward its final completion, which it is hoped will prevent the flooding in that section of the city during heavy rains.

There is also some sanitary sewer work to be done in the West End of the city and this will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The Common Council appropriated $500 for an investigation of the question of locating one or two pumping stations in portions of the city which cannot be sewered by gravity, and it is expected that a report on this matter will be presented in the near future.

Another matter will probably be considered Monday night is that in reference to the request of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital asking that the citizens be given an opportunity to vote a certain tax each year for the hospital. This question must be put before the voters before the Common Council can grant the request. The amount asked for is one-third of a mill on every dollar of tax collected.

There will also be considered several minor matters left over from the last meeting, and it is possible that the bonds of the new police commissioners may be approved. The communication from Mayor Buckle was laid on the table Monday night.

In the closing days of the present administration there seems to be no disposition of the anti-machine members to do anything out of the ordinary, and no sensational moves are expected. Mr. Tyler, who was chairman of the police board, did not attend Monday night's meeting, and inasmuch as the police commissioners are now in power there will be nothing left for the old police board to do. Some persons thought that Mr. Tyler would have something to say about the matter, but as yet he has shown no public interest.

OFF TO CLAIM ESTATE.

Woman Expects to Collect Over $20,000 in Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wood, of New Brunswick, sail today on the Anchor Line steamer Columbia for Europe, to claim an estate of over $20,000 in Scotland. Mrs. Wood is a native of Glasgow, and the property to which she lays a claim consists, besides real estate, of $20,000 placed in the bank there thirty years ago, and on which interest has been accumulating since. During the lifetime of the testator's wife the estate could not be disposed of. Now all the heirs except Mrs. Wood and an only brother, John Graham Cambell, of New York, are dead. He has signed over his interest in the estate to his sister.

Mrs. Wood has known of the money since she was a child, and European attroneys have been looking after her interests. She will spend four months abroad and expects to return with the money.

Mrs. William Bacon and daughter Evelyn, accompanied by Mrs. Bacon's sister, Mrs. George Demarest, of the borough, leave today for a ten days' visit with relatives at Haverstraw, N. Y.

AUTO TOUR COST $175.

Board of Education Divided Over Value of Its Recent Trip.

Bills rendered by the State officials at Trenton Thursday show that the recent trip of the State Board of Education, which toured the several counties of the Commonwealth in automobiles, cost $175—$50 for meals and $125 for the hire of the autos. This is the first time in the history of the State that automobiles have been used for such purpose.

There is a wide diversity of opinion among the members of the board as to the value of such an innovation. Some of them declare the trip was a failure because of repeated accidents to the machine. Others insist that the outing was ideal in every respect. The trip was taken for the purpose of examing applicants for the positions of superintendents of schools.

They elected me Mayor, and there are certain things connected with that office that it was my duty to perform; and in the attacks made on it from various directions, I have always stood them off; and I want to say to you just on this one point, that if there is any number of the Citizens' union party knows of any official that has served under my administration who was appointed for the purpose of getting votes, or for the purpose of my being benefited in any possible manner, at their next meeting I would like to have them name him. The only request that has ever been made of any official who served this administration during my time has been that they should serve the public well and faithfully, and help to make the administration a success; and I defy the members of the Citizens' Union or any other party to show any other condition, or to find a man that has taken a position contrary to that statement. You will remember the condition of affairs when Mayor Wilson took office. You all know that it was absolutely necessary for us to have a change in the government of this borough. There were two reasons, and one was that had things been allowed to go on as they were, our borough would have been bankrupt; and the padty which nominated me would have been disgraced; and it was then that a committee of the Republicans, of which I was one, went to the Democrats and asked them to nominate John F. Wilson, and told them that we would elect him. His opponent, Charles Place, came to me on the street in front of this hall and said to me, 'Are you going to support me?' I said 'No; you are not built right for Mayor of this borough (Laughter). We have got to have a man in that position that has nerve and backbone to stand up and do what is right, and you are not that man.' (Applause) We went out and elected John F. Wilson, and he served two years. It served the purpose, and the people of this town have the right to reverence him as long as he lives.

"It was my fortune to be nominated against him two years later. I was successful, and I am glad to say that I followed in the path of his administration, because there were many good things about it; and I congratulate the borough that he was at that time made mayor, and that today we have a financial system which is largely to his credit; and that everything, so far as I know and can say, has been going along fairly well ever since.

"You remember we had a difficulty here about our fire system. The Mayor and Council was criticised right and left by the members of the old volunteers for not doing as they wanted us to about the fire demands. Today these volunteers who opposed the paid department acknowledge that it is a success, that it is economical, and it is a positive protection to the people. And the Citizens union party one year ago last March—their whole stock in trade was, and they went about this borough and told the voters that under the present administration, with this new fire department being forced on you, your taxes were bound to go up, and Swackhamer, in his speech at the school house, said that 'our homes were in danger,' that 'we are threatened with trouble,' and made a scarecrow speech to the people there for the purpose of influencing their votes for his own political object. On the other hand, instead of our borough taxes going up, they have come down. In spite of the bank stock of the First National Bank being taken away from our borough, we are still alive, and if the people of this town elect men who will give them open government and not executive sessions, who will place men in power whom they know are straight and all right, there is no good reason why that sort of thing should not continue. Mr. Joy, president of our Board of Education for a long time, has told you about school matters. I just want to say a few words in that regard. After the meeting at Trenton, the hearing before the Legislative committee, I spoke to Mr. Wightman on Somerset street in a very friendly manner. I said, 'You are principal of our school, Mr. Wightman, and it seems to me that it is unwise for you to take any active part in this fight. You are bound to make a lot of enemies.' I said, 'No one questions your right to vote any way you please,' and I said that I thought it would injure him if he took an active part. He said it was good advice, but he met Honeyman, and Honeyman steered him right the other way. (Laughter) And when public sentiment raised up its arm and lifted Mr. Honeyman from the chair which he occupied in that school board, and dropped him back as a private citizen, Mr. Wightman couldn't get around there soon enough to offer his resignation, because he feared something might happen. But I, as Mayor of this borough or private citizen, have never interfered with the school as a school. I haven't even seen this new principal, but they tell me he is a pretty good man.

"There are many things in connection with the whole affair here for the last few years that are simply ridiculous. If there is a man in North Plainfield that dislikes the situation more that I do, I think it would kill him, because I have driven in the streets of this Borough and regret exceedingly that such a feeling exists, because I would rather meet any citizen in a decent, fair way, than to have him turning his head, or me turning my head, or having any feeling at all. And as I say, it is a condition that is absolutely ridiculous, and it has been brought about by a lot of people who are advising men contrary to the truth for purposes, which, perhaps, you know as well as I.

"I just want to say a few words in reference to my opponent. Two years ago last March, Mr. Conroy was the candidate of the Democracy against me. I remember asking him just a question as to what part of the administration of affairs here it was that didn't suit him, and he said, 'Well, you have passed a fire ordinance there that I don't like; it interferes with the poor man building a house, and I don't think it is a good ordinance.' At that time, that appeared to be his whole complaint against the whole administration of affairs. I said, 'Mr. Conroy, if you knew the value of that ordinance, you wouldn't talk the way you do about that; that ordinance was put on the books for the purpose of preventing buildings going up that might injure the people already located here. There is no idea of the Mayor and Council discriminating against any one, but that ordinance is a good one, and if it had been enforced before you built the fire-trap that you have up there, I don't think that would be in town here.' And I ask you, citizens, who hasn't noticed Mr. Conroy's building to take a look at it, and see if that ordinance didn't come a little late. (Laughter)

"Now, Mr. Conroy says in his letter of acceptance, that he dislikes a coward. So do I. There are a lot of them around, and if he is not one of them, I want to say to you, gentlemen, that I will meet Mr. Conroy in joint debate at any hour of the day or night, before any meeting, at any place he will name. He can name his subject, and I will be glad to meet him, and if that is the offer of a coward, why, I must be one. (Applause)

"Now, just in conclusion, Republicans, I want to say to you, if I have every betrayed your trust, do not work that voting machine in my direction. To the Democrats of North Plainfield, I want to say, that any time you have had a representative in the Council, and you well know it, that he has been treated with courtesy; he has been given every opportunity to show his hand; he has been encouraged in offering anything that would be of benefit to this town, and every Democrat of this Borough, so far as I know, regarding the administration of affairs, has been treated just the same as Republicans, and will continue to be up to January the first, when my term expires. (Applause)

"I am very thankful to you, gentlemen, for giving up your time in coming up to lisen to a few of these arguments. I wish that I had more time to go over them carefully, because I have only given you a slight idea of the truth. I would like to make one little reference in connection with the Board of Health matter. It seems to me that it has been pretty well covered by Mr. Reed. I only wish to say that I did, in connection with the Board of Health, what I believed was for your best interests. I believe it has been improved, and we hope to have other departments improved upon as time goes along, where there is occasion for improvement. You know, as well as I, that in making these changes in public affairs, that you can't make them without making enemies. If a man fills these positions and doesn't do it well, why there is nothing else to do with him, but force his resignation, or remove him, or make a change, or do something that you believe would help the condition of affairs, and that is the continual performance in any town.

"I want to go back just a minute and enlighten you a trifle on the question of our new fire house. Do you know of a town in New Jersey, with 6,000 inhabitants, that has one half as nice? Do you know of a town in this State that has a better police headquarters than we have? Do you know of a town of 6,000 inhabitants that is sprinkling its streets under as good a system as we are. There are a lot of things about North Plainfield that our people ought to be proud of, and satisfied with, but there are some people here that would not be satisfied with anything. You couldn't satisfy them if you turned the town over to them, because they would then fight among themselves as to the division of it. (Laughter) And it is that element today that has been out on the streets crying against the present administration of affairs. Every violater of a borough ordinance that has had to appear before the Recorder in the last six years is crying aloud for the scalp of the present administration, that he might get somebody different, who wouldn't interfere with him. You don't know of a wife beater in North Plainfield who is going to vote for me, and if I did I would try to get him to vote for the other fellow. (Laughter) And it is so all along the line. Name any man almost in their whole outfit, and I can tell you the reason for the stand he has taken, and the reason he does not get along well with me. It is simply because I know them best, and if they let me alone they will get along better, (Laughter) because, the result of this election is not going to drive me away. I was stronger before I ever thought of being Mayor, as a thorn in the flesh, and I expect to remain here, and favor men, whom I believe are all right for the positions for which they aspire or are nominated for, and I expect to oppose men whom I believe are not all right, and not fitted for the positions for which they are nominated, and I may have to go outside of my party to do it, and if I do, I will go, but I want to tell you, gentlemen, that some of the times in the past that I have deserted what they said was the Great Old Republican Party, and went over to the Democratic party, for something that I thought was better, that I have failed in getting good results but once, and that one instance was when we went out to help Swackhamer go to the Legislature. (Applause and laughter) Now, we have asked and been forgiven for that, (Laughter) and we are not going to do it again.

"In his speech at the Citizens' union meeting, he said he felt sorry, that his whole heart is in the borough. The thing that he is most sorry for is that he isn't corporation counsel. I am saying that to Mr. Swackhamer, and that is the truth. Swackhamer served three years as a Councilman, representing the Democrats in North Plainfield in our Council. He attended about one meeting in six, and he was the only man I ever had to say to, 'I hope you will attend these meetings and represent the Democracy,' and you ought to give your time. You were elected to the Council, and you ought to attend the meetings.' He made some trifling excuse, and didn't come to the next meeting. I spoke to him several times about different affairs. I spoke to him about the widening of Somerset street. Two or three of our citizens went to him and objected to the widening, and he met me, frightened, and said, 'I don't think it is a good thing, and I don't think we ought to do it.' And I said, 'It is a good thing, and you ought to get in line,' and he said, 'All right, he would.' (Laughter) And I never asked him a question on a public thing in my life that I didn't get the same answer, 'Mr. Mayor, you know what is best, and I will, stand for it, but I can't come to these meetings. There was nothing in it; they don't pay a cent.' In the six years and six months that I have served as Mayor, I haven't missed two meetings. I have given the whole of my time to the benefit of this people, and I am glad to have done so. The people are all right, with a few exceptions. When we get rid of them we will all be all right. (Laughter)

'I am just going to ask the Republicans of North Plainfield, combined with the good element of the Democrats, to walk up to the polls on the 7th of November and confirm my belief, that a man who served the people of this borough faithfully is not going to be paid by slander, (Applause) and if they learn of the conditions which now prevail, and if it is their judgment that there ought to be a change, I wouldn't want to be Mayor of this town, because I would feel that they ought to have some one else. But I do want the support of every man, who is all right himself, and who believes in rewarding service. If they feel that I have given it, I will be glad of their support; and if they feel, on the other hand, that I haven't fulfilled by duty, it is their duty, as citizens, to go and vote for the opposiion, and I hope they will. I thank you for your attention." (Applause, long, loud and continued)

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hillier, Ocean Grove, N. J. BRIG.-GEN. CHARLES KING
AUTHOR OF

THE IRON BRIGADE

OUR NEXT SERIAL.

A story of absorbing interest in which Lincoln, Stanton, Kearney, McClellen, Mead, Grant, and many other Civil War characters figure prominently. A story of that daring band of Wisconsin soldiers known to history as "The Iron Brigade," as well as many other troops of the war.

Of the story the Los Angeles Express says:

"Gen. King's active military career has given him a keen insight into all that pertains to the art of war. This is felt by all who read this stirring soldier story. "The Iron Brigade."

And the New York World says:

"Gen. King has felt the thrill of battle and he knows how to impress it upon his readers. In his new novel, too, he displays the rarer knowledge of how to mingle with the roar of war the whisperings of love. The title of the book belongs to an old band of Wisconsin fighters of rebellion days. The story, therefore, is of soldiers from the General's own State with the addition of a company from Indiana. Romance abounds in the story, but there is history in it as well. A good boy's book and man's book and woman's book, this of "The Iron Brigade!

The opening chapters of this strong story will soon appear in these columns. WATCH FOR THEM.

SILVER SERVICE FOR BATTLESHIP

NOTABLY RICH GIFT EXPRESSING GENEROSITY OF THE STATE'S CITIZENS.

The silver service to be given by the State of New Jersey to the United States battleship named in honor of that commonwealth was designed by Tiffany & Co. and is now being made at their Forest Hill works, Newark. It will cost about $10,000 and promises to be the richest and most substantial esrvice ever furnished to a vessel of the navy. It is not only a fitting expression of the generosity and good will of the people of the State, but also exemplifies the high degree of artistic merit attained by its manufacturer.

The complete set consists of some fifty-seven pieces and contains about 1,500 ounces of sterling silver 925-1,000 fine. The keynote of the design is colonial, symbolizing the colonial period of the State's history.

A superb centrepiece, consisting of a large punch bowl and stand, forms the principal piece of the service. This bowl has a capacity of 5 1-2 gallons, a diameter of 18 1-2 inches and stands 14 1-2 inches high, while the base or stand upon which it rests is 4 inches high, 26 1-2 inches long, with a width of 19 inches. On either side of the bowl are eagle's heads, with laurel wreaths suspended from their beaks. The wreaths also serve as handles. Festoons of flowers are gracefully draped from the neck of the eagles and at regular intervals are caught by bows from which hang anchors. In the semi-circles formed by the festoons of flowers are the great seals of the State of New Jersey and the United States. Other medallions contain reproductions of scenes and periods typical of the early history of the State. Conventional chased leaves and flowers form the ornamentation of the base of the bowl.

Upon either side of the oval base are two female figures, seated, representing "Prosperity" and Liberty," symbolizing the prosperity of the State and liberty-loving characteristics of its people. Surrounding the figures are delicate shells and other suggestions of the sea, while the culmination is reached in the effect of the ocean waves dashing, as it were, against the base of some impregnable fortress, but in reality supportnig the punch bowl. Along the front of the base is an inscription reading, "Presented to the battleship New Jersey by the citizens of the State," with the seal of Annapolis inserted between the words "Battleship" and "New Jersey."

SCRAPPY SUMMIT ON THE WARPATH

RESIDENTS TEAR DOWN RAILROAD BRIDGE ERECTED WITHOUT PERMIT.

Pugnacious Summit finished yesterday the tearing down of the new iron and masonry bridge of the Rahway Valley Railroad Company which spanned Ashwood avenue. The job was done neatly and unostentatiously by a gang of workmen with the assistance of a steam road roller.

The bridge was torn down because the company had put it up without permission and because an injunction could not be secured. Then the city councilmen got together in secret session and agreed to tear down the bridge.

A massive chain was passed around the iron work and secured to the road roller, which was then started at full speed. The bridge tumbled into the street and was gradually pulled over to a vacant lot, where, if the railroad company wants any scrap iron, it can get it. The granite and concrete piers were then knocked apart. The company had no knowledge of the destruction.

Summit has the reputation of dealing in a peremptory manner with corporations. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company undertook ten years ago to do business in Summit without a franchise and erected poles and strung wires. One Sabbath morning Mayor, then Councilman, Wilcox led a body of men about town and all the poles were chopped down. Soon after the telephone company capitulated and accepted the franchise terms offered by the town.

BOYS DAMAGE NEW HOUSE.

Judge Runyon Suspends a Damocles Sword Over Their Heads.

Thomas Harding, Edward Coyle, Goldie Young, John Whitteman, William Whitteman, William Flatley, John Mottley, all boys, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with breaking and damaging parts of a new house being erected for Sidney Perrine at West Seventh and New streets. he charge was made by George Steel, the contractor.

Considerable damage of a costly nature has been done by gangs of young hoodlums about the house. After one visit from the youngsters the chimney was found out of plumb and had to be practically rebuilt.

The prisoners said they didn't do the more serious damage. Most of the breakage, they claimed, was done by a gang of boys from Liberty street.

Judge Runyon suspended an undetermined sentence over them. He told them that if any more damage was done to the house, not matter by what gang, they would be held responsible.

NOTARY'S OVERCHARGE.

For Affidavits They May Ask Legally 12½ Cents.

According to a decision yesterday of Attorney General McCarter, notaries public in New Jersey are entitled to charge but 12½ cents for taking acknowledgments of affidavits instead of the usual fee charged of 25 cents.

This decision was brought about by a Newark man, who wrote to Governor Stokes, relating that a case had come under his notice where a pension agent had charged a woman $5 for acknowledging an affidavit. This will be news to notaries public that Section 3 of the Fees and Costs act, General Statutes, 1905, "the charge for taking an affidavit shall be 12½ cents."

The charge of 12½ cents represents in Federal money the equivalent of the old English shilling—the shilling being the price charged for an acknowledgment under the Colonial fee bill of the Supreme Court. To show the conservatism of New Jersey legal practice, the 12½-cent charge remains in the statute, although no notary public could "make change" if the exact fee were tendered him. It is expected that an effort will be made to fix a fee of 10 cents or 15 cents for notary service by an act of the forthcoming session of the Legislature.

WEDS ADOPTED DAUGHTER.

Minnesota Justice Gets an Opinion Before Officiating.

Minneapolis, Oct. 7.—A man can marry his adopted daughter in Minnesota. This decision was reached by members of the county attorney's force after due and careful deliberation. Acting upon it, Herman Dahm, sixty years old, and Agnes Dahm, his twenty-two-year-old adopted daughter, were made man and wife a few days ago at Dayton by Justice of the Peace Evans.

It was argued that the statute read that no nearer of kin than first cousins can intermarry. Kin is held to mean blood relationship. On the other side, it was cited that the law of adoption made the adopted child "the same in all things as a child born in wedlock."

UPHOLDS NEW ARCANUM RATES.

Caldwell Council in Line—Others Likely to Follow.

The Royal Arcanum Council of Caldwell has adopted the following resolution in support of the recent increase in rates of insurance:

"Resolved, That the offiers and members of this council extend to the Supreme Council an earnest and hearty support in sustaining the new rates as adopted by the annual meeting in Atlantic City and at a subsequent meeing held at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, and the rates so adopted, we believe, will place the Royal Arcanum on a sound business basis, ultimately making the Royal Arcanum the greatest insurance organization in the world.

"It is believed that a readjustment of the present rates was absolutely necessary for the future safety of the Royal Arcanum. Without such changes it would only be a question of a short time before the organization would be in serious financial difficulty, with a possible dismemberment of the order."

It is now believed that other lodges will follow suit, as there has undoubtedly been a change of sentiment in regard to the increase in rates.

Jury Disagreed.

S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, has been for two days engaged in the Hunterdon County Criminal Court assisting Senator Kuhl, of Flemington, in the defense of Hannah G. Smith and William Wolfe, former residents of the vicinity of Plainfield, on a charge of burning Mrs. Smith's house to obtain the insurance. Ex-Judge H. B. Herr is prosecutor of the pleas, and represented the State. Yesterday the jury came in after being out all day and all night, with a disagreement, standing nine for acquittal and three for conviction. It is believed that the State will now enter a nolle prosequi and discharge the defendants. The old court house was filled to overflowing during both days of the trial, as the case had excited great interest throughout the county.

Slap for Machine.

Passaic, Oct. 7—The Republican city convention was held Thursday night, and Mayor David Greenlie was renominated without opposition. The feature of the convention was the fact that the Passaic Republicans, after having had it written in their platform, refused to fndorse the county nominees of the county convention. At that convention, they declared, the Citizens' movement of Passaic was insulted and ignored, and Passaic was allowed but one candidate, though she pleaded for two. The Democrats, in nominating their ticket, gave Passaic two men, and thus took advantage of the disaffection. The Republicans' refusal to indorse the county nominees came as a great blow to the county machine.

The Misses Jeannette Neal, Cora Gano and Bertha Hoagland were elected members of the Band.

UNION EXAMINERS MEET.

Test Mental Abilities of Young Women to Qualify as Teachers.

The Union County Board of Examiners, for granting certificates to young women to teach in the public schools of the county, outside of Elizabeth, began yesterday morning a two days session, in the Board of Freeholders' rooms in the new courthouse at Elizabeth. The examiners are Professor William J. Shearer, of Elizabeth; Dr. Savitz, of Westfield, and Dr. Broome, of Rahway. The board expects about thirty-five applicants to appear before it.

Half a dozen young women were on hand when yesterday morning's session began. Professor Shearer left his colleagues yesterday morning for some hours, in order to conduct an examination at the Battin High School, Elizabeth, of female applicants in Elizabeth for teachers' tertificates. The greater part of the work, however, will be done today. The board will also take up conjointly on these two days the preliminary examination of young law students, who desire to be admitted to the bar.

NINTH INNING'S THRILLS

Commuters Pull Game Out of the Fire at the Last Moment.

SOME UPHILL DOINGS

Bunched Three-Sacker and Single Tie-up the Tallies With Two Down—MacLaughlin Hammered.

Darkness and a scorching finish saved that Commute band from another wallop at the Oval Saturday afternoon. Stung to frenzy by an impending bump at odds of 8 to 6, the Driscollites tore off a real old-fashioned slugging rally and tied things up at 8 to 8. Thick and unctuous gloom shrouded the landscape at this juncture, and the ump made our honor safe by calling the game. We would once have been dissatisfied with anything short of a complete massacre of the enemy, but discipline and some few consecutive bumps made us thankful to escape from the ballyard with anything short of a full sized thumping at the hands of the champion Holyokes, premier bunch of Connecticut.

The thrilling tail end happenings were needed to make the beauty and chivalry sit up and take notice. Up to the climax the weather and the game were both full of chills for the faithful. The breezelets kept to b. and c. shivering, and things calculated to joggle their red corpuscles were mostly lacking.

"Warry" McLaughlin flung for the Commuters. What the Holyoke troupe did to Warry's offerings made a real pleasant showing for the sporting gents who bet on the Connecticut champeens. Warry always seems to play in hard luck when he pitches before his home crowd, and the hoodoo worked overtime on Saturday. He was thumped twelve times, issued three free tickets, made two errors and played a start part in a mixup over an infield fly. Every man on the Holyoke list except Dolan hammered the ball to safe territory, one of them, Bannon, doing it no less than four times. Mr. Bannon slugged 1,000 per cent. drawing a base on balls at his first appearance in a rustled all over his section of the lot and scooped things in some parts of the surrounding principalities. He five-time go at the willow. With such things going on, pushed along by foozles and dilapidated headwork, nobody had any reason to gasp with amazement when we hit that paprika-filled ninth with our hopes rattling dismally in the wind.

Lou Wiltse gambolled around first for the Yank band. Manager Frysinger came to town with a first sacker missing, and Lou, being a real sport, consented to go in and hustle for Connecticut League rates. Connecticut players are not quoted on the same board with Tri-State outlaws, but Lou made so much money in Pennsylvania that he doesn't care whether he puts any more in his jeans this year or not. Lou showed how far he was out of his class right away and kept it up without regard for the feelings of his mates. He wrenched off two hits, and did other things of starry character, thereby shedding much honor on Plainfield as a home town for real ball players. For an athlete who has gone into winter quarters Lou is real perky and earnest. The beauty and chivalry gave him a lot of hands.

We began the scoring industry in the beginning of things. Kiernan walked, went to second on Wally Cosgrave's sacrifice and advanced to third on Connolly's force of Kid Dalton. Connolly stole second. Pete Cregan slammed a vicious turf ripper over first, and Lou, in a desperate attempt to check it screwed the globule out into the desert and Pete went all the way to third. Leonard flied to center.

Several discouraging things happened after that, and in the fifth we fell into a deep, dark hole. With one down, Deal singled to center and Bannon followed with a Texas leaguer to right. Both moved up an extra base on Dan Connolly's crazy chuck into the diamond. Hartley sauntered. Lou banged to second and made his base on Dalton's ineffectual fling to the plate, Deal scoring. Shincel singled to left, scoring Bannon and Hartley, and Lou made a great steal home on Jack O'Neil's chuck to second to catch Shincel. Remeter whiffed and Mauch fouled to first.

We got those back right away. O'Neill toddled and Warry pushed him on with a hit to center. They moved up on Hartley's foozle of Kiernan's grounder, and scored on Wally's hit to center. Pete went to third on the rap and registered on a wild throw from second, Wally hitting third. Dalton drew a pass and stole second. Connolly whiffed and Cossy died at the plate in a vain attempt to score on Cregan's rap to Wiltse. Bad Bill rippled in on a wild throw to third, and Cregan was nabbed at

ELKS SECOND OUTING A GREAT SUCCESS

A BASEBALL GAME WITH OVER 200 RUNS A FEATURE.

From 11 o'clock Saturday morning until sundown Saturday afternoon, 150 members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., enjoyed themselves on the grounds of the Watchung Spring Water Company on Mountain avenue, it being the occasion of their second annual outing and clambake. It wasa successful event in every way and one of the pleasantest the organization has yet conducted.

During the early part of the affair the attendants played baseball and other games, all of which afforded plenty of amusement. The baseball game was a hummer, something like 100 runs beinb made by each side. The bake was served at 2:30 by Caterer Bender, of Elizabeth, and was gotten up in his best style. Former Judge William A. Coddington acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by Colonel Beasley, a visitor from Raleigh, N. C.; former Mayor Fisk, Mayor James F. Buckle and former Mayor Olin L. Jenkins.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of George O. Stevens, chairman; Frank Boose and Marcus Hoyt.

VETERAN FIREMEN PLAN A YEAR AHEAD

ELIZABETH ASSOCIATION STARTS PREPARATIONS FOR PARADE IN OCT. 1905

The Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association of Elizabeth intends to have a monster parade in that city next October of volunteer fire fighters and to have at least thirty-five to forty companies in line. The association has already begun preparing for the demonstration, and Saturday night the committee of arrangements appointed by it met at the association rooms and organized by the election of former Fire Chief Nathaniel H. Astfalk as chairman and Neil McLeod, Jr., as secretary and treasurer. The other members of the committee are County Clerk James C. Calvert, Colonel Dennis F. Collins, former Freeholder Jacob Brucklacher, Freeholder Charles S. Chandler, former Chief William T. Cox, now president of Elizabeth's Board of Fire Commissioners; former Freeholder Joseph McCandles, former Freeholder William H. Hulskamper, now superintendent of the new Union County Court House; Charles Walker and Augustus W. Schwartz.

Subscription books will be issued and each member of the committee will have one to collect funds to defray the cost of the parade. The object in beginning work a year in advance is to have ample time to attend to every detail of the demonstration and also to collect what money will be required to run it off successfully. A number of prizes will be awarded in connection with the affair. The committe will hold weekly meetings.

MR. SWACKHAMER LOST.

Plaintiff in Landlord and Tenant Case Mishandles Counsel's Name.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. P. Withrow's suit against Isaac C. Vannatta for possession of premises on East Seventh street, near Richmond, was decided for the plaintiff Saturday by a jury in Justice Hand's court. The suit arose out of the subletting of the house. Vannatta claimed a yearly lease, which would have protected his tenant, and Mrs. Withrow contended the lease was a monthly one. She proved her case to the satisfaction of the jury. A warrant of removal will be issued tomorrow.

Mrs. Withrow is over seventy years old. She caused considerable amusement in court by calling the former Assemblyman from Somerset county, who was counsel for the defendant, Mr. Slackhamer whenever she referred to him. J. P. Owens was counsel for the plaintiff.

Sixty Days for Tired Man.

Patrick Dunham was found in a hallway by Detective McCarthy yesterday afternoon, very much crumpled and weak in his legs. Patrick told Judge Runyon this morning that he had only been tired and not drunk, but the magistrate was cynical and made ot sixty days straight.

CONVENTION WOKE UP

Somerset County Republicans Develope Enthusiasm at Afternoon Session.

SPEECH BY MR. REED

North Plainfield Leader Evokes Applause by Seconding Frelinghuysen's Nomination.

In contrast with the morning gathering the afternoon session of the Somerset County Republican Convention at Somerville on Saturday was like the difference between chilly weather and torrid summer. The assemblage was cold and frosty in the morning, and the spirit of the assemblage seemed very torpid. A remarkable change was manifested almost as soon as the body reconvened, and very early in the proceedings the convention became as enthusiastic and spirited as the old warhorse in the ranks could have desired. Candidates and speakers were wildly cheered, and the convention broke up in a blaze of militant Republicanism.

One of the features of the transformed assemblage was a speech by Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, seconding the nomination of Col. Frelinghuysen for Senator. Three years ago, when Col. Frelinghuysen was nominated first, Mr. Reed led the North Plainfield revolt against the ticket, and his speech was significant of the changed attitude of the borough organization toward the county machine. The full meaning of his appearance on the floor was recognized by a loud and sustained burst of applause, and the pledges of support that formed the keynote of his speech were as vigorously acclaimed.

Mr. Reed reviewed the conditions that led up to the revolt against the nominee three years ago, repeating North Plainfield's declaration that she has been, and is yet, unfairly treated by the other end of the county. The borough paid large sums into the county treasury, he said, and its requests for consideration, when regarded at all, were granted grudgingly. That one-half of the Republican voters of North Plainfield had voted against the ticket time and time again was proof positive to thinking men that some real grievance was in existence; it stood to reason that no one man, no two or three men, could turn so large a proportion of lifelong Republicans from their party to serve any personal ends. Mistakes probably had been made on both sides, but he hoped the county at large had begun to see the situation in its true light, and better conditions might be brought about.

This year, he said, every man, Democrat as well as Republican, should support the ticket. Mr. Reed pledge his own earnest efforts and those of all his friends in North Plainfield to elect the ticket, and expressed his pleasure in seconding the nomination of Col. Frelinghuysen.

"We ask nothing from the candidates of this convention. We have no axes to grind. We want no pledges, except that they shall honestly and faithfully represent all of the people. And we hope that no Republican will be so small as to refuse to support the ticket simply because we are for it."

Brief speeches were made by Col. Frelinghuysen and Irving Hoagland, who was renominated for the Assembly, and the delegates accorded them a tumultuous reception. Prosecutor Speer, of Hudson county, kept the enthusiasm at fever heat with a forceful party speech.

The platform of the convention was adopted by acclamation, without comment. Besides endorsing the administrations of Gov. Stokes and President Roosevelt, and commending the record of Assemblyman Hoagland, it says the following of the primary law, limited franchis and equality of taxation:

"We favor plan and efficient laws which shall control individuals and corporations in the exercise of public privileges and restrain them from all unfair encroachments, which shall also require them to pay a just compensation for such favors as they enjoy and to bear an equal proportion of the public expense. And to this end we favor such a limitation of time upon all public franchises, with such a readjustment of terms upon every renewal as shall protect the rights of the people and also the parties concerned.

"We favor the speedy enactment of laws which shall insure an equality of the burden of taxation upon property of every class by whomsoever owned. We approve of the theory of the law which seeks to purify the primaries, but as we realize that no such law is perfect, we favor any such changes in the same as the best sentiment of our party in the State may concur in and will tend to make it acceptable to all honest voters."

FAVORS HOSPITAL TAX

Former Mayor Fisk Believes People Should be Allowed to Vote on the Proposition

TELLS WHAT IT MEANS

Institution Deserves Support of General Public, He Says—Not Effective Immediately.

It is generally expected that the Common Council at its meeting tonight will consider the request that the new tax law be submitted to the people for adoption here. In order to allow the proposition to come before the voters at the November election, action will necessarily have to be taken tonight. It is known that some of the members of the councilmanic body are opposed to the plan and an effort will be made to defeat it.

One objection is that the city is not officially represented on the Board of Governors of the institution. In answer to this some of the friends of the measure point out that the same is true of other hospitals in the State receiving the benefit of the new law. These friends say, however, that in all probability the board would not oppose some way of having the municipality represented if the Council so desires.

In speaking with a representative for The Daily Press today, former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk, a member of the board and until recently its president, said: "All we ask is that the people be given an opportunity to say whether they desire to help the institution. The proposition is a businesslike one and I feel confident that it would be endorsed at the polls. As is well known, the law passed by the last Legislature permits a tax of three mills on the dollar for the benefit of hospitals. Now, there is a condition attached. That is, there is no power vested in the government of a city to adopt the law. A referendum is provided for, and so the people who must pay the tax are allowed the right to vote whether they desire to do so."

"There is a mistaken impression," continued Mr. Fisk, "and it is in the idea that it will become effective at once, if the people vote favorably at the coming election. The truth is the hospital will not get one penny this way until next year. No, not even until after the taxes for 1906 are all in, which means not until December 22, 1906. I think the proposition is a fair one. As a matter of fact, there is nothing more deserving of being supported by the whole people as a hospital, for it is run entirely for their benefit.

"All we ask, I say again," declared Mr. Fisk, "is that the Common Council put it up to the people. All that needs to be done is for the Council tonight to pass a resolution ordering the city clerk to prepare to have the matter voted upon in November. Isn't that fair?"

MRS. S. J. BROWER DEAD.

Eighty-Year-Old Resident Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Sarah Jane Brower, aged eighty years, widow of the late William H. Brower, the florist, died this morning, following a short illness. Death was due to heart trouble and general debility. Mrs. Brower lived at Scotch Plains for many years before removing to this city. She was a member of the Congregational church and always attended the services.

She is survived by three sons, John L. Brower, William I. Brower and Lorenzo D. Brower. The funeral services will be held from the home of Lorenzo D. Brower, 123 East Fifth street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

RUNAWAY BOY.

Twelve-Year-Old Found in South Plainfield; Police Have Him.

Stephen Steengraafe, of South Plainfield, brought a tear-stained small boy into police headquarters last night. He found him crying near his home.

The boy described himself as Harvey Benner, twelve years old, of Asbury Park. He said he ran away from home Saturday morning to escape life with a stepmother. He said his father died a month ago. Chief Kiely has notified the Asbury Park police and will send the boy back home if his story is true. Harvey says he reached this section by jumping freight trains.

A GRAFTED CANDIDATE

Dunellen's Republican Nominee For Mayor Wore 3,000 Pieces of Cuticle.

FRIENDS TO HIS AID

Skin Removed from His Body in Westfield Wreck but a New Coat for Flesh Was Given by Lodge Brethren.

If Wilson J. Frederick, the Republican candidate for Mayor, is elected this fall Dunellen will have the distinction of having a Mayor who, in point of cuticle, is a human composite. His skin is made up of the graftings from the skins of more than 100 fellow-Masons and as many fellow-employes of the United States Express Company. Mr. Frederick is at present a Councilman, but will resign that office to make the campaign for Mayor.

Mr. Frederick was hurt in the Westfield wreck a few years ago, when a Jersey Central express train from New York for Philadelphia ran into the rear of the Easton local, killing twenty-one and injuring more that fifty people. Frederick was pinned in the wreckage and was being roasted alive when rescued. After they had extricated the man who was undergoing such torture, he was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital and placed in a private room on an air bed. Two trained nurses were engaged to assist in the fight for life.

It seemed hopeless, for the scalds and burns had practically cooked the left side of the face, the left arm, both ears and both legs from the groin to the shoetops. When the sloughing ceased Frederick was practically denuded of skin on one arm, one side of the face and both legs. The idea of skin grafting seemed preposterous, but Dr. Pittis decided to try it, and was successful with one of the greatest feats of surgery of that kind ever performed in New Jersey.

He consulted first with Louis I Van Alstyne, master of Anchor Lodge of Masons, to which both he and Frederick belong. The doctor told the master that the only chance of life for his patient lay in obtaining skin in large quantities. Mr. Van Alstyne brought the question up before Anchor Lodge, of Plainfield, and the members volunteered to contribute portions of their skin. The members of Jerusalem Lodge, of Plainfield, followed the lead of Anchor Lodge. Many volunteers were rejected because of infirmities. So eager were those disqualified that they begged the surgeon to at least let them contribute one piece to the success of the operation. But he took no chances.

For weeks the work of grafting progressed. Then a call was sent to the employes of the United States Express Company, of which Frederick is chief clerk in the office at 49 Broadway, New York. The employes in New York, Philadelphia, and all along the line between these two cities, willingly gave portions of their skin, until over 3,000 pieces had been grafted. The operation was a very slow one, and it was months before Mr. Frederick was able to leave the hospital and come to his home in this place. Then it was months more before he was strong enough to walk about and finally get back to business.

He had the sympathy of everyone here, and as soon as he was able to get around his townspeople showed their esteem by electing him a borough Councilman.

Now the Republicans want to bestow still greater honors upon him and give him the highest office in their gift. His nomination has given rise to some political problems. He is opposed by William Wyckoff, Democrat, the present Mayor, who has been nominated at the convention, but who filed no petition prior to the primaries. The question has now been raised as to whether, in the event of his election, Mayor Wyckoff can legally serve. He was at Atlantic City at the time for the filing of the petitions. Before going there he had decided that he did not want the office again and requested that someone else be named.

The Republicans have nominated by petition a candidate for Councilman to succeed M. Frederick, although Mr. Frederick has not yet resigned and there is no vacancy to fill. Now, if Frederick is not elected and his successor is elected, there will be a muddle which the courts may have to be called upon to straighten out.

The fight promises to be a lively one. Mayor Wyckoff does not intend to withdraw because of the alleged irregularity. He declares that there is nothing in his administration that the opposition can attack, and that he means to fight to win. On the other hand, he declares that Mr. Frederick is a very estimable man, and that if the borough really wants a Republican Mayor there is no one he would rather have succeed himself that Mr. Frederick.

CERTAIN ROADS ONLY FOR AUTOMOBILISTS

FARMERS PLAN TO HAVE LAW ENACTED BY LEGISLATURE.

According to no less an authority than Colonel Edwards, of Newark, the well known trotting expert, a movement is on foot among the farmers of upper Somerset county to go still further in the crusade against automobilists than what was planned at the meeting in North Branch a short time ago. It is their intention, so it is said, to seek the assistance of other counties in having a bill introduced into the Legislature giving the Boards of Freeholders the privilege of prohibiting the running of machines on certain roads. As the feeling against reckless chauffeurs is very high in many parts of the State, the plan may undoubtedly reach a very aggressive stage if it does not untimately prove successful. In the latter even it would prove a severe blow to the sport.

It was in Somerset county that the anti-automobile society was formed a few weeks ago, and the members were asked to pledge themselves to vote at the next election only for candidates who did not own machines.

NEGROES ARE AFTER CANDIDATE LAWRENCE

WANT PROMISE TO PUT COLORED MEN ON JURIES.

At a meeting of the Colored Republican County Committee, held at the Republican headquarters in the Dix building, Elizabeth, Friday night, Chairman C. R. H. Hawkins appointed a committee of three, consisting of Henry Vandeveer, Joseph Bingham and W. H. Thomas, to wait upon the Republican candidate for sheriff, Dr. W. H. Lawrence, of Summit, to obtain from his some assurance that he would draw colored citizens as well as white for jury duty.

Chairman Hawkins said in his instructions to the committee that the negroes of this county paid taxes on $250,000 of real estate, and that under those circumstances the negro deserves some recognition. He believed that at least one or more negroes should be drawn on each jury panel.

When the committee shall report arrangements will be made for holding a ratification meeting.

TIMES GANG UGLY.

Forty-days' Sentence Convinces Kearns That City is Topsy-Turvey.

Patrick Kearns, dean of the street cleaning force and a veteran in the drunk corps, faced Judge Runyon in the city court this morning on the old charge. Officer Overbaugh found Patrick steering a very uncertain course along the street Saturday night. When the cop told Patrick to go home he said naughty and saucy things.

Patrick has been more or less a privileged characted in the city court, and he faced the magistrate with a cheerful and beguiling smile. The beguilement fizzled and the smile froze when the judge spoke on the charge.

"I think it's time you were taken care of, Pat," said the magistrate coldly; "forty days."

Patrick's eyes bulged and his mouth gaped.

"My goodness, Judge," he gasped, "phwat are ye thinkin' of? Have ye fergot election's comin'?"

"Go on back," said the magistrate, relentlessly, "and Patrick was locked behind the bars of Cell No. 3.

"Phwatever is Plainfield comin' to?" he walled as the door clanged.

Three or four times in the past Patrick has been sentenced to jail but the Judge relented at the last minute. He said this morning that he would let the sentence go into effect this time.

WAYLAID BY ITALIANS

Westfield Lunch Wagon Proprietor All But Killed While Returning Home.

SHOT AND STABBED

His Life Saved by Arrival of Policeman—Five of the Assailants Landed in Jail.

Shot twice and stabbed six times in the neck by a gang of Italians, John Clearwater, proprietor of a lunch wagon at Westfield, is dying at his home in that place. He was attacked by the crowd while on his way home shortly after midnight yesterday morning, and but for the timely arrival of Policeman Canfield would have undoubtedly been killed outright. Five of his assailants were captured and have since been lodged in jail at Elizabeth. A sixth was pursued by a crowd as far as the Watchung Mountains but made his escape.

Clearwater had closed up business after midnight and had considerable money with him. He had to pass through a lonely place and was going along without any thought of danger when he was set upon by the gang. He had a revolver with him but it was loaded only with blank cartridges and the mere shooting failed to frighten the Italians off. They retaliated with bullets, and Clearwater fell when two of them pierced his body. As he dropped to the ground he was prounced upon by the gang and stabbed with stilettos in the face and neck.

Patrolman Canfield was attracted by the shooting and running to the place began firing. He wounded three of the men and the rest took flight but two were arrested later. Canfield marched his prisoners to jail and organized a posse to chase the sixth one. Clearwater was hurried to the office of Dr. Kirsh, where he was given temporary treatment and then taken to his home. In addition to the bullet and stab wounds he was terribly kicked and beaten.

It has been declared that the victim received several threatening Black Hand letters during the past two weeks and that the attack was made by members of this organization. The police, however, scout this theory as the methods of the Italians were not those of the dreaded band. They believe the attack was made purely for the purpose of robbing the victim.

HYMN STUDY TALK.

Rev. Dr. Parsons Makes a Timely Address.

The fifth of the talks on hymnal study was given at Grace M. E. church, last night, by the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, and a congregation that completely filled the edifice listened attentively. It was a service for hymn study and praise, the new hymnal adopted by the church forming the basis for the talks. Dr. Parsons gave an address of twenty minutes' duration telling of the lives of great authors, such as Francis Xavier, John Milton, and James Montgomery, and relating incidents about the hymns of these authors.

Some of the greatest hymns written by them were sung. Miss Carroll was at the organ and she was assisted by Dyckman Winckler on the violin. These services will be continued next Sunday night.

FUNERAL OF OSCAR BOWERS.

Service Over Trolley Victim's Body Attended by Large Gathering.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Oscar Bowers, the youthful victim of the trolley accident at El Mora Wednesday night. They were conducted at his late home on East Third street by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. There were nummerous floral tributes, among them a large set piece from the employes of Hand & Son, for whom the young man was driving when he met his death.

The interment was made in the Methodist cemetery, those who acted as pall bearers being Peter Benford, Fred Fleming, Thomas Burns, John Dunn, John Wierenga and Harry Bush.

His Auto Trip Spoiled.

William H. Pope, the local electrician, went to Rockaway on an automobile trip yesterday and met with an accident that kept him in that town until this morning. He had started on the return trip and had gone two miles when the crank shaft of his machine broke and the journey stopped. He secured a farmer to tow him back, and as there are no trains out of Rockaway on Sunday he had to remain over night.

VALE CHARLIE DENMAN.

N. B.—Ravings of a Plainfield baseball maniac with due recognition to the literary merits of Song Writer and Poet Judge Runyon, also apologies to Jimmie Whitcomb Riley.

Spasm Number 1.

Westfield got sorely walloped, nine to three;
The pennant is Plainfield's, hully gee.
Sport-?() Denman has crawled in a big hole,
Plainfield fans he ne'er again will cajole.

Effort Number 2.

"I run baseball for sport's sake,"
Said Denman one day—it was a mistake.
But before the season ended this big sport called quits,
And buncoed Plainfield out of a game, for just a few bits.

Inspiration Number 3.

Bitterly stung by defeat, almost dead with morose,
Over losing the flag, it was a bad dose,
This "sport for sport's sake" man is weeping and wailing,
It is sad, but this is his big failing.

Sonnet No. 4 (pathetic).

Death's rattle was painful, with one gasp he roared
"I'm insulted, people in Westfield can't stand it any more."
To get even and save a few nickels for next year
I'll call off the game, if it does look queer."

Psalm No. 4.

All honor to Daab and his warriors so true,
Who flopped it into Westfield, through and through.
No more will Denman crow about his ball team,
Or "Sport for sport's sake," or "Insulted I've been."

Breakaway Period No. 5.

Then hurrah, hurrah, we're out of the dumps,
Denman and Westfield got their just bumps,
Charlie laid down and played like the little guy
That rode Humpty Dumpty in years gone by.

In Conclusion (with gentle regards for the feelings of the readers).

Tell me not in mournful numbers
Life is but an empty vision, yet so far,
For the dream of little Charlie kept on whizzing,
Until it busted like a bubble in the air.

AMUSEMENTS.

"For His Brother's Crime," the new sensational melodrama from the pen of Charles E. Blaney, which is booked for an appearance at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, is in many respects the best offering of its kind that this talented playwright has ever turned out. It stands out in bold relief from the ordinary melodrama in that the situations and climaxes are all genuine. For instance, in the second act there occurs a great sword combat, one man against great odds. In this conflict there is no make believe about it. Robert Galliard, who plays the role of Victor Sterling, actually parleys with and by main strength beats down his adversaries. Each man does his best to defeat the hero. "Let's make this fight look like something," said Mr. Galliard, when the piece was in rehearsal, "come at me like you mean business."

"The Village Parson" will be strongly in evidence during the coming engagement at the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night. It is a drama constructed on possibilities, these being linked with the fact that each part seems to have been written for the artist who is engaged to play it, so carefully has the company been selected. The play is considered one of the most powerful and interesting of the present day. It may be second only to that beautiful drama, "Human Hearts," but general belief has been expressed that it should be placed first. The interest gradually increases as the play proceeds, and there is not a flagging moment or a weak character. "The Village Parson" requires an elaborate production, and in this, the management has been strongly cognizant to provide the entire scenery for each act.

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company are nearing the end of their special engagement in "Leah Kleschna" at the Manhattan theatre. On Saturday, October 14, they will give their final metropolitan performance of this memorably successful drama. It is the most interesting and best acted play in New York, and is just as popular now as it was during its fivee months' run last season. The role of Leah entrenches Mrs. Fiske more firmly than ever in the position of our foremost actress, and the chance to see her and such actors as John Mason, George Arliss, Frederic de Belleville and William B. Mack in this intensely powerful drama should not be missed. Not only those who have not before witnessed "Leah Kleschna," but also many who saw the play last year are included in the audiences that are thronging the Manhattan. Mrs. Fiske plays but one matinee a week—on Saturday. The evening performances are over in ample time for suburban theatregoers to catch their trains.

The performance of "A Message from Mars" in all its details bears the stamp of artistic symmetry. There are no weaknesses to man and stand out as glaring imperfections. It has had a five years' success on both sides of the Atlantic but this is its first season on tour. It will be one of the season's successes here too, if signs do not fail. It is announced to be given at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

Keith's has underlined for the week of October 9th, Hal Davis and Inez McCauley, supported by a capable company in their sensational comedy-drama entitled "Pals;" Merian's dogs, conceded to be among the cleverest of pantomimic canines; Harry LeClair, the burlesque female impersonator, in his humorous travesties on famous actresses; Charles and Florence Gregson, refined song and dance dup; Vera King, with original songs and stories; the Magnleys, daring aerial gymnasts; McGloin & Smith, wooden shoe dancers Cambell & Johnson, sensational trick cyclists; and Ben Johnson, monologuist and imitator. Keith's has opened the fall season with a series of remarkable bills, which have been rewarded with record-breaking attendance. Every week witnesses the presentation of some startling novelty, usually brought from abroad by Mr. Keith's own agents; and these, combined with standard American acts, make what are generally conceded to be the best continuous vaudeville bills in the country. Keith's is "continuous" from 1 to 11 p. m. and there is always something worth seeing on the stage.

IDEAL WEATHER ATTRACTS MANY GOLF ENTHUSIASTS

S. D. LOUNSBURY WINS FIRST POINTS ON COUNTRY CLUB LINKS.

The weather on Saturday was ideal for golf and a large number of enthusiasts visited the Plainfield Country Club throughout the day to enjoy the game. While many did not post their scores, those who did made a most creditable showing in the weekly competition for the golf committee cup. S. D. Lounsbery, with a net score of 76, won the first three points, while Roger F. Murray finished second, with a net score of 78. The remaining point was divided between W. D. Riggs and A. H. Henderson, each returning a net score of 80.

The leading scores for the cup were as follows:

S. D. Lounsbery, 83, 7—76; R. F. Murray, 84, 6—78; W. D. Riggs, 97, 17—80; A. H. Henderson, 99, 19—80; C. B. Morgan, 84, 0—84; George T. Van Boskerck, 93, 9—84.

There was a large field at the Park Golf Club to take part in the weekly competition for the president's and Park Golf Club cups, and the scores were generally low. For the president's cup, handicap event, J. A. McKelvey, Samuel Townsend, Reuben Knox and S. St. John McCutchen won the points, while for the club trophy, scratch event, J. A. McKelvey, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and S. St. John McCutchen were tie for first place, each receiving one point. Reuben Fox finished second, and Samuel Townsend received the remaining point.

The best score for the two trophies were as follows:

J. A. McKelvey, 98, 16—82; Samuel Townsend, 105, 18—87; Reuben Knox, 104, 13—91; S. St. John McCutchen, 98, 7—91; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 98, 5—93; J. B. Betts, 118, 23—95; Alexander Gilbert, 107, 12—95; J. C. Peck, 127, 30—97; J. L. Watson, 115, 16—99; Nelson A. Miller, 111, 10—101.

ANTI-AUTOMOBILISTS RIDE IN BUBBLE WAGON

TRIO OF BRANCHBURGERS TAKEN FOR A SPIN FORMER SENATOR REED.

During the noon recess of the Somerset county Republican convention in Somerville Saturday former Senator Charles A. Reed took three members of the delegation from Branchburg, where the anti-automobile feeling is running very high, for a spin in his touring car. None of the Branchburgers had ever ridden in a devil wagon before, and all of them were firmly set against them; one of them took a prominent part in the recent public meeting against automobilists held in Branchburg. They were delighted with the experience, and said so. Mr. Reed chowed them how easily the machine could be controlled, and on a straight bit of roadway, where, he pointed out, no harm could be done by it, he gave them a taste of fast going.

The Branchburgers said they learned a lot about automobiles they hadn't known before, and acknowledged that they could be handled right by careful drivers. But they wouldn't say that the ride would cause them to modify their position. They had a fine time, they said, and enjoyed the going, but their stand was against reckless automobilists, and they couldn't see that they ought to let up on the speeders who infested Branchburg roads because machines could be run carefully if drivers wanted to go that way.

"No matter what my attitude toward automobiles is, that ride was certainly a great experience," said one of the trio frankly. "It was one of the greatest times I've ever enjoyed. Gosh! how we did go! It was great!"

The Branchburger talked so enthusiastically about the ride that it wouldn't be surprising if he spread a little pro-bubble argument in his township as a result of the educational trip, despite his protestations of steadfastness to the anti attitude.

Arrested on Husband's Charge.

Washington Emery, of Irvington, had his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Belle Emery, and David Taylor, a hotel keeper at Lincoln, arrested Saturday on a criminal charge. Constable Pierce arrested them and they were held in $1,000 bail each by Justice Sedam, of New Brunswick. Colonel Boice became their bondsman. Some time ago Mr. Emery sued and got judgment in the Union county courts against Taylor for $3,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. Emery is said to have settled this suit for $2,200, although Taylor says he paid but $200. At that time Mrs. Emery returned to her home, but since then her husband says she and her daughters have gone to the Taylor hotel to live.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Lou" Wiltse showed on Saturday that he can play first base as well as the next one. He worked hard for a victory.

"Phil." Smith was to have pitched for East Millstone against Hopewell on Saturday, but could not make connections.

"Lou" Wiltse will pitch for the All-Plainfield team on Saturday against the Daabsters and "Phil." Smith will pitch for the champions.

Manager Joss Frysinger, of the Holyokes, and his team spent Saturday and part of Sunday at the Hotel Kensington, leaving here at noon for Hoboken.

The cool weather on Saturday was responsible for many misplays by the Daabsters, as well as the other team. The players could not seem to warm up to the game.

The small attendance on Saturday was largely due to the annual clambake of the local lodge of Elks. A majority of those at the outing are regular patrons of the game.

"Warry MacLaughlin was given quite an ovation by his many friends. It was to be expected that the Holyokes would hit him freely as they have faced him many times this season.

A large number of local fans are planning to see the second post-season game between the Giants and the Athletics at the Polo Grounds tomorrow. They will leave on the 9:59 train in the morning.

Dolan, who pitched for Holyoke on Saturday, was here early in the season with the Manhattans, who were badly beaten. He showed remarkable improvement, allowing the Daabsters but nine hits.

Those who will want a seat at Saturday's game will have to go early. There promises to be the largest crowd of the season at the Oval. A concert together with vocal selections will be extra attractions.

An excellent picture of "Christy" Mathewson appeared in Saturday's Evening Mail. An article accompanying it describes him as a pitcher in a class by himself. He will pitch for the Giants today in the first of the post-season series games at Philadelphia.

Manager Drysinger, of the Holyokes, has signed to manage the Lancaster, Tri-State League Club, next season, and expects to take a majority of his present team to the Pennsylvania town. His home is at Chester, Pa., and during the winter devotes his time to newspaper work on his father's paper in that town. He is one of the most popular managers in the business.

ALIS III. WINS ANOTHER.

Defeats Carlton A. C. 20 to 0, Losers Playing with Ten Men.

Playing with only ten men, the Carleton A. C., of this city, was defeated by the Alis III. on Hope Common Saturday afternoon. The score was 20 to 0. The Alis team played with considerable snap during the game.

All the touchdowns were made by long end runs. Captain Percy Phillips at quarter back is handling his team with excellent judgment and always plays his men to the best advantage. Eckert at right tackle, Ralph Taylor at full, and Herbert Douglass at left half back, are all proving excellent ground gainers. Jerry Manning, on right end, scored two of the three touchdowns by his good running. One touchback was made by Alis III. in the second half. The team is steadily rounding into snappy style of play.

On November 11 they are scheduled to meet the Atlas A. C., of Brooklyn, at Prospect Park.

Family at Dinner—House Robbed.

The home of William C. Tucker, in Winthrop place, Englewood, was entered early last evening by two "porch climbers," who took jewelry and silverware valued at about $3,000. The Tucker family were at dinner when a neighbor rang their door bell and told them he had just seen two men jump off the roof of the veranda carrying a heavy bag. Mr. Tucker ran upstairs and found the second floor had been ransacked. Other silverware than that taken had been packed up, but had been left on the floor, some noise apparently frightening the men away.

Best Eastern League Champions.

The Providence team, winners of the Eastern League pennant, went to Elizabethport yesterday and was shut out by the Elizabeth Stars. The only run of the game was made by E. Stalling, second base of the Stars, who knocked out a home run in the second inning, sending the ball far over left field fence. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Eliz. Stars	1	2	2

VOTE TO FIGHT THE NEW ARCANUM RATES

REPRESENTATIVES OF 25 COUNCILS RESOLVE TO CARRY ON THE CONTEST

Representatives of twenty-five New Jersey councils of the Royal Arcanum determined by an emphatic vote, in Newark Saturday night, to continue the fight against the new rates and contribute with money and other means to the rebellious movement. There were present representatives from councils that have hitherto held aloof from the controversy between the advocates of the new and old rates. David T. Howell, of New York, presided.

An invitation had been sent to Grand Regent James Rodgers, of New Jersey, to be present, with assurance that he would be accorded a respectful hearing. But Mr. Rodgers neither attended nor sent an acknowledgment of the invitation.

After several hours of discussion it was ascertained that the councils represented wish to make the fight strictly on lines that will not involve the wellbeing of the Royal Arcanum in any other feature.

It was said that in Massachusetts an application for an injunction had been made to determine whether or not the Supreme Council has any right to violate its contract obligation with the members by the enforcement of the new rate schedule. Upon the result of this litigation, the protesting members will abide.

The members all agreed that to prevent future misunderstandings all members shall preserve their affiliation with their respective councils until the pending litigation is ended.

Announcement was made of a movement on foot to raise a fund of $50,000 to cover legal expenses necessary throughout the country. Each member is expected to pay 50 cents toward this fund, although no regular assessment plan was decided on. A special committee, the treasurer of which is James A. Gallagher, of Weehawken, was appointed to look after the New Jersey finances. It was also decided that in order that there may be no misunderstanding, pending what litigation there may be, members should preserve their membership in the order, paying the new rates under protest if necessary.

ELIZABETH WOMAN DIVORCED.

Mrs. Grace May Levi, Nee Bonnell, Receives Absolute Decree.

Mrs. Grace May Levi, of Elizabeth, has just been granted a decree of absolute divorce by Chancellor Magie in the Court of Chancery at Trenton, from her husband, Maurice Levi, a New York lawyer. Mrs. Levi before her marriage was Miss Grace Bonnell, a member of an old and prominent family of Elizabth. She is now twenty-seven and her husband is twenty-nine years old.

The couple were married six years ago and lived in New York City for five months after their wedding. Then they removed to Elizabeth, where they lived together until February 6, 1905, when Mr. Levi, it is said, left his wife and again took up his residence in New York City. The divorce proceedings were instituted March 2, 1905, by former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, counsel for Mrs. Levi. The decree was signed by Chancellor Magie September 28 on statutory grounds, but the plaintiff did not receive the papers until a few days ago. The couple have no children. Miss Bonnell before her marriage was quite prominent in social circles at Elizabeth.

A New Department.

We beg to announce to the public that we have opened a department for the renovating and making over of Hair Mattresses. We are now prepared to do all kinds of work in this line and at much lower prices than you been accustomed to paying. All work entrusted to us will be done in a first-class manner and under absolutely sanitary conditions. Owing to the unreliability of most people who do this class of work in town, many have refrained from having their work done here, choosing rather to send it away to be done or discarding the mattress altogether, to such we simply have this to say: that the same method of "square dealing" which has built up this great business of ours, will be employed in this new department. The manager of our Bedding Department will gladly give you all desired information.

M'LAUGHLIN HAMMERED

the sack after an abortive spurt to do the same thing.

In the seventh the Nutmeg athletes knocked all the joy this state of affair brought about out of us. Bannon plunked one to left center, and Hartley chased him along with a clean single to center. Lou dumped a wriggler in front of the plate, and everybody moved up one. Shincel popped to Dave. Dave trapped the ball like a real Foxy Grandpa, but the trio on the sacks grinned roguishly and held to the canvas. Remeter stabbed a hot one to Kiernan and Bannon scored on the out. Mauch hit to center and Hartley and Lou scored. Dolan fanned.

Nix for us next trip, and one more for the enemy. Hoffman rapped to deep right and made sack two on Dan Connolly's miscalculation of angles and distance. Deal was an easy out, Warry to Dave, but Bannon, the demon batsman, whacked to right and Hoffman came in from third. Hartley shot a serpentine roller between Warry and Dave, and the springy chieftain made a spectacular out by diving fee first for the bog with the lather clutched to his manly bosom. Lou smashed his stick against a swift shoot and sent a punky one to first.

Gloom in the atmosphere and the Commute breasts was thick and growing thicker when we hit that once before mentioned ninth. Driscoll was esy for Lou, and interior gloom commenced to coagulate. O'Neill beat out in infield smash and a faint glimmer of light flickered in the innards. Tuck Turner was ordered in for a pinch biff, but Warry, studiously avoiding the boss' eye, slipped up to the plate for his swat. Warry's confidence in himself was jarred by a strike out, and hope grew so faint it lay down to die. Whereupon P. Kiernan, his happy smile buried in a fierce and determined expression, sized up one of Mr. Dolan's pet drops despite the shades of night and landed on it with a mighty heave. The leather thing flew so far into center that the crowd lost sight of it, and Pete had all the time he needed to romp to third while Jack ambled home. Wally Cosgrave, in the breach, developed cat eyes and banged cleanly to right for two sacks. G. X., which his Morse code for "great excitment," prevailed as Pete, his bright smile flashing, hit the rubber with the tie-up tally.

Bad Bill Dalton, anxious to show Happy that three-bag welts on the edge of nightfall were easy for youngsters, broke his neck to slice up the circumambient. Petulant over his cruel fate, Bill slung the undented will aside with a naughty word and no regard for direction. The stick slapped the ump on the wrist and put a lump on it. Merity's manly form quivered with agony, but his war-worn soul lightened when the Bad 'Un cast his arms about his shoulders and told him in heartbroken accents how sorry he was.

The ump called the game, forgave Willie, and went bravely to meet his fate at the hospital. They assayed for broken bones at the agony shop, but the bump only panned out a bruise. Jack was sent away with arnica on his wrist and sweet thoughts in his mind. He said he wanted to be slapped on the wrist every time he was in the student nurse district.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Selection from the Books Added to the Public Library During the Summer.

Part 2.

(Part 3 will appear next week.)

Javal, Emile.—Blind man's world; advice to people who have recently lost their sight.

"An important work which should be in the hands of those who have the comfort and well being of the blind intrusted to them." Lancet.

Jernigan, T. R.—China in law and commerce.

"From these pages 'one may glean not merely knowledge of the political and commercial life of the country, but a better understanding of the Oriental mind.'" Outlook.

Jordan, W. G.—Power of truth.

Landon, Perceval.—Opening of Tibet.

"An account of Colonel Younghusband's expedition to Lhasa by the London Times correspondent, Mr. Perceval Landon. The book has an introduction by Colonel Younghusband and is authoritative and comprehensive. . . The great temple at Lhasa was never seen by European eyes until Colonel Younghusband's expedition reached it. Like the Parthenon and the Pyramids, it is one of the wonders of the world."

Lane, Mrs. E. M.—Nancy Stair.

"Includes Robert Burns among its characters. . . . The real sprightliness of the book is unusual both in conception and execution." Dial.

Leonard, William Ellery.—Byron and Byronism in America.

The thesis for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy of a former resident of Plainfield.

Mcmurry, C. A.—Special method in elementary science for the common school.

"A late volume of a series which teachers have found suggestive and helpful."

Macquoid, Percy.—History of English furniture; the Age of Oak.

"There are nearly 1000 illustrations in the entire work, and sixty of these are in the exact colors of the originals." N. Y. Times.

Mitchell, S. Weir.—Constance Trescot.

"The motif . . is an extremely unpleasant one, and in hands less skilled than those of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell the story would be too painful. The story is a study of character of a very unusual kind, full of insight, experience and skill." Outlook.

Murfree, M. N., ("Charles Egbert Craddock").—The storm centre.

"A charming picture of a Tennessee household and life in the old mansion surrounded by the Federal Army."

Nordenskjold, N. O. G., and Andersson, J. G.—Antarctica, or two years amongst the ice of the South Pole.

"It will be remembered that the Nordenskjold expedition, in the vessel Antarctic, left Europe in the summer of 1901, and spent the following Antarctic winter in the South polar regions. . . The Antarctic was caught in the ice, 'nipped' and sunk, and it tok two relief parties to finally rescue Dr. Nordenskjold and his followers." Review of Reviews.

Peckham, Mr. and Mrs. G. W.—Wasps, social and solitary.

"Mr. Burroughs says of it that it is the most charming monograph in any department of our natural history that he has read for many a year." Churchman.

Philippine Islands, Ethnological survey. Publication, vol. 1, Bontoe Igorot by A. E. Jenke.

"A valuable monograph on a most interesting people in our new possessions."

Rice, Mrs. A. H.—Sandy.

"A simple lifelike story full of quiet humor, pathos and charm." Outlook.

Richards, Robert H.—Ore dressing.

"The result of painstaking work by one of the ablest experts on the subject."

Rosadi, Giovanni.—Trial of Jesus.

"This work has been widely read in Italy and Germany, and now appears in a translation by Emil Reich, who says of it—'Signor Rosadit has approached his problem—apparently a purely legal one—with a warmth of sympathy, with a breadth of philosophical view, with a purity of religious sentiment that have rendered his book not only a noteworthy contribution to the history of Jesus, but a stimulating and an edifying work in the best sense of the word."

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abcess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Here is some carefully thought out advice for the unfortunate woman of pet hallucinations who imagines she is the victim of oppression and especial persecution at the hands of fate; who believes that she has been mismated and that marriage is, after all, a failure of the dismal dyed-in-the-wool sort; who thinks her husband's sole ambition is to deny her everything she desires, including the right to be happy in her own sweet way.

They are written by a mere man of common experience, a bald man and a mite of wisdom, whose mother, a true woman of the old school of rawhide and no-nonsense-around-the-house amenities, early trained him in the noble art of knowing his place in the domestic circle:

Take in the washing.
Be ladylike.
Don't trump your partner's ace.
Be amiable, even if he has cold feet.
Stop telling people that you haven't a bug in the house.
Don't bite your nails.
Quit talking over the back fence.
Do your manicuring in private.
Remember you promised to obey him.
Remember you're not a Gibson girl.
Sell the punch bowl.
Quit the C. O. D. Habit.
Give the parrot a chance.
Remember not to smile when your false teeth are at the dentist's.
Chuck the kimono.
Keep that stocking pulled up.
Stop sassing the gas man.
Learn to knit like grandma.
Leave the peroxide alone.
Make a cake once in a while like mother made.
Or a pie.
Or some biscuit.
A doughnut or two.
Or even a bean stew.
Let the dead past bury its dead.
Don't play euchre for charity.
Don't whistle at the milkman.
Dust off the Bible.
Don't take beauty naps before the dishes are washed.
Chew your food thoroughly.
Chew it thirty times.
By doing this you will give your husband a much needed rest and at the same time cure that dyspepsia.
Shed that red wrapper.
Take your physical culture in the kitchen.
Don't buy what you don't need, even if it is a bargain.
Look your prettiest at all times.
Don't argue with the cook.
Remember that even your friends have feelings.
Lay the duster down before you take up the novel.
Save your smiles for your husband; the letter carrier has a wife of his own.
Try to look wise.
Don't let small things annoy you not even the instalment man.
Use a button hook for those top buttons.
Shake the matinees.—San Francisco Call.

IT'S UP TO THE WOMAN.

It's up to the woman, whatever goes wrong;
She swallows an ache, while her lips trill a song.
It's up to the woman.

If husband breaks loose and comes home drunk at night,
"It wouldn't have happened if she'd managed right."
It's up to the woman.

If daughter gets giddy and dangles the men,
"If mother had watched her it wouldn't have been."
It's up to the woman.

If callers come early and find things upset,
"'Twas a bad day for William when he and she met."
It's up to the woman.

The grocers and book agents, plumbers and cooks—
She must keep them in hand and find time for her books.
It's up to the woman.

With one foot on bank book and one on accounts,
And both ends must meet when she figures amounts.
It's up to the woman.

It's worse than a four-in-hand balky gay,
This team that a woman must manage each day.

BRIG.-GEN. CHARLES KING
AUTHOR OF

THE IRON BRIGADE

OUR NEXT SERIAL.

A story of absorbing interest in which Lincoln, Stanton, Kearney, McClellen, Mead, Grant, and many other Civil War characters figure prominently. A story of that daring band of Wisconsin soldiers known to history as "The Iron Brigade," as well as many other troops of the war.

Of the story the Los Angeles Express says:

"Gen. King's active military career has given him a keen insight into all that pertains to the art of war. This is felt by all who read this stirring soldier story. "The Iron Brigade."

And the New York World says:

"Gen. King has felt the thrill of battle and he knows how to impress it upon his readers. In his new novel, too, he displays the rarer knowledge of how to mingle with the roar of war the whisperings of love. The title of the book belongs to an old band of Wisconsin fighters of rebellion days. The story, therefore, is of soldiers from the General's own State with the addition of a company from Indiana. Romance abounds in the story, but there is history in it as well. A good boy's book and man's book and woman's book, this of "The Iron Brigade."

The opening chapters of this strong story will soon appear in these columns. WATCH FOR THEM.

SOMEWHAT PERSONAL.

There were 50,943 babies born in New York city during the first half of this year, but you can't blame the babies.

There was nothing so green about the Goslin whose suggestion showed the detectives how to look for the youth who showed how easy it was to rob a bank of a fortune.

As the Czar only made him a Count, and not a Grand Duke, Witte has a chance of retaining his new popularity at court.

Nobody has thought of blaming David B. Hill for Elmira' loss of population.

"National City Bank Circular deals with refunding," says a news item, but this doesn't refer to the refunding of that $359,000 by young Leonard.

Russia seems to have come to the conclusion that there are no good Russian Generals but dead ones.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, predicts cheaper eatable this winter, but then that's the same department that furnishes us with weather predictions.

Loomis, acting, goes out with a "character" from his last employer that ought to be useful in getting a new place.

Let us hope that General Chaffee is not proud of his pleading a previous engagement as an excuse for refusing King Edward's invitation to call.

There's a demand for the reform of the East Orange police force. How about chloroform?

John D. has paid over that promised $10,000,000 to the General Educational Board, which represents the burning of lots of midnight oil, to be furnished by John D.

A GOOD DISPOSITION.

It is profitable to have an appreciative disposition.

So thinks a young woman, whose sister has just returned from a sojourn abroad, and who is so weighed down by gifts from the returned traveler's trunk that she feels positively embarrassed, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"You see, dear," apologetically explained the home-coming one, "you can't turn around in Europe without being tempted to spend money on every side. You know I never can resist the temptation. It would have caused me misery to refrain from buying. So I just bought right and left for the sheer pleasure of it, and whenever I felt reproached for spending rashly, I always thought of you. I knew you would appreciate every little oddity I picked up in out-of-the-way corners. It was a great relief to have you for an excuse for buying all the little things I yearned to spend money for."

So that is why the aforesaid young woman gloats over brass candlesticks from the Old Curiosity Shop, and Shakespeare bangles from Stratford, and plaid-covered Scottish poems from Stirling Castle, and hand-embroidered collars from Switzerland, and lace from Glengarrif, and photos from Rome, not to speak of hand-spun kerchiefs from Belfast and gloves from Paris, silk from Lyons, and a lot more things.

"It's so nice," she murmurs, "to be the appreciative sister of an extravagant person. I don't mind easing her conscience one bit in this manner. I'm going to hang a tag on each one of these things, and when I go about I shall look like the label-plastered suit case of a green traveler just come back from his first trip across the water."

SEEN IN THE SHOPS.

Buster Brown belts are very fashionable now.

Among the novel sterling silver hatpins are some with tops in the shape of windmills, yachts, cupids and the like. They are very appropriate for prizes and favors.

Folded leather belts of good firm skins are sold at a moderate price.

The supple leather belts, pointed back and front, are very becoming to a good figure. Buckles are a great feature of all belts. Empire and other antique designs are frequent in elaborate jeweled tones. It is a fad to match the jewels of belt buckles, combs, hatpins and even necklaces.

Little black velvet butterfly bows are back in favor again for the hair.

Suede pillow tops burned with pictures of Indians or lions heads are very beautiful.

A beautiful waist seen recently in one of the department stores was of white allover Lierre lace with a vest of dallions and French Valenciennes lace. It had short sleeves, handsomely trimmed with Venise medallions, silk lined. There was a pretty girdle of messaline silk.

An evening wrap shown is of white broadcloth, Empire style, elaborately embroidered in front, edged with mirror chiffon and lined with taffeta knife pleating. The sleeves are gathered at the elbow with wide flowing cuffs.

An effective suit is in a broadcloth in one of the new mulberry shades. The jacket is twenty-seven inches long, tight fitting black, laid in narrow side pleats, decorated with tiny silk ornaments and has large revers and a vest. The cuffs and collar are of Alice blue.

The best ball of the winners was 79, 77—156 and of the losers 77, 78—155. The best eighteen hole rounds were 81's, made by Peebles and O'Loughlin.

REJECTS HOSPITAL PLEA

Common Council Unwilling to Submit Tax Proposition at Coming Election.

ALMOST UNANIMOUS

Chairman Tolles Explains That Adoption of New Law Would Mean Seven Points Increase in Tax Rate.

By a vote of eight to two the Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night denied the request of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, that at the next general election the people be given an opportunity to vote a tax of one-third of a mill on every dollar collected in tax, to the hospital. Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, reported on the matter, stating that the committee had given the subject very careful consideration and had looked on all sides of the question. He said that he realized that the vote would be a fair test, but in this case, he thought it would be unwise, and on behalf of the committee he reported adversely and moved that the petition be denied.

Mr. Tolles still further explained that at the coming election the water question would be voted upon and that if the water and hospital questions should be put on the same ballot it would be confusing and would probably result in the defeat of one or the other through a misunderstanding. If the ballot should be dropped without crossing off either question, it would count against the hospital proposition, according to law, and altogether the committee deemed it unwise to attempt to put the two questions before the people at this time.

The member also said that one-third of a mill on every dollar collected in tax would amount to nearly $3,700 next year and it would mean an increase of at least seven points in the tax rate, and if the new tax law is in effect next year it would have the same result.

Mr. Bullock stated that the law provides that this tax would have to come out of the general fund, and that fund now has so many demands on it, that he, too, thought it unwise to put the question to a vote now. He concurred with the opinion of Mr. Tolles.

Mr. Hibbard also spoke against the proposition and seconded Mr. Tolles' motion. Mr. Bullock stated further that it had been suggested that the Legislature adopt some measure whereby this tax could be made a special one and raised outside of the money collected for the general fund.

The vote was called for on the motion made by Mr. Tolles and Councilmen Bullock, Gloak, Hibbard, Higham, C. C. Randolph, Frank DeW. Randolph, Daniel and Tolles voted to deny the petition, and Councilmen Tyler and Wilson voted in the negative.

SCOTCH PLAINS MAN SHOT BY OLD SAILOR

WM. M'NAIR A VILLAGE CHARACTER, FLOURISHES A REVOLVER AT MIDNIGHT

Victor Coles, of Scotch Plains, has a revolver wound in his hand, which he alleges William McNair, of the same place, gave him at midnight last night. After the alleged shooting, Coles said McNair disappeared.

According to Coles' story, he was sitting on the porch of Lynus Walpole's house, when McNair came down the street flourishing a revolver. The pistol went off and the bullet ripped through the fleshy part of Coles' hand. McNair slipped away.

The alleged shooter is an old ex-sailor and one of the village's odd characters. Coles' says there was not the slightest hint of trouble between him and the old man.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD L. HAND CELEBRATE THE FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hand, of Scotch Plains, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding last night at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Frank Hosinger, of Park avenue. The house was decorated with flowers and autumn foliage, there being an attractive arrangement of colors in the parlor and dining room.

Rev. Mr. Mulford, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, and Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Baptist church, of which Mrs. Hand is a member, invoked the divine blessing upon the happy couple. The hours of the reception were from 6 to 10 o'clock, and during this time Mr. and Mrs. Hand were the recipients of congratulations from all. During the evening supper was served.

Following the reception at the home there was a dance in Excelsior Hall for the younger set. The hall was decorated with autumnal foliage and the merry dance was continued until a late hour. Mr. and Mrs. Hand received many handsome gifts, including cut glass, china and other presents suitable for a crystal wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Hand are both popular, not only in Scotch Plains, but throughout this section. They were married at her mother's home on October 8, 1890. The late Rev. Dr. James H. Parks was the officiating minister. He has been township clerk for a number of years past, serving the people so faithfully that this year, as well as at several previous elections, the Democrats have endorsed his candidacy by not making any nomination.

Mr. Hand is also secretary of Fanwood Council, Royal Arcanum, a member of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and several other societies, and he has served his party as member of the Republican County Committee for a long time. There were guests at the anniversary from Brooklyn, New York, Jersey City, Plainfield, Westfield, Glenside and Scotch Plains.

"I MUST REPORT TO THE COMMANDER," MURMURS WIRTH AS HE FALLS DEAD

Julius Wirth, a well known Civil War veteran, who resided in this city until a year ago, died suddenly in New York yesterday morning. He entered a safe at First avenue and Twenty-eighth street in a weakened condition and asked permission to sit down for a short time. He remained seated for several minutes and then feeling that he was strong enough to go out, started for the door. He had taken but a few steps when he sank to the floor and as several attaches bent over him he muttered, "No use, boys, I must report to the commander." He died before an ambulance could be summoned.

Wirth was about sixty-five years old and for a long time was employed by the late Christian Scheppiin as bookkeeper at his West Front street clothing manufactory. When it closed down he was engaged in the same capacity by Frank Linke, and remained with him until about a year ago. He then went to New York and had been employed by various business houses.

Though not a member of the local G. A. R. corps, Wirth was well known to all the members and frequently paraded with them. He served during the war in a New York regiment and was awarded a medal for bravery at the battle of Bull Run.

Arrangements have been made by Winfield Scott Post to bring the body to this city and bury it in the soldiers' plot at Hillside, but word came at noon today that a New York post had charge of the arrangements and that the interment would be in that city.

BENEVOLENT LEGION MEETING.

Loss of Membership During Year From Increase in Rates.

Delegates from all over the State are attending the annual session of the Catholic Benevolent Legion today at New Brunswick. The condition of the legion, in reference to its financial matters, the effect of a large number of withdrawals because of the raise in rates, and plans for inducing new members to join is among the business to be considered.

Reports have been made showing that the legion is in better financial condition than ever before, in spite of the loss of 30 per cent. of its members. The latter fact will be urged as a reason why efforts should be made to secure new members.

Many old members have withdrawn since the revision of the insurance rates of the legion a year ago, which revision amounting to a large increase, was declared to be necessary if the organization was to continue in existence.

Richard B. Tibbetts, of Baltimore, supreme president of the order, made an address on the finances of the order.

OPENING OF ANNUAL FAIR

Gesang and Turn Verein Event Attended by Large Crowd of "First Nighters"

MAYORS SPEAK

Chief Executives On Both Sides of the Brook Make Addresses—Prize Bowling One of the Features.

Attended by an unusually large number of "first nighters," the Gesang and Turn Verein opened its annual fair in Saengerbund Hall last evening. It was replete with attractions and the indications are that it will prove one of the most successful the society has yet conducted.

Henry Haurand, chairman of the building committee, formally declared the fair "in swing" by making a welcoming address. He continued to act as master of ceremonies and introduced Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Mayor James F. Buckle and former Senator Charles A. Reed, all of whom spoke. Mayor Smalley reviewed the work of the Gesang and Turn Verein since its inception and Mr. Reed congratulated the members on their strength and popularity.

With these preliminaries over, the floor was cleared for dancing and it was enjoyed by the greater portion of the attendance, while a prize bowling tournament on the alleys attracted many devotees of the ball and pin game. This is to be one of the strongest attractions during the week. Among those who participated last night and who won prizes were the following: John Wirth, cut glass and silver top pitcher; Henry Rummel, box of cigars and a ham; Charles Meyer, Sr., large box of soap; Charles Meyer, Jr., small box of soap; William Claassen, a family of parrots.

One side of the hall is taken up with the usual booth at which fancy articles, candy, groceries and ice cream are sold. All enjoyed a good patronage last evening and it promises to be a source of much revenue. It is in charge of Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Joseph Haurand, Mrs. Frank Neidig, Mrs. Herman Klinsman, Mrs. Lena Boe and Miss Clara Weber. Frank Neidig presides over the box office and Mrs. Anton Steazenberger and Mrs. Charles F. Meyer, Sr., are in charge of the lunch department.

The fair is in charge of a general committee consisting of August Wolf, chairman; John Wirth, Frank Jellig, Rudolph Bleyer, Joseph Haurand and Fred Smith, assisted by Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Charles F. Meyer and Mrs. Joseph Haurand from the Women's section. There are other committees as follows: Singing Section, William Claassen, Henry Haurand and Rudolph Spiegel; Bowling Section, John Wirth, John Retzer and Henry Rummel. The fair is to continue all week and new entertainment features are to be provided for each evening.

FANDOM ACCLAIMS PLAINFIELD PITCHER WHO GAVE A REMARKABLE EXHIBITION

"Christy" Mathewson, the premier pitcher of the two leagues, rested at his home in this city last night after his great victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in the first of the post-season games for the world baseball championship at Philadelphia. The Giants won by 3 to 0, and the victory was all "Matty's." The Athletics fielded as sharply as the Giants, but it was the big Plainfield twirler's muscle, skill and brain that kept the Philadelphia players from crossing the plate. He held them to four hits, no two of which came in the same inning.

An immense throng witnessed the contest. Columbia Park, where the contest was held, was crowded to its capacity for spectators, and thousands were turned away. In New York throngs of anxious fans waited breathlessly for tidings of the battle Matty was waging against Pitcher Plank, of Philadelphia, and thousands in other cities watched for results of the game with intense interest.

Mathewson went to New York this morning on the 9:59 train, to be on hand in case McGraw needed him in the game on the Polo Grounds this afternoon, and to see his mates work for the second win in the series. Fully 200 Plainfield fans accompanied him to New York, bound for the battlefield.

RUNAWAY BOY CASE PUZZLES THE POLICE

ASBURY PARK AUTHORITIES CAN'T LOCATE HARVEY BENNETT'S PEOPLE.

The case of Harvey Bennett, the twelve-year-old runaway who was picked up in South Plainfield Sunday night is puzzling the police. The boy told Chief Kiely his home was in Whitesville, near Asbury Park, and the Chief telephoned to the shore authorities to look up the stray's people. A telegram from the Asbury Park police was received last night in which a complete failure to locate the boy's home or relatives was reported.

Chief Kiely put the runaway through the third degree this morning, but he stuck unfalteringly to his story. He told the name of his teacher unhesitatingly, described the school he attended, and promptly gave the name of an alleged storekeeper when the Chief asked where his mother dealt. The boy appeared to be telling the truth, although he did not recognize the name of the storekeeper—who is also postmaster—whose name appears in the telephone list of Whitesville. The police regard his ignorance of the postmaster's name as really an indication of his truthfulness, because it would have been natural and easy for him to claim acquaintance with the postmaster had he been weaving a fake story.

Harvey told the Chief, in response to the latter's query, that he could find his way home all right if he was started with money enough for fare, and the head sleuth decided that the best solution of the puzzle would be to send him on his way. He will be started for Whitesville this afternoon.

ITALIAN COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Killed Himself in Tunnel at Cranford.

Antonio Campelli, aged 27 years and single, who came to this country from Italy two months ago, committed suicide Sunday night at Cranford at 8:30 o'clock by sending two 32-calibre bullets into his brain. Campelli selected the Central Railroad underground crossing at the Cranford depot as the place to end his life, and fired the fatal shots in the northern end of the tunnel just after he had left the steps leading into the under crossing. A woman followed Campelli into the tunnel, and when she saw the man whip out his revolver, she turned, and, running up the steps, screamed for help. A crowd of small boys sat upon the railing above the scene of the shooting, and when the shots were fired they scattered in all directions.

FALL PROVES FATAL.

George Sweeney Dies in Muhlenberg Hospital from Injuries.

George R. Sweeney, who fell down stairs at the home of his son-in-law, Patrick Dunn, of South avenue, three weeks ago, died at Muhlenberg Hospital last night, from the injuries received. He was badly hurt about the head and had been in a semi-conscious state the greater part of the time. He was seventy-three years old and came to this city from Pennsylvania. Four daughters survive him.

Funeral services over the body will be held from Mr. Dunn's home Thursday morning at 7:15 and from St. Mary's church at 8. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McVoy, of East Front street, drove to South Branch Sunday to visit friends.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS MUCH DISAPPOINTED

E. H. LADD VOICES THEIR SENTIMENTS REGARDING COUNCIL'S ACTION.

There was general disappointment among the members of Muhlenberg Hospital's board of Governors today when they learned that the Common Council had denied their request. Through a petition they sought to have the city fathers arrange to place before the voters the proposition to raise funds for the hospital by taxation.

E. H. Ladd, a member of the board, seemed to voice the sentiment of his colleagues when he said to a reporter for The Daily Press:

"Of course I am disappointed at the action of the Common Council last evening. The hospital will probably renew its request next year and we hope the City Fathers will next time be willing to let the taxpayers express themselves on the question. The statement made by a member of the Common Council that the sum to be paid the hospital if the taxpayers voted favorably thereon would increase the tax rate 6 or 7 points is, I believe, a mistake. The tax is 1-3 of a mill and could not affect the tax rate more than 3 1-3 points or 3 1-3 cents for every $100 assessed valuation, but the city now pays the hospital $1,000, which payment would be done away with. If the assessed valuation next year is $18,000,000 the 1-3 of a mill tax would increase the payment to the hospital $5,000, which would increase the tax rate only 2.77 points."

Wedded at St. Mary's.

Francis McCabe, well known as a call man in the city fire department, and Miss Margaret Ryan, of East Third street, were quietly married in St. Mary's church last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bogan and was witnessed by William Drake and Miss Anna Ryan, the latter a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McCabe will make their home in the East End. The groom is employed in one of the local machine shops.

MORE BONDS ARE ISSUED

Common Council Awards Remaining $13,000 Lot to Dime Savings Institution

FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Street Matters Occupy Much of City Fathers' Time—Some Licenses Granted.

The remaining $13,000 school bonds intended for the completion of the new Plainfield High School were awarded to the Dime Savings Institution at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night, the bid being $1,375 with accrued interest. These bonds were issued some time ago, but it was decided to do nothing with them until the Board of Education wanted the money. The bid of the Dime Savings Institution was the most advantageous received and in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, the bonds were sold at that figure.

The bonds are to date June 1, 1905, and will bear interest from that date. They are to be of $1,000 denomination and one bond is to mature on June 1 of each year from 1908 to 1920.

Mr. Wilson, chairman of the street committee, introduced several matters which were disposed of in the customary way. An ordinance to establish the grade of Park Terrace was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. Monday night, November 6, was the time fixed for a hearing on this matter. The petition of F. E. Kinsman and others for the macadamizing of Sherman avenue was reported on and Mr. Wilson offered an ordinance providing for the macadamizing of the avenue from Grant avenue 700 feet southwesterly, the expense to be borne by the city and property owners, but no work is to be done until the property owners deposit $198.38 as their share of the expense with the city treasury. The ordinance was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

Mr. Wilson called up the ordinance providing for the extension of the sanitary sewer in East Seventh street, East Sixth street, Columbia avenue, Fredericks street, North Front street and Park Terrace, and it was adopted on second reading and ordered advertised.

The same member introduced an ordinance for the building of the Richmond street storm sewer from Cedar brook, to carry off surface water, and offered a resolution providing for the advertising for bids in The Daily Press, the Engineering News and Courier-News. These bids will be received Monday night, November 6, at 8 o'clock. The maps and specifications were filed and the resolution was adopted.

Another resolution by Mr. Wilson requested that the Public Service Corporation and the Plainfield Water Supply Company be instructed to lower the gas and water pipes in Richmond street so that the proposed storm sewer can be laid without interference. The resolution was adopted.

Still one more resolution by the chairman of the street committee provided for the laying of sidewalks in West Fifth street, Prospect avenue, West Front street and Arlington avenue, where property owners have failed to comply with the law in this respect. This resolution was adopted.

Licenses were granted to George Miller to operate a cab and to Henry Peterman, peddler on foot, after the fees are paid. The Public Service Corporation informed the Common Council that electric lights have been located on West Third street, Arlington avenue and Randolph road and Park avenue, as ordered. A copy of the Union county ratables was received from the county collector and ordered filed.

Finucane, the president of the new corporation.

The company authorizes a collateral trust mortgage of $25,000,000. Mr. Finucane said:

"There are over 5,000 telephone companies in this country independent of the Bell system. The independent lines represented directly or indirectly by one or another of our directors comprise systems which extend substantially from Kansas City, Mo., to New York. Our plans have been the subject of consideration for some months. They are the result of conferences with leading lawyers in New York, St. Louis and Rochester.

The Action Begins!
And the action will continue to the very end of that remarkable story,
THE IRON BRIGADE
By GEN. CHARLES KING.

The Opening Chapters in this Issue.
Do Not Miss Them, or any of the Chapters that are to follow.
Of this, our new serial, the Chicago Record-Herald says:
"Both history and story are to be found in Gen. King's novel, "The Iron Brigade." All of Gen. King's stories are stirring. He has seen action on the field time after time, and he knows how to give the tint of the battlefield to his written pages. It is a war story and there is war from beginning to end. Nowhere does the interest lag. Gen. King has written a story that will sustain his reputation as a writer."

THEFTS END WILL CASE.

Runaway Mayor Left Little of Stewart Estate.

Mayor Belcher, as trustee of the estate of the late Congressman Stewart, of Paterson, has so depleted the fund left in his charge that there is not enough left to fight over. The Congressman's widow and son sued to set aside the will, which bequeathed everything to the Congressman's mother. After Belcher fled Lawyer De Yoe was appointed to succeed him. Mr. De Yoe found only a few hundred dollars left of the estate that was worth $15,000 when it fell into Belcher's hands. At his suggestion the widow and son have withdrawn their contest.

Ex-Governor's Father Dead.

William H. Murphy, father of ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy, died at his home, 708 High street, Newark, Saturday. He was eighty-four years old. Mr. Murphy was born in Newark, his ancestors coming from Connecticut, where his immigrant grandfather settled in 1756. His mother was Sarah Lyon, one of the founders of Milford, Conn., and his grandmother was Phebe Crane, directly descended from Jasper Crane, the leader of the colonists, who came from Connecticut in 1666 and settled in Newark.

HE THREW HIMSELF BEFORE A MOVING TRAIN

ANDREW MAHON TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE AT C. R. R. STATION.

Andrew Mahon, whose home is in Bayonne, made an attempt to commit suicide at the Central Railroad station, on Broad street, Elizabeth, yesterday morning at 11:15 o'clock. He threw himself in front of an outgoing train, was struck by the pilot of the locomotive, and his skull was fractured. He was removed to the Elizabeth General Hospital.

Mahon was found wandering about the streets of Somerville Sunday in a demented condition. He had a bunch of grass in his hands, which he claimed was a part of the body of his wife. He was locked up until Monday morning, when he was placed on a train in charge of an officer to be taken to Bayonne.

The officer and Mahon went to Elizabeth on an express train, and no precaution had been taken to handcuff him.

They stopped at the station a few minutes awaiting the arrival of a local train, when Mahon suddenly sprang from the custody of the officer and threw himself in front of the train. His movements were so quick that it was impossible to check him. His escape from death was wonderful.

DATE FOR TURNING THE TAX BOOKS

SHOULD BE IN TAX OFFICE BY THURSDAY, ACCORDING TO LAW.

The books of the Union County Board of Assessors will be turned into the tax office at Elizabeth on or before Thursday next if the letter of the law is strictly observed. Owing to the delay in the county court house in consequence of a misunderstanding in some sections concerning the separate assessment of real and personal property there may be some delay this year. All tax bills must be sent out by the assessors before the books are returned to the tax office. Taxpayers are notified that bills are payable now, and to all bills remaining unpaid on December 20 interest at the rate of six per cent. will be added.

In Newark a discount of one per cent. is allowed on all bills paid before October 31, and one-half of one per cent. on bills paid before November 20. It has been suggested by the comptroller that council be asked to pass an ordinance offering such a bonus for the prompt payment of bills in this city, but under present conditions such an ordinance would not be of any advantage to the city.

GENERAL SKIRM DEAD.

Former Political Leader Passes Away Sitting in a Chair.

Trenton, Oct. 10—General William H. Skirm, formerly the political master of this end of the State and president of the Ocean Grove Association, was found dead in his arm chair here Saturday evening. Death was caused by apoplexy.

General Skirm was formerly a brigadier general in the New Jersey National Guard, was Senator from Mercer county from 1892 to 1898, and until a few years ago was the absolute political dictator of this part of the State.

Visits Elizabeth After Many Years.

After an absence from Elizabeth of nearly a quarter of a century, Charles A. Adams, a former well known resident of Elizabethport, where his father was one of the first grocers, went there Sunday on a visit to his brother, Jeremiah E. Adams, a retired grocer. Charles Adams, after leaving Elizabethport, located in Brooklyn, and became wealthy. He has just purchased at West Farms, N. Y., on the Hudson River, near Saugerties, the ancestral homestead of the Adams family before they removed to Elizabethport in 1856. The price he paid for it was $10,000. Mr. Adams is a childless widower, his wife having died two years ago.

Casino Plans Accepted.

At the meeting of the Long Branch Beach and Park Commission Friday night the plans of Clarence D. Wilson for the new Ocean Avenue Casino and Theatre were accepted. The casino will have a seating capacity of 3,000. The theatre will also have a seating capacity of 3,000. The cost of the casino and theatre is estimated between $60,000 and $70,000. It will be erected on the Ocean House lot and will be finished early in May.

Under the Kean Domination.

It looks as though Union County Republicans got from under the thumb of the Keans at their recent convention. They declared for limited franchises, equal taxation and the assessment of railroad property by local assessors. There was none of this "Democratic heresy" in the Mercer County platform.—Trenton True American.

County Registrar of Deeds F. H. Smith and wife have gone to Westerly, R. I. They expect to return home the last of the week.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Among the genial faces that will be seen at the banquet on Saturday night will be that of Benj. Mumford, the former baseball manager.

There will be several surprises at the banquet to the Daabsters, and altogether the occasion promises to be one long to be remembered.

Several local fans have contributed toward the expense for the brass band on Saturday, and they have also purchased a number of tickets for the banquet.

There will be a topical song rendered by a well-known local vocalist at the banquet at the Hotel Iroquois on Saturday night and the hits are said to be among the best ever given.

Manager Denman says that if he plays baseball in the Clinton Avenue class next season he will not use "Red" Waller. This means that the auburn-haired twirler will have to seek another job.

Two more games will be played by the Daabsters this season. On Saturday they will meet the All-Plainfield team and on Saturday, October 21, Manager Daab expects to have the New York Nationals here for the closing game.

Charles A. Dixon assures the fans that Saturday's game will not be a farce, but that his team will play ball to win. He has selected the best local players to oppose the champions and feels confident they will make a good showing.

Manager Daab will present his regular lineup on Saturday, except that he will use "Phil." Smith in the box. Manager Charles A. Dixon, of the All-Plainfield team, will have "Lou" Wiltse and George Allen for his battery and the other points will be well taken care of.

All the interest this week is centred in the game on Saturday between the Daabsters and the All-Plainfield team, and the banquet and presentation of the pennant to the champions at the Hotel Iroquois after the game. Ben. LaVere's famous band will give a concert, and there will be solos by Billy Raymond, Billy Murray and others. The banner crowd of the year is expected at the Oval. Those wishing tickets for the banquet should speak early for them, as they are selling very fast.

Woman Catches Large Fish.

Asbury Park, Oct. 10.—Mrs. C. F. Mauder, of New York, caught a forty-two-pound channel bass at Barnegat yesterday. This is the biggest fish a woman ever landed there, with rod and reel and with her own pluck and muscle. Miss Neveger, of whom New York also boasts, was a good second. Her bass weighed forty and a half pounds.

Mrs. Williamson Home Soon.

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, who has been abroad during the summer, where she has been studying probationary systems in England and on the continent, is expected home October 20, and will be in Elizabeth the Saturday following.

Much Coal Being Stored.

In an effort to secure empty coal cars to return to the coal mines, the Lehigh Valley coal wharves were worked to their full capacity at Perth Amboy Sunday, and a large force of men was kept busy dumping coal into the stock bins. The slips were filled with boats and barges awaiting cargoes. For several days coal has had the right of way on the Lehigh Valley system, and thousands of tons are being stocked here and at South Plainfield. The activity at this time of year is nothing unusual, and it is claimed that it has no bearing on the possibility of a strike. The plan is to have all the coal mined at the shipping point before the arrival of severe cold weather.

Plainfield, N. J., October 10, 1905.

And we are proud to hail Mathewson as a Plainfielder.

Plainfield Democrats will sympathize with New York Republicans. It is about as hard to get a mayoralty opponent to Tammany as it is to secure a Democratic ticket here.

Intensely interesting through every chapter, The Iron Brigade, which starts in this issue, is one of the best stories of the many good ones that have been published in these columns. It is a tale of the Army of the Potomac and is by that gifted writer of war stories, General Charles King. Do not fail to read it.

LIBRARIANS TO MEET AT ASBURY PARK

MISS ADAMS TO BE ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS.

The New Jersey Library Association holds its annual meeting at Asbury Park Wednesday, October 18, 1905. A meeting will be held in the afternoon and another in the evening.

Subjects for discussion include: "The Education and Training of Library Workers." This includes opportunities for study of all departments in the library in which one is at work, student workers or apprentices, library classes, and the proposed New Jersey Library Summer School, and "Picture Collections in Libraries." This will include the experience of some who have tried them, and especially the co-operation of libraries in this field. Samples from actual collections will be shown.

Informal reports on the Portland meeting of the American Library Association will be made. A talk by V. L. Collins about his recent visit to Europe and the libraries he saw there will be given. Miss Adams, of this city, will speak a few minutes on "Co-operation with State Charity Work," including the work of the New Jersey Conference of Charities and Correction, its aims; its methods, largely educational; in what ways it is closely akin to the work; why we should co-operate to the utmost, both as an organization and as individual librarians, each within his own sphere of influence; ways of co-operation will suggest themselves, when we feel individual, personal interest in this work.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL.

Educational Classes Getting In Shape for Fall Term.

The educational department of the Y. M. C. A. is almost ready for the fall term. Enrollment is going on rapidly, a number of names were added to the list last night.

It is not known definitely yet just what the classes will be. The tentative plan is to have classes in conversational English, Spanish, bookkeeping, mechanical drawing, mathematics, stenography, first aid to the injured and orchestral music, but the association reserves the privilege of cancelling any class in which ten or more students have not enrolled. Walter H. Butz, of New York, has been re-engaged to teach the machanical drawing class.

An effort will be made by members of the association to reorganize the Y. M. C. A. literary and debating society. The society has not had a very lively existence.

ALL IS NOW READY FOR BASEBALL FETE

BAND CONCERT, EXHIBITION GAME AND BANQUET ON SATURDAY.

Charles A. Dixon, manager of the All-Plainfield team which is to meet the Daabsters at Crescent Oval on Saturday, has made a strong selection of players and they are sure to make the champions play ball every minute to win. "Lou" Wiltse and George Allen will undoubtedly be the battery for the All-Plainfield team, while the infield will be covered by Dailey at first base, Brit Martin at second, Conway at third, and Howard Craig at short. In the outfield will be "Warry" McLaughlin, "Jimmie" Montross and Orra Dodge, and Barnes will be extra.

Manager Daab will use his regular team, the only change being that "Phil" Smith will probably pitch. One of the conditions of the game exacted from Manager Daab by Mr. Dixon was that he should not use "Willie" Deegan.

The concert by Ben La Vere's band will start at 2 o'clock and will last for one hour. Features will be the singing by Billy Redmond, Billy Murray and Nick Parker. After the game a banquet will be given the champions and opposing team at the Hotel Iroquois. Proprietor Jerome Leary will make this one of the best of the kind ever given here. The menu cards will be in souvenir form.

Word has been received that "Bill" Tierney, formerly with the local team, will be present at the game and give an exhibition of his original coaching. He has also consented to sing at the banquet. There will be other songs by well known local talent. City Judge William N. Runyon will probably be the toastmaster, and prominent officials of the city and borough will attend and join in the speechmaking. The banquet is called for 9 o'clock.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The musical clubs at the High School will reorganize for this term in a few days.

It is probable that the P. H. S. battalion will again be reorganized this year if enough of the young men show an interest to join. A list has been circulated for signatures.

Finals in the P. H. S. boys' annual doubles tournament will be held tomorrow afternoon on the Albert street courts. Those who will participate are Collier and Smith against Freeman and Douglas.

The annual outdoor field meet of the P. H. S. A. C. will be held on October 24 at the Driving Park. Entries close October 20 with Joe Gavett, chairman of the committee of arrangements. This year there will be ten events, which are 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 60-yard dash, hammer throw, running broad jump, shot put, pole vault, 880-yard run and the running high jump.

Boys Charged With Burglary.

New Brunswick, Oct. 10.—Abe Jolly, nine years old, is charged with being a burglar. His brother, Forman, eleven years old, and his cousin, Ike, fourteen years old, are implicated with him. Forman Jolly is in jail here. Ike is believed to be in Trenton with relatives and Abe is in the custody of his father. The three boys, it is alleged, broke into the house of John R. Reese, at Plainsboro, and stole a box of cigars, a silver watch and a penknife.

—An interesting post card is from Fort Riley, Kansas, having on it a picture of the Ogden Monument in its enclosure. This monument marks the geographical centre of the United States.

A New Department.

We beg to announce to the public that we have opened a department for the renovating and making over of Hair Mattresses. We are now prepared to do all kinds of work in this line and at much lower prices than you been accustomed to paying. All work entrusted to us will be done in a first-class manner and under absolutely sanitary conditions. Owing to the unreliability of most people who do this class of work in town, many have refrained from having their work done here, choosing rather to send it away to be done or discarding the mattress altogether, to such we simply have this to say: that the same method of "square dealing" which has built up this great business of ours, will be employed in this new department. The manager of our Bedding Department will glad y give you all desired information.

SERIES OF LECTURES ON THE LIFE OF JESUS

REV. PHIL A. PARSON'S ENGAGEMENT AT GROVE STREET MISSION.

The Grove Street Rescue Mission has made arrangements with Rev. Phil. A. Parsons, pastor of the Christian church, for the delivery of a series of lectures on "The Life and Times of Jesus." These will begin Thursday evening, October 12. The series will consist of twelve lectures of an educational nature, and will be offered free, not only to the members of the Mission and church, but to the general public. Only the regular offering of the Mission will be taken.

Owing to the custom of the Mission to devote one Thursday evening in each month to socials and entertainments, the lectures will be given three Thursday evenings in each month until the series is completed.

A general list of the subjects on "The Life and Times of Jesus" as they will probably appear will be as follows:

Hebrew Prophesy Relative to His Birth; Events Antecedent and Contemporary with His Birth; His Birth and Its Significance to Humanity; His Early Life and Training; His Nature; His Ministry; His Teaching (1) The Sermon on the Mount and the Beatitudes; His Teaching, (2) The Kingdom of God; His Philosophy and Politics; Early Influence of His Teaching; His Death and Resurrection and Their Significance; The Purpose of His Coming.

Slight changes may be made in the order or in the topics, but the general treatment will remain the same.

An interesting feature of the lectures will be a comprehensive view of contemporary history and social conditions.

Arrangements should be made to hear the entire series, as each consecutive lecture will be given in the light of previous ones.

The subject of the opening lecture will be "Hebrew Prohpesy Relative to the Birth of Christ," Thursday evening, October 12, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Shortridge has sent the manager the open time at the theatre there and arrangements may be made for some of the big attractions managed by the independents.

DREAM TOLD OF SON'S DEATH.

Mrs. Harris, Dying, Learns that Vision Was True.

Members of the family of Mrs. Mary J. Harris, who died at her home Saturday night, in Newark, declare that she had a vision or dream that her son, Samuel D. Harris, had died in Colorado about ten days before her death. Young Harris had gone to Colorado several months ago for his health, and died there on September 5. As his mother was then ill, it was decided to keep from her the news of his death.

A few days after he died she awoke one morning and told members of her family that she had had a dream that her son was dead and that she was sure it was true. The vision so preyed on her mind that the family physician advised that the truth be told to her. When she heard it Mrs. Harris said she knew all the time that her son was dead. From that time she sank.

Seeking An Income.

New Brunswick, Oct. 10.—Members of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association are considering the plans for the conversion of the present office of the association into a store. It is believed that a good income might be received from the rental of the store and the project has the support of many of the members of the association for that reason. To make the necessary changes in the building as it stands at present will involve an expenditure of $7,000 or $8,000. The plans will have the consideration of the finance committee.

John Hiscox, manager of the Sabbath Recorder printing establishment, is detained at home by illness.

AMUSEMENTS.

A new and intelligent play, "The Village Parson," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. This piece comes highly endorsed as one of the strongest dramas produced in years. Care and skill has been exercised in construction of the plot, and the author has done his work well. The play deals with the affections of the heart, and holds the closest attention of the audience from start to finish. The company will be found fully equal in their respective roles, the management having used excellent judgment in selecting the players. The production also presents a series of stage pictures that are new, startling and realistic.

David Proctor and his cousin, Miss Elizabeth Valentine, are booked to play the leading parts in "A Message from Mars" at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

Both Mr. Proctor and Miss Valentine have many warm friends in this city who will give them a royal welcome on their first appearance in Plainfield. They are both very highly connected socially in the "City of Churches." Mr. Proctor is the grandson of the late Charles Storrs, of Monroe place, Brooklyn Heights, and his cousin, Miss Valentine, is the granddaughter of the late Augustus Storrs, the brother of Charles, also formerly a resisent of Monroe place. Mr. Proctor is the nephew of Miss Edna Dean Proctor, the celebrated writer and poet.

Both Charles and Augustus Storrs, the grandparents of these talented young people, were for many years prominent in society and church circles in Brooklyn, Charles Storrs being a member of the Church of the Pilgrims and Augustus Storrs of Plymouth church.

"The Prince Chap" is now presented at Joe Weber's theatre, New York, at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street, where Mr. Weber has been presenting until quite recently his all-star musical organization. Mr. Weber has arranged with Walter N. Lawrence to present dramatic productions for a number of months each season and later in the winter of each year it is Mr. Weber's intention to produce a new musical entertainment on the same plan and scope which for years have made his theatre so popular. "The Prince Chap" is the first of Mr. Lawrence's dramatic offerings at Joe Weber's theatre and the success made by this play at the Madison Square theatre is repeated in its new surroundings. Cyril Scott, these two clever children, Helen Pullman and Edith Speare, and others who made the few weeks the Madison Square theatre so noteworthy are as popular as ever. Souvenir post cards embracing a vaJCperes-yhfrtyarefrom elisneoec aap riety of scenes from the play are presented to the audience at every performance. Each post card has an individual picture and the first series issued contains seven subjects. This is the first time souvenirs of this kind have been given away in a theatre.

"A Message from Mars" is the story of Horace Parker upon whom fortune has bestowed some of the most substantial blessings of life in the shape of youth, health, wealth, a pleasing exterior, a charming sweetheart, but he is beset by two by no means uncommon vices, ineffable self conceit, and most abominable selfishness. At the opening of the play his utter indifference to anybody's happiness or comfort save his own, nearly costs him the love of his bethrothed, who is a perfect miracle of sweetness and patience. Ieft by her in anger he cooly sits down to read an essay on the planet Mars when he is visited by one of its inhabitants whose mission is to reform the most selfish man alive. Parker is at once subjected to heroic treatment. The messenger first reduces him to complete tameness by means of potent electric currents, then takes his around town; shows him the contempt in which he is held by his acquaintances; tries to awaken his compassion by exhibitions of human misery which he compels him to relieve and finally, all milder measures failing to arouse his conscience or weaken his self esteem, reduces him to starvation and beggary and by actual suffering teaches him the beauty of regard for others. David Proctor and practically the same excellent company identified with the long runs in London and New York sage from Mars" the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre for Friday night.

This Marriage No Failure.

After struggling hard to make both ends meet by selling wood in New Brunswick, George W. Provost is on the road as a gipsy and claims that he has a yearly income of not less than $3,000. About eight years ago he married a gipsy woman and took up the nomadic life. He says they travel through the county and make their itinerary so that they are always in a warm climate. Provost's wife tells fortunes and he pulls horses' teeth and trades horses. He likes the freedom of the life and would not come back to his old home.

J. Smylie Tucker Doing Nicely.

Beautiful Women

realize that luxuriant hair of rich, youthful color always adds to their charms. The hair may be golden, black or brown, but when it becomes gray or faded there is an appearance of age, though she may feel as young as ever. Under these circumstances gray hair is a drawback to men and women.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abcess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 13, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

TO MAKE HAPPY MARRIAGES.

Marriage is an institution of the State; therefore she should put it out of the bounds of possibility that people can marry each other in two days or a week. How many marriages would be broken off if the State required a three years' engagement before people are married? After all, if a woman wants to become a nun in two months, no convent in the world will accept her. She must be a novice for two or three years; during that time she has to make an examination of her conscience every day and to find out if she has a vocation for anun. But women and men marry without the slightest preparation, without the slightest thought of the future, while Dame Nature laughs at her most odd pairings. She wants her world peopled, that is her part; the men and women who are ill-suited to each other, are not her affair.

Girls and boys at school should be taught to look upon marriage as the most beautiful, the happiest, the most desirable and the most possible thing in the world. Boys should be taught to keep their minds and their bodies pure for the state which they will probably enter, and to have a sense of protection and loyalty to girls; and girls should be taught industry, self-sacrifice and responsibility for the married state.—Black and White.

QUESTION OF APPEARANCE.

So far the only solution to the problem of making a $2,000 income produce, in appearance, a $5,000 manner of living, has been the apartment house, and its adoption by "society" has much simplified the working out of an answer, to which each newly made bride instantly sets herself, says Good Housekeeping. Meanwhile the apartment, evidence as it is of the complex—the unsimple—life, continues to improve both conveniently and esthetically. The narrow plan with long, dark passageway connecting parlor and dining room, and "inside" bath and sleeping room, has shortened and broadened into the shallow "three-room front" arrangement, where all the rooms have outside light and air. The better type of these structures also provide all of the artificial comforts to which the class for whom they are intended have been accustomed. Those able to pay for the luxury may secure surroundings and accessories of parks, courtyards, fountains and such degree of pretension in architectural treatment, materials, etc., as may be best fitted, in the judgment of the owner, to make his investment a profitable one.

ABOUT A SHIRTWAIST.

Here are some points relative to fitting a s hirtwaist brought out at the dressmakers' convention. They were dwelt upon with terrible earnestness, wherefore it is presumed that no decent shirtwaist can be made without a knowledge of them:

Make a straight collar band. A curved band will push down beneath the ribbon stock.

Don't bring the shoulder seam forward; it's better to drop it a little back to make the garment fit.

ut the waist a half inch too big all around—in height, at neck under arms, etc.

It is better to have a small armhole and plenty of play in the waist underneath than to cut a large armhole for freedom of movement.

Take a small dart into the front of the armhole if necessary, to get a good set across the chest.

If the sleeve must be seamed into the waist with the seam turned toward the neck and stitched flat. Otherwise the sleeve will stand up unpleasantly.

Don't use French seams in a thin waist. Turn the edges in and finish flat with two rows of stitcheing, as a man's shirt is finished.

The Trained Nurse.

The recent epidemic of yellow fever in the southern States has brought this disease very prominently before the public. What causes it, how it is prevented, and how the city of New Orleans has so successfully managed to check it and keep it within control during the present epidemic is fully and thoroughly described in "The Trained Nurse and Hospital Review" for October by Rudolph Matas, M. D., the celebrated New Orleans physician who has done so much to check the spread of yellow fever in that city. A valuable adjunct to this article is another by Millard Langfeld, M. D., professor of bacteriology at Creighton Medical College and bacteriologist to the Omaha City Board of Health entitled "The Roll of Insects in the Transmission of Disease.' These articles are among the most valuable contributions to the literature of these subject yet published, containing as they do much information not before presented, and are not only of value to the nurses, but to the public at large. Among a half dozen other interesting articles in "The Trained Nurse" for October are, "Nursing in Typhoid Fever," by Dr. A. L. Benedict, and Some Balkan Hospitals, an illustrated article describing some of the curious hospitals tucked away in European Turkey. The Army Nursing Department, and the news department of this number are also most interesting.

CHAPTER I.

DAMON AND PYTHIAS.

They were paddling idly down the stream—two young men and a girl. Stroke and bow were in heated discussion, and the dark brown eyes that earlier in the afternoon seemed ever seeking those of liquid blue before him, were now turned, sometimes to port, sometimes to starboard, sometimes over the squared shoulders, flashing on the man in front—a young athlete with eyes as blue and hair and skin well-nigh as fair as those of the girl at the helm. He of the stroke sculls, on the contrary, was tawny, almost, as a son of the tropics. His head was crowned by dark brown curls, tumbling about neck and temples. The shape of his face had the delicate beauty of a woman's. Among the four score young fellows prominent in society of the western metropolis, there was not one to deny to Paul Ladue the palm for physical, or at least facial, charm. Ever since his coming among them four years before there was hardly a girl in all their circle in the bustling city that had not declared him "simply lovely."

What his face lacked was strength and will. A physiognomist would have turned from it speedily to study the strong, virile features, the square jaw, the firm set lips of the stalwart fellow at his back. It required no unusual power to tell that he and the silent girl were brother and sister, and that between them sat, despite the heat of argument, a beloved and cherished friend.

"You'll never do it, even if you muster in every man north of the Ohio, Fred," said he of the dark, flashing eyes. "Our people will fight to the last man—and then the women and children will take it up."

Fred Benton shook his head in dissent—a sad smile on his face. For a moment he ceased rowing and bent earnestly forward:

"You at least can have no sympathy with the south, after the wrong done your father, Paul, and I'm blessed if I can understand your taking up the cudgels for Alabama as you do."

The color deepened in Ladue's face. Benton had scored a hit. The eyes of the girl brimmed with tears. There was something of reproach in the glance she threw at her stalwart brother. Well as the story was known, people rarely spoke of it to the Ladues. Four years old though it was, it still cut deep.

Some time in '57 the editor of a leading journal had received a letter commending to him Francis Ladue, who purposed settling in the city and going into business there. Presently Ladue came and with him his little family—a fragile, sad-faced wife, a slender, big-eyed boy of 16, and two young children. Presently, too, marked copies of southern papers were received, and little by little their story was told to an indignant and sympathetic community. Natives of the south and residents for years of a beautiful old southern metropolis, they had been banished from the home of their love, driven from state to state, forbidden ever to return, and compelled finally to seek refuge among strangers in the north, because Ladue, senior, owner of the finest bookstore on the Gulf coast, stood charged with having sold to an old customer one copy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The business it had taken Ladue nearly a quarter of a century to build up was ruined in a day.

Ladue was shy and reserved, his wife a semi-invalid and Paul a sensitive plant. It was long before he seemed to thaw out at all, but Fred Benton, a near neighbor when they passed into the high school, was the youth he finally tied to, and then this strangely assorted pair joined forces, apparently, for good and all. Damon and Pythias they called them; for, after the first six months of shyness on Ladue's part, they became inseparable. High school finished, Ladue was needed as assistant in his father's growing business. Benton had begun the study of law in the office of the famous old firm of which his father was the head. But before either had cast his first vote the long heralded conflict between the north and south had burst upon the startled land. Sumter had fallen. The president had called, first for 75,000 men to defend the capital, then for 500,000 volunteers to prosecute the war.

For a moment there came no answer to Benton's tentative. Already he repented him of his words, yet there was something he longed to know. For upwards of three years there had been no secret between him and his chosen friend. Paul Ladue, who hitherto had held no communication with his native state, was writing letters thither and feverishly, furtively, perhaps, awaiting reply. What did it portend?

On every hand men were quitting the desk, the plough or the tools of their trade, and flocking to the recruiting offices. Benton's name had been sent to the governor for a commission in one of the new regiments. Mass meetings were being held almost every night, and energetic citizens were passing subscription papers from desk to desk that a fund might be raised for the benefit of the families of the rapidly enlisting husbands and fathers.

Ladue gave again and again and gave gladly. "How could I do otherwise?" said he. "You and these kind people bade me welcome when life was at its blackest. I am a southerner. I cannot fight against mine own people no matter what they did to me. I cannot support them, however, in their revolt against the government which shields and protects me. I will not refuse to contribute towards the support of the wives and children of those who so kindly welcomed my wife and children. I and mine are grateful."

"But what is Paul going to do?" was the question that startled him, one morning. "He would not enlist with the boys here and he's writing letter after letter to somebody there. It isn't possible he would fight for the people who broke his father's heart."

It had never occurred to Ladue. It was high time he interposed. Paul was barely 20, and, therefore, still subject to his father's will. It was a soft, warm evening at the verge of June as the trio came silently back from their up-river row. Fred propped his sculls against the tree box, and let himself in at the gate for a few minutes of earnest talk. It was indeed time somebody in authority sought to dissuade the young man if it should prove that he was seeking service with the Alabama troops.

Meantime the two young people had gone on toward the Benton homestead. Away down town there came the sound of distant cheering, for another mass meeting was being held in Market

"WHAT IS IT, PAUL?"

Square and a gifted orator from Chicago was being presented to the throng. Up here near the bluffs overlooking the great inland sea, all was still. Elinor Benton looked warily within as they reached the gate in front of the quaint colonial house that had been her home since babyhood. Voices, in low-toned chat, floated out to her from the broad veranda, and with hardly a shadow of hesitation the girl turned and followed when her partner said, "Let us go back to the bluff a little while." When they reached the edge of the bluff Ladue turned to her and his voice trembled as he asked,

"You heard Fred's question?"

An almost inaudible "Yes," was the sole response.

"What—do you think I—ought to do?" he wistfully, slowly asked. For a moment she could not reply. When the words came—for she was only sixteen, and the position most trying—her clear young voice had a pathetic, tremulous undertone.

"How can I judge? Almost any one would say your duty was here—yet—I know—your heart—is there." And as she spoke the heart in her own pure young bosom was throbbing hard. For another little while there was silence, broken only by the sound of distant cheering from the center of the town—by the rhythmical, soothing plash of the wavelets on the pebbly beach beneath them. Then Elinor, uplifting her face, looked upon the clear-cut features of the slender youth at her side and saw that the dark eyes were filled with sadness and trouble. She impulsively bent forward, and with slender, tapering fingers touched his shoulder as though to turn him toward her, while with almost a sob in her voice she murmured——

Objects to Insinuations Concerning Frequency of Fires.

Freehold, Oct. 10.—T. Frank Appleby, an Asbury Park real estate dealer and president of the Asbury Park City Council, is being sued in the Supreme Court here for $10,000 damages by George A. Wedel, for slander. Wedel conducts a house-furnishing business at Asbury Park, and on February 7 last his place of business was burned. While watching the fire Mr. Appleby approached Mr. Wedel and told him, in the presence of a number of others, that he had more fires and failures than anyone he knew of, and if he was him he would get out of town, as he was no good to the community anyway.

Mr. Wedel, on the witness stand, said he had lived in Asbury Park twenty years and had three fires, one fifteen and one twelve years prior to the last one in February. At this second fire Mr. Appleby, he said, had made similar remarks, which were calculated to injure his character and business.

ELIZABETH BOARD ACTS.

Police Commissioners Promote Detective and Suspend Patrolmen.

The new board of police commissioners of Elizabeth evidently feel confident that the Supreme Court's decision next month will sustain their appointment by Mayor Berry. They have promoted Detective Samuel Murphy to the rank of a detective sergeant, and have also suspended two policemen on charges, but would not give out the offenders' names for publication. The commissioners also created a new bicycle policeman.

The board has decided that Elizabeth has not enough police protection, and will ask the aldermanic board to substantially increase the force, if sufficient funds can be spared from the city treasury to do so.

Alleged Hold-up in Summit.

The police of Summit are puzzled over a reported hold-up which occurred Sunday night at Summit avenue and Chatham Turnpike, near Orange. A Polish girl and her escort were walking along Summit avenue, when a highwayman, according to the girl's story, confronted them, displaying a revolver and demanding money. She screamed and ran to the home of George Minck, a short distance away, whence word was sent to the police. Chief of Police Brown and Patrolman Kelly went out on the case, but could find no trace of either of the men.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Assistant Postmaster James White, of Elizabeth, has presented to the family of the late Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne an engrossed copy of the resolutions adopted by the Republican City Executive Committee expressing sorrow at his death. The engrossed resolutions are very finely gotten up.

There seems to be a sort of Newark coincidence in the New York City municipal nominations of the Democratic and Republican parties. Herman A. Metz was named Thursday night by the Democrats for the office of comptroller, the second best office. He for a time lived in Newark, and attended the Newark High School. The Republican nominee for Mayor is Charles E. Hughes. He also, when a boy, lived for a time in Newark, his family having moved here from Glens Falls, N. Y.

STREET BOY A PROBLEM

Mornay Williams Points Out Responsibilities For Young Gamins.

WORKER IN SLUMS

Able Talk Before the Men's Club of the First Baptist Church—Organization Elects New Officers.

The Men's Club of the First Baptist church held its first fall meeting last night, and for the feature of the gathering it had Mornay Williams, of New York, lawyer and slum worker, present to make an address on the street Arab. His subject was "The Responsibility of Christian Men to the Street Boy."

Mr. Williams has worked for the betterment of the slum boy for years and is noted in that particular field of philanthropy. He spoke last night with an earnestness that was impressive, and held his hearers by the sheer force of that earnestness, if nothing else. In itself, however, the address was remarkably interesting.

His sketch of the street boy and the conditions surrounding him and his declaration of the Christian's responsibility for the gamin were broad and general rather than specific. He led up to the question of responsibility by a description of the environment that makes the gamin and of the boy himself.

Mr. Williams' street boy is the boy of the big city. He described him as the by-product of the city, "for the great cities are nothing but man-factories." The gamin was the survivor of the infant mortality of the slums, he said, and the great city took him in hand after he had proved his fitness.

Three factors entered into the formation of the street boy's character: Mothers, or lack of them; the overcrowding of city life, and the influence of the street. Some mothers instincts, the greater the tasks they were good, but the better the mothers' instincts, the greater the tasks they had to bear and the sooner they failed and died; and most mothers were not worthy the name. The teeming life of the city crowded and jostled boy out of all naturalness. The street was the place to which he went for the three things the slums kept him from: home, schooling and playroom.

The speaker described graphically the spirit of the schooling the streets gave its pupils. It was a great school, the speaker said, with earnestness, because it taught thoroughly the lessons in its curriculum. Fundamentally the education of the street was the education of the gang.

It was in the street boy and the education he received at his school that the foundation of political corruption in municipalities lay. The street made the gangs, the gangs developed into the ward gang, and the ward gang, quite naturally, evolved the ward boss and the ward heeler, with all their presence and power in politics meant.

Of the responsibility of the Christian man to the street boy the speaker said there was no doubt. Those among the Christian botherhood who denied their responsibility for the continuance of the conditions that made the street boy possible were repeating Cain's specious query, and the mark of God was on their brows, as it was on his, "and their punishment is greater than they can bear."

The speaker said he had no suggestion for a general solvent of the problem involved in the street boy to offer. He had found that the reformation of the boy was impossible to bring about unless he was removed from the city. The task of scattering every one of the myriads of gamins to the country was too vast a plan to entertain. No, it was not until the responsibility for the street boy, for the conditions that surround him, for the grim and hardening fate that pursued him was felt by the church everywhere; not until street life was looked upon differently, as something which the eminently respectable and good and comfortable people are connected with, and must know; not until then could the street boy be saved and made just "boy," and the beginning of a good, clean man.

Mr. Williams was warmly applauded. President S. St. John McCutchen expressed the club's appreciation of the address.

The club conducted a brief business session before the address, electing a new set of officers and governors. They are as follows:

President, S. St. John McCutchen; first vice-president, E. T. Wilson; second vice-president, J. H. Case; treasurer, Dr. N. H. Probasco; secretary, John G. McLaughlin; governors, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, J. D. Macnab, N. D. Drake, Kenneth Robbie, J. H. Crane, George F. White, W. C. Dobbins, S. B. Joseph, F. W. Jones, Alfred W. Day, C. W. McCutchen, George A. Chapman, Harold Serrell and Alexander Gilbert.

The meeting was open to the general membership of the church, and the lecture room was comfortably filled with guests, a goodly number of whom were women.

YOM KIPPER OBSERVED

Stores of Hebrew Merchants Closed Until Sunset Last Evening.

DAY OF ATONEMENT

Members of the Faith Neither Ate Nor Drank—How the Custom Was Observed in Ancient Days.

Hebrew merchants closed their stores yesterday and the day was observed generally by members of that ancient faith in fasting and atoning. All day long the synagogue of The Children of Israel was well filled by those who had come to pray and not until sunset was the fast broken. The observance started at sunset Sunday night.

In the early days of the Jewish nation's history, the religious rites were left very largely to the priests, and to the high priest in particular. He entered the holy of holies and there performed the services required. The people stayed in the temple, fasting and praying. A custom of the day then in vogue, but now entirely obliterated was for the younger folks, girls and men, to go to wine gardens and fields. Here, though they fasted as all males above 13 and females above 12 were required to do, they danced and made merry, and the young men chose wives on that day from among the assembled maidens.

In the temple the scene at the same time presented a strong contrast to the festivities in the gardens. Men prayed and wept with a fervor and devotion not exhibited on any other day. Two goats were sacrificed by the high priest. One was rendered up as a burnt offering. The other was taken to the top of a high mountain and thrown down. It was required that the high priest be a married man, and his wife at the time of her marriage a maiden. So great was the concern that all the exactions of custom be observed, that on the night of Yom Kippur, in case the wife of the high priest should die, a maid was held in readiness for marriage to him, on the instant.

The flight of time saw the disappearance of the sacrificial rites, the passing of the high priest's important functions, and the abolition of festivities on the part of the young people. Today Yom Kippur is a day of whole-souled worship on the part of all Jews. In every synagogue the men can be seen with their cloths of devotion wrapped around them, standing in their stocking feet and rocking in prayer. The women, in the galleries set apart for them alone, likewise feel the spirit of the day and worship with equal ardor, being moved to tears. The men, too, are affected by the solemnity of the occasion and weep. All day the cantor, faint from fasting, intones the prayers in a loud voice, and the worshippers follow him.

The significance of Yom Kippur is this. It is believed that a week before, on Rosh Hashonnah, the beginning of the new year, God takes note of the deeds of his people through the past year, and decides on reward or punishment as the performances of the individuals merit. On Yom Kippur he sets the seal of judgment on the decisions made on Rosh Hashonnah. But devout Jews believe that the fate of sinners may be mitigated by sincere repentance as expressed in fasting, contrition and prayer. Hence on Yom Kippur they assemble in their places of worship penitent and contrite, and intercede with prayers for forgiveness from God.

WILL ACCOMPANY GOVERNOR.

General and Personal Staff Will Assist at Fair Opening.

Trenton, Oct. 10.—Governor Stokes has directed the adjutant general's office to issue an order calling upon his general and personal staff to accompany him to Jersey City on Wednesday, October 18, when the Governor will open the Fourth Regiment fair. Those who will be asked to accompany the Governor are Generals Breintnall, Murray, McGill, Congdon, Spencer and Meany.

Of the general staff, Colonel Joseph T. Frelinghuysen, the Governor's personal aide, and Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, Captain Harry C. Kramer, Captain George T. Vickers, Lieutenant Mahlon R. Margerum and Captain Walter E. Edge, constituting the personal aides by detail, will be invited. Captain Edge was added to this detail yesterday. He was on the staff of Governor Murphy.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will celebrate its eighteenth anniversary on Thursday night.

NOVEL POINT IN WILL CASE.

Whether a Subsequent Marriage Invalidates a Document.

Jersey City, Oct. 10.—Whether a subsequent marriage invalidates a will is the novel question raised by the caveator in the contest of the will of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sippel, of the town of Union, which is now being heard by Judge Blair in the Hudson County Orphan's Court. The point raised has been settled in different ways in other States, but is a new one here.

The woman whose will is being contested was Elizabeth Hoffman in May, 1896, when she married Sippel. He was her fifth husband. Four of them she had divorced and one died. In 1902 she separated from Sippel because of family troubles. After her death a will was found, made when she was Mrs. Hoffman, and by the terms of which her entire estate, valued at $75,000, was left to her children.

The caveator claims that the marriage of the testatrix to him invalidated this document, and if the point raised is decided in his favor he will get all the personal property, which is a considerable portion of the estate.

CHORES BOY STEALS.

Dayton Farmer Loses a Gold Watch.

Harry Gordon, of Dayton, hired a colored boy to work on his farm, on September 26. The colored fellow was about fourteen years of age and had been in the neighborhood but two days, during which time he had worked for Curtis R. Conover, at Dayton. Yesterday, while Mr. Gordon's family was away from his house a short time, the negro took Mr. Gordon's $50 gold watch, a gold fob, 80 cents in money and disappeared. He has not returned and Constable Gordon, of Cranbury, was out looking for him this morning.

The boy has a light complexion. He has straight hair and looks like an Indian. There is a red spot on his left cheek about two inches long.

North Branch, Oct. 10.—The stated fall session of the Classis of Raritan is being held in the Reformed church here today. This evening at 7 o'clock the annual meeting of the Young People's Classical Missionary League of the Classis will be held, the session beginning with a ministers' conference. At 7:30 o'clock the public services will be opened. Addresses will be made by the Rev. J. A. Beattie, a missionary recently returned from India, and the Rev. Dr. H. M. Hutton, of New Brunswick, who is the president of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America, and has just returned from a six months' tour of the mission fields. The especial object of the meeting is to inform the young people of missionary work, and to inspire them with interest and enthusiasm for the great cause.

Lost $4 and Killed Himself.

Because he had lost a pocketbook containing $4, Joseph Kinney, thirty years old, committed suicide at Cranford Sunday night. He walked into the store of his cousin, Herman Lansurdy, and picked up a revolver. Lansurdy tried to get the revolver, and the men struggled all over the store. Finally Kinney broke away, ran to the subway under the New Jersey Central tracks, and, putting the revolver to his head, fired two shots. Death was instantaneous.

Gaelic Language Study.

A well attended meeting in the interest of the Gaelic language revival movement in Ireland and the United States was held Sunday night at the Lyceum theatre, Elizabeth, under the auspices of the United Irish Societies of Elizabeth. The meeting was called to order by Patrick J. Hall, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Judge Owen P. Mahon was selected as chairman. Judge Mahon made a brief speech of acceptance.

REPUBLICANS SANGUINE

County Politicians at Capital Predict Sure Victory.

SITUATION SIZED-UP

Major Carl Lentz, State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs and Governor E. C. Stokes Hold a Pow-wow.

Trenton, Oct. 11.—Major Carl Lentz had a long interview yesterday with State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs, chairman of the Republican State Committee, but both declared that there was nothing of public interest in their conference. While they were together Governor Stokes joined them in Mr. Briggs' private office, but he did not remain with them very long. He left early to attend the funeral of former Senator William H. Skirm, at which he was an honorary pallbearer. He said that there was nothing new in the political situation throughout the State as far as he knew, and that there was no news in the executive department.

Mr. Briggs was subsequently asked if there was any foundation for the recently published story, to the effect that the State leaders were about to endeavor to have C. Asa Francis withdraw from the Republican ticket in Monmouth. He said he did not exactly understand what was meant by the State leaders. If the State committee was meant, that body had not had a meeting since last fall, and at this time there was no intention of calling it together for the purpose of considering the situation in Monmouth or any other county. Mr. Briggs said that it was not the policy of the State committee to interfere in county matters, as the Republicans of each locality were considered competent to direct their own political affairs.

Mr. Briggs had no opinion to express one way or the other on the shrievalty question of Monmouth.

When asked what he thought of the situation in Essex, he replied with a smile of deprecation:

"Oh, the situation there is altogether too complex for a tyro in politics, such as I am. You will have to ask some one who has had more political experience than I have had. It reminds me of the story of the man who had a certain beautiful object to exhibit, but you had to stand on your head to see its beauty. What kind of a man is this Gregory, the Democrats of Essex have nominated for Senator?" Mr. Briggs asked, turning inquisitor himself. "The reason I ask you," he went on, "is that I saw in a New York paper that the Democrats think they can elect him. I don't believe that is so. I believe Colby will carry the county, and all the candidates for Assembly on the ticket with him will be elected. Had it not been for that little muss in the county committee I believe Colby would have gotten the biggest majority ever received in Essex by any man except Roosevelt."

There were several politicians there from different parts of the State. The Republicans or Passaic county admit that there is some trouble there in connection with the election of county commissioners, under the Strong law, to take the place of the Board of Freeholders. The townships seem to be resolutely opposed to the proposed abolition of the Board of Freeholders, and it is possible that some Republicans may join the Democrats in the hope of defeating the Republican nominees for commissioners. Apart from this disaffection, the Republicans believe that they will elect their whole ticket, which includes five members of the Assembly and a surrogate.

While the Bergen county Republicans fully expect to elect their candidates, they admit that the fight for the county clerkship is going to be a warm one. The Democrats make only one claim for their ticket, and that is that they will elect their candidate for county clerk.

The Republicans of Burlington county, according to Robert Hutchinson, were never better organized or better persuaded that they would elect their whole ticket. Such a result might mean that Assemblyman Robbins would put in a large bid for Speaker of the House, with a strong South Jersey backing. The talk at Trenton yesterday indicated that Assemblyman Mills, of Morris county, would be more earnestly supported by the Republicans for leader of the House than for Speaker, although Mr. Mills has many earnest supporters in the northern part of the State.

The Democrats of Somerset county will hold their convention Saturday. It is fully expected that Samuel S. Childs will again be the opponent of Colonel Joseph H. Frelinghuysen for State Senator.

—The boys' cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. will meet Friday afternoon. Committees for the year will probably be appointed.

LOOKS LIKE NEW BRIDGE

Somerset Freeholders More Disposed Now Towards West End Ave. Structure

MAYOR SMALLEY'S PLEA

After North Plainfield's Executive Makes Speech Committee is Appointed to Take the Proper Course.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley appeared before the Somerset County Board of Freeholders at a regular meeting in the Court House at Somerville yesterday and urged the construction of the West End avenue bridge in North Plainfield. Freeholder Codington moved that a committee be appointed to take the matter into consideration and confer with the Union county committee to arrange for receiving bids.

The motion was carried and the following members were named to comprise the committee, John P. Emmons, William Demler, Joel Codington, John A. Whitenack and William J. Logan.

A delegation of taxpayers from Franklin township was on hand and made a stiff argument for the early construction of the river road from Bound Brook to New Brunswick. No action was taken.

A petition was filed for the improvement of the road from Bedminster, through Larger Crossroads, to the Lamington River.

The County Collector was authorized to borrow $20,000 in anticipation of taxes.

Freeholders Codington, Demler, Emmons and Whitenack were appointed to repair the bridge near E. E. Coopers place in Warren township.

Freeholders Demler, Whitenack, Emmons and Philhower were selected to award the contract for a bridge with concrete foundations near Lyons.

The Board adjourned to meet near Benj. McDowell's Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to view a bridge.

POSTOFFICE LEASE FOR TEN YEARS MORE

MANY NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS INSTALLED BY BABCOCK ESTATE.

Several hundred dollars worth of new furniture was received at the postoffice yesterday and is now in use. Some of the furniture has been needed for along time, and it will greatly facilitate the handling of mail matter. The improvements are paid for by the Babcock estate. The Government would not consent to again lease the present quarters until the furniture was installed and approved by the inspector, who is expected here within a few days. Then a lease will be signed for a term of ten years. This means that the postoffice site will not be changed for at least a decade.

The furniture includes new letter and paper distributing cases, a standing registry desk and nine new lockers for the office employes, and also a new cabinet for blank forms of all kinds. The letter and paper cases are about six feet high. The paper case has thirty separations and is so arranged that a clerk can stand in front of it and throw papers into any one of these receptacles. The same arrangement is provided for the letter case, which has two sections of thirty separations each. The standing registry desk has been needed for a long time. The cabinet for blank forms is 6x4 feet and will amply provide for all the official papers.

The present lease on the building was for five years, but inasmuch as the Babcock estate consented to supply the necessary furniture, the Government agreed to a ten-year lease. The furniture is made by the McLane Manufacturing Company, of Milford, New Hampshire.

HIS WIFE BEAT HIM.

Punishment He Got Home Saved John Giles from Court Penalty.

John Giles, of Lake street, was arraigned in the city court this morning upon the complaint of his wife, who charged him with disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

"I get drunk," admitted Giles, "but my wife beats me."

Detective McCarthy, who made the arrest, corroborated this statement. The magistrate looked sympathetically at the victim of husband-beating.

"You'd better stay away from your family," he advised the prisoner. "Sentence suspended."

Harry Slauson has been appointed official scorer for the Park Club alleys.

VICTOR HUGO A REFORMER

Prof. Edward H. Griggs Talks Entertainingly of the Great Novelist.

DISSECTS HIS WORKS

Lecturer Points Out Wherein Hugo's Novels Differ from Those of Other Pre-eminent Writers of Fiction.

"Victor Hugo" was the subject of Prof. Griggs' third lecture in his series of six on the great moral leaders of history, at Vincent chapel last night. The attendance was even larger than at the two preceding lectures, and the discourse was received with a degree of interest and attention that must have been very gratifying to the lecturer.

Prof. Griggs holds that Hugo, high as is his rank as a novelist, and, in a measure, as a poet, is first of all and pre-eminently a reformer; so much a reformer, so much a man of ideas and creative energy, as to be limited in the full sweep of his genius as a novelist. Hugo's characters, the speaker said, lacked that distinctive feature of concealed art that marks the true fictional creation; Hugo's preconceived conception of the character was always and insistently in evidence; he laid out that conception and built the flesh and skin about it, not, as Shakespeare and other true creative artists did, allowing his characters to unfold and disclose themselves to the reader. The fault grew from his tensity of devotion to the ideas he felt, and the irresistible desire to see those ideas prevail. The true artist is satisfied to await his audience, alone in his desert cage or on the mountain top. Hugo, as a reformer, a man of affairs, hungered for the instantaneous reception and execution of his ideas, and his art showed the limitations of the artist in him.

Prof. Griggs was at his best in his sketch of Hugo's life, and the conditions that developed his remarkable character and genius. Some of his sentences were lyrically eloquent, and the lecture, entirely apart from its educational and philosophical value, was unusually interesting as a composition. There were no responses to Prof. Griggs' smiling invitation to discussion or questions, and he filled in the period he had allowed for that feature with two readings from Hugo's "William Shakespeare," and comments on the author's unbounded faith in the depth of the common intellect and the common heart.

The next lecture will be on Thomas Carlyle. At none of the lectures have the auditors taken advantage of the opportunity for questions and discussions, and it is likely that Prof. Griggs will not hereafter repeat the fruitless and stereotyped invitation for an exchange of ideas.

GERMAN'S FAIR DREW LARGE CROWD AGAIN

SINGING AND BOWLING TWO OF THE ATTRACTIONS LAST NIGHT.

The success of the opening was repeated at the fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein fair last night and it has now settled down for a prosperous week. The attendance was again large and everybody found plenty to amuse in the dancing, prize bowling and other attractions. The special entertainment feature last night was provided by visiting singing sections from Elizabeth and other places.

On the bowling alleys, the Scotch Plains team won a match game from the Suburbans by a score of 828 to 683. An exciting match took place between individuals for a gold watch, locket and chain, which narrowed down to John Wirth, George Voehl and Henry Wierenga. Wirth won out by making 58 out of a possible 60; Voehl, 54, and Wierenga, 33.

Tonight the Arion Singing Section of Newark will attend and will give several selections. Local bowling clubs will participate on the alleys for special handsome prizes.

BLOCK'S NARROW ESCAPE

His Rig Demolished By Reading Flyer, He Gets Off With Severe Contusions.

NOW AT HOSPITAL

Accident Occurred at Lincoln This Morning—Horse Cut Loose from Wagon and Got Away.

While driving his butcher wagon over the Central Railroad crossing at Lincoln, this morning, Louis Block, of West Front street and Clinton avenue, had a miraculous escape from instant death. His wagon was struck by one of the Reading two-hour flyers going east and due at that point about 8:30. Block was thrown a distance of several hundred feet, landing alongside the railroad. His wagon was completely demolished and the meat entirely destroyed. The horse was cut loose, and up to noon had not been found.

The train was stopped within its own length and the injured man was put aboard and brought to this city, where has was taken to the hospital in the ambulance. He suffered intense pain and while being removed from the train to the ambulance his screams were heart-rending. At the hospital his injuries were found to consist of severe contusions of the right side and hip, and the physician in charge gave it out that he would probably recover.

Block, who has a country route, selling meat from the wagon, left home at 5:30 o'clock this morning. He made his usual stop at Dunellen about 7 o'clock. Between Dunellen and Lincoln he made a number of stops, and it was about 8:26 when he passed over the railroad crossing. Block did not see the approaching flyer, until it was right on him; too late to clear the tracks. He has a wife and six children.

Athletic Work as a Subject.

Principal Ira W. Travell announced at the Plainfield High School this morning that athletic work done outside of the school, such as at the Y. M. C. A. and other places, will not count as one regular whole subject. Five years of this work must be completed to count as one subject. This has always been the rule in athletics, as in drawing, which is done outside the Plainfield High School, and Mr. Travell simply reminded the pupils of the rule.

Notable Dramatic Event.

In booking Miss Grace George and her company in "The Marriage of William Ashe" for the New Plainfield theatre, on October 26, Manager Counihan believes it will prove the society event of the season in local theatricals. It is one of the largest productions controlled by William A. Brady and is one of Miss George's greatest successes. Richard Carle, in "The Mayor of Tokio," appears on the following night.

SUES FOR LONG REWARD

Asks Damages Because Money Was Refused For Murderer's Capture

POLICE FILE CLAIM

City of Trenton and Mercer County Board of Freeholders Are Made Defendants.

Suits have been commenced in the Supreme Court against the inhabitants of the city of Trenton and the Board of Freeholders of the county of Mercer for $1,000 damages, by Franklin Van Nuis, of Middlesex county, becaue of the failure of the defendants to pay him the rewards, aggregating $500, offered for the capture of Murderer Charles Long last July.

The suits are identical expect as to the defendants. The declarations recite how the defendants advertised for the capture of Long, each offering a reward of $250 for the man charged with the murder of Matthew Cunningham.

Van Nuis claims that August 2 last he apprehended Long on the Van Nuis farm in Piscataway township, Middlesex county, afterwards turning him over to the keeper of the Mercer county jail.

Refusal of the city and county authorities to pay the respective rewards is claimed, and the plaintiff asks $1,000 damages for each refusal.

It will be remembered that the police authorities refused to sanction the paying of the reward to Van Nuis, claiming that he had previously harbored the murderer and enabled him to escape, thus delaying his apprehension by the civil authorities.

A claim for the money has been put in by the Plainfield police department, members of which actually captured Long as he was ploughing on the Van Nuis farm, after Van Nuis had sent them word of the fugitive's whereabouts.

A proposition has been made that the amount of the reward be paid into the court of chancery for determination as to its proper disposition.

WOMAN PRISONER'S MOUTH AGAINST HER

MRS. ELLIG'S TONGUE CONDEMNED HER IN THE CITY COURT.

Mrs. Mary Ellig and Mrs. Julia King live in the same house on West Third street. Mrs. Ellig doesn't like her neighbor and rows between them have been frequent. Mrs. King had Mrs. Ellig arraigned in court this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Ellig went on at a great rate and Judge Runyon looked at her disapprovingly.

"Your mouth is full of disturbance," he said. "I can tell that by the way you talk. I'll suspend sixty days over you, and if Mrs. King has occasion to make another complaint you'll suffer that sentence."

"Mine goodness, that is not chustice," said Mrs. Ellig as she went out. "In mine own country they unterstand better and fix that udder woman."

COUNTY CAMPAIGN OPENS

Candidates Make Separate Speeches at Big Republican Rally at Elizabeth.

ALL PRAISE KIRKLAND

Ernest R. Ackerman Makes Some Remarks—A Feast Follows the Political Talks.

The first gun in the county campaign was fired by the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, last night, when it conducted a ratification meeting in Grand Army Hall, at the 'Port. Captain Robert Kirkland, the defeated candidate for the shrievalty nomination, is president of the organization and he acted as master of ceremonies.

Among those in attendance were Dr. W. H. Lawrence, candidate for sheriff; Ernest R. Ackerman, candidate for State Senator; Peter Tillman, Everard Tucker and Randolph Perkins, the Assembly candidates; former County Chairmen Hamilton F. Kean, and Charles N. Codding; Mayor Berry, of Elizabeth; Mayor Buckle, John W. Murray, Jr., and Herbert Buxton, of this city.

The candidates and other notables in the gathering made addresses and several of them laid stress upon the spirit manifested by Captain Kirkland. Though defeated in his fight for the shrievalty nomination, he displayed no animosity toward the leaders and has since been working with a hearty good will for the success of the ticket. One of the best speeches of the night was given by Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city.

After the formal speeches, the club entertained its guests in its customary style. There was lots to eat and the politicians devoured everything in that line as eagerly as they did the speeches.

The Elizabeth clubs have other mass meetings arranged and similar gatherings will be held in Plainfield and throughout the county during the next few weeks.

RUNAWAY STARTED ON HIS HOMEWARD WAY

REPORTER ESTABLISHES FACT HARVEY BENNETT LIVED IN WHITESVILLE.

The fact that Harvey Bennett, the twelve-year-old runaway held at police headquarters, came from Whitesville, as he claimed, was established this morning, and the boy was sent on his way home.

The police planned to send Harvey to Whitesville yesterday afternoon, but hesitated to take that action because the failure of the Asbury Park police to find any trace of the boy's people in Whitesville made it probable that the boy was telling a fake story for the purpose of getting to teh shore. This morning a reporter who knows the Whitesville neighborhood thoroughly questioned Harvey at police headquarters. His answers established the fact that he knew the town, and convinced the police that he had told the truth. Fare to Whitesville was given him and Detective McCarthy put him aboard the cars.

No word of the lad's disappearance from home has been given the Whitesville or Asbury Park police, and the authorities here regard the indifference of the boy's people to his whereabouts as corroboration of his story of ill-treatment at the hands of his stepmother. If his account of his home life is true Harvey will probably get a whaling when he reaches Whitesville. He didn't look very cheerful when he started homeward.

ANNIVERSARY SUPPER.

Planned by First M. E. Church Society.

Following the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church, at Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon, the members of the Women's Home Missionary Society held a meeting to plan for a silver anniversary supper to be held in the chapel on Friday, November 10. This will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the general society and the members of the local organization will observe it.

In connection with the supper, there will be a fine entertainment. Mrs. E. Clark, Jr., as president of the society, has charge of the entertainment and Mrs. J. M. McNaughton is chairman of the committee on the supper. Those in charge will have another meeting on Tuesday to further the arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reimbach, of Newark, have returned home after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heilman, of Regent street.

WOMEN'S CLUB TO MEET

State Federation Convention to be Held at Elizabeth Oct. 27 and 28.

INTEREST MANIFESTED

Plainfield Organizations to be Represented — Entertainment Planned—Outline of Work.

At the annual convention of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs which is to be held at Elizabeth October 27 and 28, three new directors, each to serve three years, are to be elected at the meeting, and the nominating committee has sent the list of candidates for these offices to the clubs a few days in advance of the convention. Five names have been placed on the list for the three directors, leaving the sixth to be filled by nomination from the floor or the three elected from the five candidates, as the convention may decide.

The Monday Afternoon Club and the Rasores Club, both of this city, will be represented at the sessions.

Two clubs of Newark, one in Hoboken, one of Elizabeth, and one in Morristown are on the list. The nominees are Miss Eleanor B. Jenkinson, of the Women's Club, of Newark; Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of the Women's Club of Hoboken; Mrs. M. W. Halsey, Over the Tea Cups, Elizabeth; Mrs. W. T. Coghlan, Current News, Morristown, and Mrs. M. H. Warner, Salmagundi, Newark. Each is a capable worker, and none of them has served in any official capacity in the State club work, although they are all well known in their own homes and clubs for efficiency and executive ability. The First Presbyterian church has been selected for the sessions and luncheon will be served nearby. Mrs. David Miller is the chairman of the arrangements, and Mrs. C. J. Silvers chairman for luncheon.

To the president, Mrs. A. J. Newberry, and the chairman of the programme committee, Mrs. Mary B. Kingsley, of Hoboken, have been given the work of arranging the two days' programme. Other members have been consulted and it has been decided to have sociology and education the topics for consideration. Papers and talks by those who have given time and study to these subjects are to be part of each day's session. Of course each of the several departments will report, and Miss Mary McKeen, who was president before Mrs. Newberry was elected, will give impressions of the great meeting of the National Educational Association held last July. A talk, "Progress in the Art of Living," by Miss Barrows, of the School of Domestic Science, and a paper on the aims and purposes of the Consumers' League will be part of the programme.

One of the interesting talks of the convention will be given by Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, a former president of the Federation.

Mrs. Williamson will return October 20 from a summer in Europe. While away she has visited many of the industrial farms and colonies of the Continent, and she will tell the club women about these reforms.

RETURNS FROM LONG TRIP.

Robert Pruden Home After Spending Fourteen Weeks in Travel.

Robert Pruden, of East Third street, has returned home after a trip lasting fourteen weeks in search of healtful recreation. The early part of the time was spent in the upper Adirondacks and about Lake Placid. From there he went to Montreal and then sailed for Europe. He passed a month sightseeing in various parts of Wales and visiting the places of historical interest in London, returning last week from Liverpool on the Lucania.

The fact of his being a representative of Young America gained for Mr. Pruden a hearty welcome everywhere while abroad. Though with strangers the greater part of the time, he was accorded hospitality of the sort that in years gone by made the Southern States a haven for the traveler. This was especially true of the people in Wales, where he found "the latch-string always on the outside."

Shafting Broke; Plant Shut Down.

A section of the shafting about the main wheels of the Levering & Garrigues shop in Dunellen broke yesterday afternoon, and compelled a shutdown of the plant. The broken ends whirled around wildly before the power was shut off and several of the workmen narrowly escaped injury.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The borough is after the P. S. C. with a sharp stick for its slowness in getting the gas mains laid. There is a suspicion that the company doesn't intend to fulfill the contract, at least until it gets good and ready, which is apt to be a good deal later than the Council or citizens desire. In New Market, too, the company has been very slow, and the citizens there are beginning to talk of it above a murmur. The Township Committee may move in the matter, as the borough fathers have.

Much success for the Christian Culture Training classes at the Presbyterian church is indicated. The course of study is arranged under four heads: Historical, doctrinal, Biblical and practical. A lot of Deegan's friends are anxious to see him pitch and it is for this reason also that Mr. Daab will use him.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of 86 Summit avenue, Plainfield, N. I used plasters but they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling unusually bad when my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills and they were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS.

Eggerding's cigars have stood the test of the most exacting smokers. It is because they are made only of pure tobacco leaf.

Charles F. Stahl, of Somerset street, is a builder of wide experience. He makes a specialty of residential work. He will furnish estimates upon request.

Now is the time for men to think about a new derby or soft hat and fall neckwear and underclothing. The place to get them is at U. B. Crane's West Front street haberdashery. None but the best sold.

The electrical work done by William H. Pope, of North avenue, will pass the most critical examination by experts. He knows the business from start to finish. Consult him when you are ready to give out that contract.

E. A. Craig, of East Front street, is an expert electrician and is competent to undertake any contract. The workmen in his employe are careful and painstaking and never do bungling jobs. Supplies may be ordered by telephone.

It pays to buy good shoes. There is no sense in getting footwear of inferior grades because it is cheap at the start. The Sorosis shoe sold by A. E. and A. L. Giddes, of West Front street, is one that will positively give you full value for your money.

Falling leaves and chilly evenings remind us all that fall is with us once again. At the same time it might be well to recall that I. H. Boehm is ready for the fall trade with a large line of middleweight comfortables, underclothing and dress goods. There is always something new and up to date to be found in the various departments, so drop in and look around.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hurst, of East Sixth street, have returned from a visit with Brooklyn relatives.

Mrs. Mary C. Firstbrook and daughter, Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., are spending a few days with Trenton relatives.

Dr. M. A. Carman and family, of Franklin place, are soon to remove to Florida to remain permanently. They will make their home at a point forty miles south of Tampa.

Fred Tanner has resigned his position at Pond's in order to accept a similar one with a concern at Newark.

Garland H. Mourning, a student at Cornell College, Ithaca, is making a study of machinery at Pond's to complete a course in mechanics.

AMUSEMENTS.

In the way of a dramatic feast Theodore Kremer's new and original melodrama, "Queen of the Convicts," is pronounced strong and appetizing meat, plentifully spiced throughout four acts and eleven scenes with clean comedy and cute fun. The title is appropriate, as suggesting the incidents of devoted but impulsive and credulous love, specious villainy, reckless passion, base treachery and heartless deception upon which it is founded, and the constantly deepening shadows of which are lightened by interspersed laughter, and finally dissipated by the confusion and punishment of crime, and the triumph of truth and justice. The "Queen of the Convicts" comes to the New Plainfield theatre Saturday, matinee and night.

There are many exciting situations and interesting scenes that appeal to the emotions of the heart in "The Village Parson," which begins an engagement at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The play is built with much cleverness and effect, depicting the life of a clergyman whose happiness has been clouded by supposed unfaithfulness of his wife. The plot brings out a rascally lawyer, whose sole ambition is to separate husband and wife, so that he may gain her love and fortune. In this he has been assisted by his brother, for whom he has little or no respect. In order to accomplish his purpose of deceitfulness, he sends an incriminating letter to the wife which by chance falls into the hands of the parson. The parson, whose whole heart has been wrapped up in his wife's welfare, changes on reading its contents. The wife, noble and true, clings to her husband, who spurns her from him, and a very strong scene between them is the result. As the play progresses, it finally brings about a joyful reconciliation and the guilty are punished. The play is elaborately put on in four acts with genuine comedy neatly interwoven.

David Proctor and the original London company in "A Message from Mars" is the New Plainfield theatre's announcement for Friday night. The play scored a tremendous success first in London and then in New York. It is the story of the change wrought in an extremely self-centered man of leisure, whose disregard of the desires of others is illustrated in many incidents. When the victims of his selfishness depart to a ball he is taught a number of lessons by a messenger from the planet Mars and his complete cure gradually effected. The stage is suddenly wrapped in darkness, and when almost instantly the scene is lighted again, the back wall of the room has gone and a tall man in unearthly dress stands in a ray of light upon the stage. This is a Messenger from Mars, who at once details the superior virtues of the Marsians, and his own punishment for the crime of selfishness for which a judge on his planet sentenced him to convert the most selfish man on the despised earth, before allowed to return. He has learned Parker is that man. In ordinary argument he proves to be no match for the logical Parker, but the superiority of the Marsians in some weird power enables him to force this inhabitant of earth into doing all sorts of good deeds. These, however, fail to cure him until he is stricken with poverty, hunger and the world's scorn, and is thereby spiritually born again. The effects by which the power of the Marsians is exhibited, the rapid and invisible changes of scene, the uncanny conversion of Parker from a well dressed man into a ragged tramp, the electric dances of tables and chairs are even in these days triumphs of mechanical skill, and Parker's responses to the invisible current of argument that is applied to his nerves, form a charming piece of fantastic acting.

Joseph Arthur's drama of metropolitan life, entitled "The Still Alarm," with its real fire engine and snorting horses, will make the small boys of Harlem gape when it is produced at Proctor's 125th Street theatre next Monday. "The Still Alarm" is always a lodestone attraction in the uptown Proctor house and its rampant sensationalism, with Jack Manly, the New York fireman, as the central figure of heroism, refreshes jaded theatregoers of Yorkville and the Bronx. All the realistic adjuncts of this famous piece will be reproduced in this engagement. In the company are William J. Kelley, as Jack Manly; Beatrice Morgan, as Eleanor Fordham; Paul McAllister, as John Bird; James Wilson, as Doc Wilbur; Agnes Scott, as Cad Wilbur, and Mr. Aiken, Mr. Arthur, Mr. Hill and Mr. James are also in the cast.

Divides $44,0000 Between Two.

Jersey City, Oct. 11.—The will of the late Maria Cooper, of Kearny, was admitted to probate in the Hudson county surrogate's office yesterday. The beneficiaries are John H. and Fred W. Cooper, who are named as executors, and will divide between themselves $40,000 in realty and $4,000 personal property. Most of the real estate is located in Kearny.

Midway between the Summer days, when Old Sol kept things tolerably warm, and the Winter ones, when the furnace makes an effort to do the same thing, there is a chilly spell. Then it's up to the Gas Heater. The Gas Heater is a small cylinder stove that consumes little gas and radiates much heat. We sell them at $1.50 including connections and tubing. POLITICAL TIPS.

No public betting on the result of the New York municipal election has been reported, but in private wagers the odds on the re-election of McClellan range from 4 to 5 to 1. It is reported that Little Tim Sullivan is offering to wager $10,000 to $2,000 that McClellan will be re-elected. Sporting men say that the odds will probably be 10 to 1 before Election Day.

The radical Democrats of New York last night decided to nominate William R. Hearst for Mayor, John Ford for Controller and John G. Phelps Stokes for President of the Board of Aldermen. These men will be placed in nomination at the convention of the Municipal Ownership League at Carnegie Hall tomorrow night. All question about Mr. Heart's acceptance of the nomination for Mayor was dispelled when Justice Samuel Seabury read to the Astor House Committee of Seventeen a letter from Congressman Hearst accepting the proffered nomination. The meeting of the committee was held at No. 235 Broadway.

Samuel E. Renner, of Weehawken, reiterated yesterday the charge he made at the Republican county committee meeting at Lincoln Hall, Jersey City, that Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City, received $1,500 from ex-United States Senator James Smith during the first campaign in which Fagan was elected Mayor. Mayor Fagan publised a card last Monday denying that he had ever received money from ex-Senator Smith. Renner said yesterday he was aware the charge was actionable, and he invited the Mayor to sue him for damages on condition that the Mayor would join him in a petition to the court to try the case before election. Renner said he was "good for any amount of damages that might be awarded" and that his property is in his own name.

The Game Pleased Them.

Included in the large delegation from this city that viewed the Athletic-Giant baseball game at New York yesterday was a party consisting of Manager Counihan and Treasurer Cunningham, of the Plainfield theatre; Chief Woolston, of the borough; Charles Woolston and Jerome W. Leary. The result of the struggle was a source of enjoyment to Messrs. Counihan and Cunningham, who are Athletic backers with a vengeance, it being their old home team. To show his appreciation Mr. Counihan entertained the others with a theatre party in the evening at the New York, where they enjoyed "The Ham Tree."

DR. JACKSON TO LEAVE

Resigns Mount Olive Baptist Church After Eight Years' Service.

GOES TO NEW YORK

Factor Among the Colored People Here Accepts Call to Waverly Place Baptist Church in New York.

Announcing to his congregation that he believed a call he had received from the Waverly Place Baptist church, New York, was of Divine origin, Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church, informed the members last night that he would accept.

A meeting had been called to act upon his resignation tendered Sunday evening, but the officials found themselves unable to do so. Following a discussion, they decided to leave the question of retiring or remaining with Dr. Jackson, and he held to his original intention. The brethren expressed regret, but accepted his decision.

Dr. Jackson has been pastor of Mount Olive church for the past eight years, coming here from Appalachicola, Fla. In that time he has done good work for the betterment of the congregation and has made the church independent of the First Baptist members, who were its sponsors. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Guadalute College, Texas.

The congregation of the Waverly Place church is a large one and offers a large field for Dr. Jackson's abilities. He will remain in Plainfield until after the first of the coming year, devoting his energies in the meantime to clearing Mount Olive entirely from debt.

Wants Legal Advice.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly tell me through the columns of your paper if damages can be recovered from a property owner, who has in front of his property, a broken sidewalk, so much out of order that it cannot be property cleaned of snow and ice after a snow storm. I fell last winter on this same sidewalk, and broke a bone that has caused me much trouble, and I believe I have received permanent injury. If damages can be recovered, how should I proceed to recover the same? If you can give me any information I shall be very grateful.

Respectfully,

ARCANUMITES ARE VERY MUCH ANGERED

COUNCILS ON BRINK OF REVOLT AGAINST RULINGS OF SUPREME BODY

Newark, Oct. 11.—The thirty-three Royal Arcanum delegates who teended the meeting of protest at 8 Central avenue, Saturday night, are said to have been worked up to a high pitch of resentment over the alleged enforcement of a gag rule declared to have been instigated by Supreme Regent Howard E. Wiggans, of Rome, N. Y., and put in the shape of a veiled threat by Grand Regent James Rodgers, of Cranford. The meeting, which was one of the many being held throughout the country in connection with the protest of the national executive committee of the associated councils, was held behind locked doors. David T. Howell, of Woodside Council, presided.

Mr. Howell said yesterday he had learned that Grand Regent Rogers had telegraphed to many of the council delegates that calling meetings of protest was entirely irregular; that it was a violation of the supreme rulings of the body, and intimated that delegates who took part made themselves liable to suspension. Mr. Howell asserted that he had received a letter from the grand regent calling his attention to an order issued by Supreme Regent Wiggins that the committee which had issued the call for the meeting rescind it and withdraw their names from circulars issued.

In order to comply with the technicality the gathering was designated an adjourned meeting, and it was intimated that the delegates were under no restraint in making clear opposition to the attitude taken by the Supreme Council. Outside of the alleged attempts to gag protests, the order of the Supreme Council to the effect that hereafter no council shall be permitted to appropriate moneys from its treasury without the sanction of the national body, caused the most bitter acrimony. The right to distribute their general funds for such purposes as the individual councils may deem proper was considered inviolable and expressions against the restraint instituted by the Supreme Council in this respect took the form of an open declaration, it is said, that councils would spend their funds as they saw fit. It was held that they had as much right to do this as the Supreme Council had to spend Arcanum money defending litigation brought against the order by the national executive commitee.

It was decided that, pending the litigation in the courts of Massachusetts, members should pay all sums required of them, but should refuse to sign the blanks provided by the Supreme Council, because, it is declared, they provide for the surrender of benefit certificates and impliedly involve an assent to the change in the rates of assessment.

Steps were also taken to increase the litigation fund which will be used in the contest in Massachusetts. The delegates will meet again November 11.

An Excellent Course.

Charles L. Lewis, who is a member of the star course committee of the Y. M. C. A., believes that the local association presents this year the finest course of entertainments ever provided. Mr. Lewis has had many years' experience in lyceum work and is well qualified to judge of the merits of the course. The other members of the star course committee are Henry M. Maxson, chairman; Curtis M. Thorpe, B. VanD. Hedges, M. D., and F. R. Stevens. Particulars will be found in the advertising columns.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FOR FLOWER LOVERS.

The weather of the past week has been a boon to flower gardens, and despite the lateness of the season, many of the plants continue to bloom in great profusion. Of course, there are some that have passed their blooming period, but the hydrangeas have shown no apparent falling off in growth, and the bright colors of the geraniums and scarlet sage still lend a beauty to the numerous beds which could not have been surpassed even when the season was young.

Within the next three weeks, however, these beds will gradually be shorn of their beauty, as by that time Jack Frost will probably have made his appearance, which puts an end to the lives of the outdoor plants. It, therefore, behooves cultivators to be up and doing if flowers are to be grown this winter. Already many of the anxious ones have made a beginning in the planting of bulbs or the repotting of other plants, and in many homes the harissi and candidum lilies are now reposing in receptacles. Those who fail to grow these plants during the winter make a great mistake, as no more fragrant flowers can be raised than these.

As to the growing of bulbs, cultivators say that one of the most essential things is to furnish them with proper conditions for root growth before they are exposed to the light and warmth of a room. If this is not done, then plants fail to bloom, and in almost every instance become dwarfed and present an unsightly appearance, says the Baltimore Herald. In order to allow these plants to grow roots after being potted, set in a cool, dark cellar for at least four weeks. Some growers cover the pots with a damp piece of old carpet and do not disturb it under three weeks. At the end of this period an investigation will probably show a green tip pushing its way above the soil. This means that the growth has begun. It is then necessary to bring the plant gradually into the light, and when first exposed it might be well to provide a paper covering to stimulate the growth of the stem. Afterward place directly in the sunlight. When blooms appear the plants will do better if put in a cool place, as they emit a greater degree of fragrance.

One of the finest plants for pot culture is the buttercup oxalis. In planting, place the bulb in a five-inch pot in good rich soil, with proper drainage. After planting the flower should be set in a shady place until the approach of cold weather, when it should be brought inside, and after watering well, give plenty of sunlight. The blooms, which are of brilliant buttercup yellow, frequently fold up at night and open again the next morning. The young plants of the salvia can be cut away from the old ones now for winter use. After planting see that the red spider does not attack it.

Probably some of the plants that were potted earlier in the season have filled their old vessels with roots. Whether this is the case or not can be ascertained by examining them. Turn the plant out of the pot and see the condition of the roots. If the soil is well filled a larger pot is needed, and shift at once, but if the roots are scarce, it is a sign that the plant has still plenty of room. It is better to refrain from giving a plant a larger pot unless it is absolutely in need of it.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"What is it, Paul? Tell me!"

And then the lad, throwing himself on his face, seized in both his the trembling little hand. "My heart is not there!" he sobbed. "You know well where it is, but—my duty—." Affrighted now, she sought to draw away her hand, but he clung to it. "No, Nell, no!" he cried. "It's the first time I ever dared! It's the last time I ever may! I'm going, Nell; I've got to go, but remember, my heart isn't there. It's here—it's here with you!"

And then on a sudden he sprang to his feet, for voices, close at hand, broke the silence. Some one was climbing the pathway up the height. An instant of listening and Elinor, too, sprang to her feet.

"If you know he's going to join the rebel army and can prove it, why, that's enough," panted the first speaker. "The trouble is to prove it. Otherwise there's no law to hold him."

"Prove it! By heaven, Curtis, you make me swear!" was the vehement answer. "If our postmaster would only do his duty we could prove far more—that he's in the rebel service at this minute—that he's here a spy in our midst—sending notes of all our preparations and forces and numbers, and, just as Andre was hung on the Hudson 80 years ago, so should that young scoundrel hang here now. The laws of war the world over will tell you so."

And then scrambling to the crest, full in the light of the unclouded moon, the two climbers straightened up and stood face to face with the man of whom they were speaking, Elinor Benton clinging, trembling, in speechless indignation at his side.

For a moment there was awkward silence. Paul Ladue, with gleaming eyes stood squarely confronting the foremost, a portly man of 30 years, who was still breathing hard as the result of his climb. His companion, tall and spare and a few years older, slowly ranged himself alongside his friend and looked to him to speak. The stout man stared for a few seconds at the silent twain, partly to recover breath, partly to recover wits. Finally he lamely said, "Oho!"

Then finding the steadfast gaze of Ladue's burning brown eyes hard to bear, he turned to his companion. "Rather a—coincidence, isn't it?" said he. This remark, too, fell flat, for no response followed. It became necessary to say something more to relieve the situation, and obviously the gentleman knew not what to say. If there lived in this western community a man Paul Ladue held in especial disfavor, it was George McKinnon, junior partner in the firm of Benton, Gray & McKinnon, attorneys and counselors at law, and it was George McKinnon who stood there in the flesh and who, but a moment before, had denounced him as deserving the fate of the spy. Ample reason had he to hate McKinnon for, ever since Elinor's return the previous autumn from a visit to relatives in the east, that energetic practitioner had been a constant caller at the Benton homestead, and despite the fact that Elinor had not yet finished her school days, was persistent in attentions that showed to all society he had become infatuated with her radiant beauty—that the man of 30 eagerly sought the girl of 17 as his wife. On the other hand, McKinnon had noted with jealousy unspeakable, that the frank, joyous, boy and girl friendship that had existed throughout the lad's school days had given place to the half shy, half hesitant, yet strangely sweet relationship of early love, pure yet passionate. McKinnon was a keen student, a rising man at the bar, a brilliant "jury" lawyer and just the one needed to strengthen the somewhat slow and ponderous combination of the old firm. Benton, a lawyer of the old school, held his young partner in high esteem if not, indeed, in a certain awe, due to the daring and successful methods that had distinguished him ever since his call to the bar. On the other hand, he was not well pleased with his son's choice of an intimate. Paul Ladue was a dreamer, an idler, a poet perhaps what the stern, hard-headed old delver in facts and figures called "a lapdog sort of a fellow." And now the war had come. The flag had been lowered in defeat at Sumter. The men of Massachusetts had been mobbed in the streets of Baltimore. The first levies in the far west had clashed with the enemy in Missouri, and hostile armies were arrayed upon the sacred soil of Virginia. Now when the young men of the Badger state were flocking to the reciting offices, and companies and regiments were being filled to overflowing, when Damon, brimming with patriotic zeal and energy, was seeking a commission in the union volunteers, Pythias, Paul Ladue, was known to be writing frequently, doubtless urgently, to his native state—the state that had banished and impoverished him, yet could not banish from his soul the old time loyalty and love. It had amazed and offended many of these, his northern friends who had welcomed and cheered him in the hour of his adversity. It had scandalized one man who had never shown him sympathy at all—the man now standing uneasily before him, unable to face the stern glitter in his speaking eyes. It was finally Paul who spoke:

"You say the postmaster should do his duty, Mr. McKinnon," said he, contempt and hot hatred in his trembling voice. "By opening my letters, do you mean? Somebody has been doing that already, and I believe you know—who!"

CHAPTER II.

A SNAKE IN THE GRASS.

June the first came in with the radiant sunshine blazing on bunting. The citizens thronged the broad thoroughfares to give a parting cheer to the second Badger regiment marching away to the war. The dusk and the dew came settling down as the tail lights of the last section of the troop train drew slowly along the sweeping curve to the south, and then the throngs that had shouted themselves hoarse were easily marshaled into an impromptu mass meeting. The governor and the mayor were to speak, and brief addresses, so said the handbills, might be expected from such brilliant orators as the Hon. George McKinnon and others equally well known. A roar of cheers about the temporary stage on Market Square greeted the executive of the state—a roar distinctly heard far on the portico of the modest home, where Paul Ladue, looking pale and weak, sat with his slim hand clasped in that of his faithful friend, Fred Benton.

The long suspected enmity of McKinnon had burst at last into flame, and the younger man found himself suddenly involved in a whirl of trouble. The elder Benton, after a conference with his junior partner, had been moved to say to Elinor that he forbade her receiving or being seen with Paul [illegible] Ladue he wrote a cutting [illegible] him of having taken advantage of his intimacy in the household to seek the love and destroy the peace of mind of his daughter. Then stinging articles had found their way into an evening paper, plainly pointing to Ladue as a rebel sympathizer and one holding treasonable correspondence with the enemy. Then certain creditors had made a combined onslaught on his failing, heartsore father. Ladue had gradually built up a very fair business and had won the kindly regard of the community. All on a sudden his store was shunned, save by collectors, and one night, after a meeting at which McKinnon was the principal speaker, the front windows were smashed in by half a dozen drunken patriots and Paul, seated at a desk over the books of the firm, was struck in the temple and felled by a stone. The incident brought about a temporary revulsion of feeling among right-thinking people and Fred Benton had found and soundly thrashed one of the gang of assailants. But little substantial comfort could come to the Ladues, for the old man had lost his nerve. He seemed broken and bewildered. It cut him to the heart to find that at this critical time in his career, the firm to present and press the claim of his creditors was that of Benton, Gray & McKinnon. He had the shattered windows boarded up and refused at first to re-open his store. The men who had been his best friends and advisers, as luck would have it, had already gone to the front as officers of volunteers. He was crushed and sorely hurt and stung, and the well meant words of sympathy spoken by a few neighbors failed to reassure him.

It was then that Fred Benton had his first difference with his father.

"The whole outrage, sir," said he, "is the direct result of your partner's efforts. I hold George McKinnon responsible for every misfortune that has befallen the Ladues in this town, and the only reason I don't thrash him as I did that blackguard Irishman is that he is your partner."

ACTRESS FIGHTS TO GET HER CHILD

CHARGED WITH CRUELTY, THE FATHER ALSO ACCUSES MOTHER.

Mrs. Esther Butterfield, an actress, whose stage name is Julia Morton, was petitioner Monday in proceedings before Vice Chancellor Bergen, at Somerville, in an attempt to secure the custody of her son, Harold E., eight years old, who has been in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williamson, of South Bound Brook, since trouble arose between his parents, both of whom are on the stage.

The petitioner asserted her husband left her before the child was born, but had lived with her a short time after that. She said that she had been obliged to support herself and the boy. First she had found employment in an office and afterward had gone on the stage. She said she had brought suit for divorce against her husband on statutory grounds.

Of late, she said, she had not been allowed to see her son. She had a home with her sister and was prepared to care for the boy and send him to school.

William E. Butterfield, the father, swore he had contributed largely to the care of the child, that the mother had no affection for her offspring and that her associates and habits were not such that she should have charge of the boy.

In an answer to the mother's petition Mr. and Mrs. Williamson alleged the boy had been allowed some years ago to visit his mother and when he returned to them he declared that he did not want to go back to his mother. He said his mother had locked him in a room and struck him on the head with a shoe box. He also alleged that his mother played cards and gambled with red and yellow chips.

It is alleged by the defense that Mrs. Butterfield wishes to obtain possession of the boy in order to enhance her chances of securing alimony. It is further alleged that she and five men went in an automobile to the Williamson home in South Bound Brook last Sept. 2, for the purpose of taking the child, but that neighbors came to the aid of Mrs. Williamson, who was alone with the boy, and drove away the intruders.

At the conclusion of the hearing Vice Chancellor Bergen decided the child should remain in the custody of Mr. and Mrs. Williamson until Mrs. Butterfield's suit for divorce in the New York court has been decided. Then she may re-enter her petition and an application for the custody of the child will be disposed of on its merits.

BLACK SCORES ALL CORPORATE GRAFT

Charles C. Black, recent Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, opened Monday night the party campaign in Essex county in a speech delivered to a big audience at the Orange street auditorium, Newark. Mr. Black was given a big ovation, as was Julian A. Gregory, who is Everett Colby's adversary, and the other candidates.

Mr. Black reaffirmed the principle of equal taxation, and declared that while the campaign of last year was not successful the principle on which it was fought was not defeated, but lives a vital issue until it shall find a place on the statute books.

Mr. Black said:

"The events of the last year and the subsequent ones of the spring and summer, following in quick succession, have demonstrated to the people of the State a peril and danger that threaten the life of the Republic. The exposure in the city of Philadelphia, the secret alliance of the great insurance companies of the city of New York with the party in power, and the managers of trust funds, for political purposes, if not checked will destroy popular government.

"It is the mission of the Democratic party to elevate the standards of public life, to destroy the alliance that now exists between the public service and railroad corporations and the party boss, to restore to the people representative government. Until this is done popular measures, such as equal taxation and limited franchises are idle dreams and academic discussions.

"The time has come for the Democratic party to add to its issue the passage of a corrupt practice act by which it shall be made a crime for a corporation manager to contribute trust funds for political purposes and to compel the party organizations to publish a list of their subscriptions and expenditures.

"Corporations doing business or chartered under the State violating its provisions should be subject to forfeiture, and a defeated candidate should be given a right of action and forfeiture against his successful rival when the act has been violated."

Candidate Gregory took "Thou shalt not bluff" as a text to ridicule the Colby reform movement, declaring it to be a collection of all the disgruntled ex-office-holders of the Republican party in Essex.

Electricity for the Erie.

Newark, Oct. 11.—"Electricity will play a great part in the future development of railroads," said President Underwood, of the Erie, yesterday. "It now takes five engines to get a freight train over the fifteen miles of road to the top of the mountains between Susquehanna and Deposit. There will be a great saving in operating expenses when the Summit electrical plant is ready. A committee is considering the electrical equipment of the line. At first this equipment will be in suburban territory. It has been demonstrated that electrical service is all right there. MINISTER DECLARES SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS TALK TOO MUCH ABOUT DRESS

Rev. J. W. Lissenden, of Hamilton square, created a sensation yesterday morning before the Mercer County Sunday School Convention, held at Trenton, in the Third Presbyterian church, when he generally pronounced the Sunday school system of the day as inefficient. His complaints were that Sunday school teachers talk too much about dresses and theatre to their classes, and too little real religion. He said that the Sunday school is looked upon too much as a social place. Our only salvation in our efforts to save the children is in sanctified teachers, teachers who love to go to Sunday school and to save souls. He also condemned facilities for Sunday school work in what he termed "Magnificent barns called churches."

TWENTY-ONE-YEAR-OLD SON THE BEST MAN AT HIS MOTHER'S SECOND WEDDING

With her son Matthew, twenty-one years old, acting as best man, Mrs. Bridget Agnes Kiernan, widow of Charles J. Kiernan, of Newark, was married to Patrick Francis McQuade, of the same place, in St. James' Catholic church, in that city, Monday evening. Very Rev. Dean Cody officiated.

More than 1,000 persons witnessed the ceremony, which was followed by a supper at the home of Michael McEnerney, in honor of the bride and groom, who were kept busy acknowledging the congratulations of scores of friends. Mr. McEnerney and James Davenport made addresses, and there was singing, too. When the couple started off on their honeymoon trip they were deluged with a great shower of rice. The bride was married in a gray traveling gown. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie T. Clark, and she was attired in white. Mr. and Mrs. McQuade went to Atlantic City, and upon their return will live in Passaic avenue.

ADDIS DAMAGE SUIT BEING HEARD TODAY

ASKS $1,000 FROM SAMUEL RUSHMORE FOR INJURIES RECEIVED.

The $1,000 damage suit of William H. Addis, of East Second street, against Samuel W. Rushmore, of the Rushmore Dynamo Works, which was begun in the Supreme Court at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was continued this morning. Mr. Addis, who is represented by W. A. Coddington, of the firm of, Reed & Coddington, seeks to recover damages for injuries sustained in an auto-bicycle collision on Richmond street on May 28, 1904. He claims that his injuries were such that he was under a physician's care and detained at his home for some time.

Mr. Addis was riding a bicycle at the time and Mr. Rushmore was driving his auto. Both were going in the same direction. Mr. Addis claims that he rang his bell, while Mr. Rushmore says that he was forced on the wrong side of the road to escape a heavily loaded wagon which was also going in the same direction. He says that he blew his horn and that Mr. Addis was looking in an opposite direction at the time, his attention being occupied with something else. His contention is that Mr. Addis ran into the rear wheel of his machine and was thrown off by the jar.

Several witnesses have been called, including Dr. G. W. Endicott, who attended Mr. Addis. It is understood that Mr. Rushmore offered to pay the injured man's doctors' bill and for the time he lost, but that it was refused. Then followed the suit for $1,000 damages. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh represents Mr. Rushmore.

FOR PENNY POST.

Heaton Renews Campaign in Its Favor in England.

London, Oct. 11.—John Henniker Heaton, advocate of postal reforms, has written a long letter to the newspapers, again advocating a world-wide penny post. He quotes a number of prominent men who are willing to join the efforts to establish this reform. He refers to a discussion he had in June with John Wanamaker, ex-Postmaster General of the United States, regarding which he says:

"Mr. Wanamaker visited Mr. Reid, the American Ambassador, and I know the result of their deliberations will give new interest to the movement, and show an example of public spirit desrving of the highest praise."

The Times editorially supports the movement. It attaches importance to Mr. Wanamaker's interest, and adds that the proposal must commend itself in the highest degree to the generous mind of President Roosevelt. It could not be initiated in any more appropriate way than by an agreement between the two great Anglo-Saxon communities.

Mrs. Aldrich Gets Alimony.

Vice-Chancellor Pitney, in Newark, yesterday, signed an order granting to Mrs. Lillian Aldrich temporary alimony of $2 a week and counsel fee of $30 from her husband, George S. Aldrich, formerly secretary of the late Mayor Seymour, of Newark, and now of Worcester, Mass. Aldrich applied for divorce June 7 last, naming as corespondent Leon S. Wilson, of Keene, N. H., who is his cousin. The Aldrichs were married in 1890. A letter, which Aldrich claims to have found under his wife's pillow, according to an affidavit, was written to her by Wilson, and is sauce for divorce. Mrs. Aldrich denies the allegations.

TOO MANY WIVES.

Perry Had One in Port Jervis, Another in Fillmore.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Wilbert Perry, a former resident of Port Jervis, was arrested here at his mother's home on Sunday night by Chief of Police Collier, on a bench warrant charging him with bigamy. Several years ago Perry married a Miss Hunt of this town. Sometime afterward he abandoned her and went to Fillmore, Allegany county, N. Y., where he obtained employment on the Central Railroad. While there he married a respectable young woman of that place.

All went well until a few weeks ago, when Mrs. Perry No. 2 discovered that her husband had another wife living. Perry suddenly disappeared and came to Port Jervis, where his mother resides. Learning his whereabouts, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest by the Allegany authorities and last night Deputy Sheriff Alexander McMarty, of Allegany county, left Port Jervis on the Erie train with the prisoner.

Miantonomo Tribe is in better condition than it ever has been, which means that it is very strong financially and numerically. Four applications were received and one member was reinstated last night.

JURY GAVE ADDIS $500

W. A. Coddington Secures Verdict for His Client After a Hard Fight.

AUTO HIT A BIKE

Suit Was Brought for $1,000 Damages — Many Witnesses on the Stand.

The case of William H. Addis against Samuel W. Rushmore, seeking to recover $1,000 damages for injuries received in an auto-bicycle collision on Richmond street, on May 28, 1904, was concluded yesterday afternoon in the Supreme Court at Elizabeth, the jury giving a verdict of $500 for the plaintiff.

Among the witnesses were William H. Addis himself, who testified to his impaired health, and the fact that he was put to considerable expense and loss of property by the accident; Dr. G. W. Endicott, who attended the injured man; Daniel McCarthy, Frank Schuck, James Davis, Herbert Gleason and James Brown, all employes at the Walter Scott Machine Printing Works, who testified to having seen the accident, in substantiation of Addis' story. In addition William Addis, Sr., father of the complainant, and Mrs. Barbara Addis, his wife, were called as witnesses.

Among the witnesses called by the defense were Samuel W. Rushmore, Patrolman Morris Higgins, Civil Engineer Frank J. Hubbard and Miss Margaret Cramer, the latter a trained nurse in the office of Dr. Endicott.

A remarkable feature of the case was that the counsel for the defense was unable to secure on the record a single exception or adverse ruling from the court against the plaintiff's counsel.

The counsel for the plaintiff, it is said, offered to settle the case a year ago for $500 without costs, but according to yesterday's verdict the defendant will have to pay the $500 and costs, which amounts to about $200.

During the course of the trial yesterday, there was a dramatic scene when W. A. Coddington, of counsel for the complainant, held up to view of the court, the wheel which Mr. Addis rode the day of the accident. It was a complete wreck and was considered strong evidence in favor of the plaintiff. There was also exhibited Mr. Rushmore's handkerchief, which was used by him in stopping the flow of blood from Mr. Addis' cuts. Mr. Marsh referred to this as the bloody shirt."

It was the contention of the plaintiff that it was Mr. Addis' fault that he was injured, and that the injured man rode directly into the back wheel of the auto, after it was stopped by the owner to avoid a collision with another rig. The case was bitterly contested throughout by counsel on both sides, W. A. Coddington for the plaintiff and Craig A. Marsh for the defendant.

The case will be appealed by Mr. Rushmore. The application for a new trial will be made before the Supreme Court at Trenton at the November term.

MISS GOFF WEDS.

She Becomes the Wife of John Touhey.

Miss Susan Goff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Goff, of West Front street, and John Touhey, formerly of Newburg, now of New York, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's church in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Father Bogan.

Teh bride was gowned in white lace over white silk, and she was attended by her cousin, Miss Catherine Kirkner, of New York, who also wore a gown of white lace over white silk. Both wore large picture hats. The bride carried a prayer-book and the bridesmaid carried roses. The best man was Andrew Driscoll, of Elizabeth.

Following the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held for the relatives and intimate friends. The bride was the recipient of a large collection of handsome gifts. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Harlem.

Dunellen Negro Jailed.

Isaac Bonny, colored, an employe in the Dunellen brickyard, was sent to the county jail for sixty days by Recorder Campbell, of Dunellen, yesterday, for fighting and making threats to kill against Jacob Tuck, a fellow employe. Bonny is said to be a "bad nigger," and has a police record.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair have returned from their summer home at Belmar, and are again at home on East Second street, both being improved in health.

MICHAEL QUINN GETS A GREAT BROOD MARE

OWNER OF AVON PARK STABLES SECURES LIVADIA, TURF ARISTOCRAT.

Michael Quinn, of Avon Park, has purchased Livadia, a thoroughbred of unusual pedigree, to use as a brood mare. Livadia is the finest bred mare ever brought into a local stable fro breeding purposes; her pedigree presents a dazzling array of names great in the annals of the trotting world. Her sire was Arion, son of Electioneer, and her dam Grayling, sired by Lord Russell, full brother to Maud S. Further down her family tree she again breeds back to the great trotting queen. Arion sold for $25,000 in his prime, and service from him was worth $2,500.

If blood counts for anything, the foal of Livadia will be worth having in any stable. Mr. Quinn's plan is to sell Livadia's children as colts, without going into the task and the expense of breaking and training. He has not decided where he will send the mare for service.

Livadia was bought through Adam Blair, at the noted Forbes stables, near Readville, the great harness racing track. Her price was $800.

Mr. Quinn is an ardent horseman of many years experience, and has bred many speedy racers and roadsters at his stable in Avon Park. He is in business as a blacksmith on East Fourth street, near Park avenue, and many Plainfielders are familiar with his face, and his shrewd, yet kindly, manner.

FUNERAL DIRGE IN MEMORY OF WESTFIELD

IT WILL BE IN THE PROGRAME AT THE BASEBALL-BAND CONCERT.

Benjamin La Vere, who is in charge of the arrangements for the concert to be given at Crescent Oval on Saturday prior to the baseball game between the Daabsters and the All-Plainfield team, has prepared an attractive programme. The concert will begin at 2 o'clock and will last for one hour; entertaining the fans while they are waiting for the great contest on the diamond. Mr. La Vere will use his regular band at this time, and in addition he has secured the services of Nick Parker and Eddie Weston, the popular vocalists, who will sing some of the latest compositions. These singers delighted thousands of people at the bands concerts last summer and all will be delighted to hear them again.

A feature of the programme will be the "Funeral March," by Chopin. This will be rendered in memory of the Westfield fans and out of respect for Manager Denman and his friends. It is requested that during the rendition the men will kindly remove their hats and the women will try and look solemn.

While one fan has contributed $50 toward the expense for the band and other fans have made contributions, there is still a small balance need to meet the expense, and Mr. La Vere would like to receive subscriptions to make up the required amount, about $20.

This is the programme to be presented:

March—"Pride of the Baritone." King
Concert Waltz—"Heidelberg." Mills
Medley—"Frost on the Pumpkin." VonTilzer
Vocal Solo—"A-Making Eyes." frw

This was the first drill since the introduction of the new system.

TO RACE POLO PONIES

Unusual Feature is Being Planned for Coming Matinee Meet.

SOCIETY INTERESTED

C. J. Fisk and H. P. Talmadge Signify Willingness to File Entries —Lakewood Ponies May Be in Event.

Arrangements for another matinee meet at the Driving Park are being made by the Driving Club. The date has not been fixed definitely, but the races will probably be held two weeks from next Saturday.

An event or unusual interest from the popular standpoint, as well as from that of horse lovers, is being considered for the coming meet. It is proposed, if entries enough can be carded, to hold a running race for polo ponies. It is more than probable that the event will be on the programme. Several men prominent in local society, owners of polo ponies, have signified their hearty interest in such an event, and are working to place it on the list. Among them are Charles J. Fisk, who owns two blooded ponies; H. P. Talmadge and Israel Goodwin.

Mr. Goodwin is the owner of a polo pony stable in Lakewood, where George Gould and his set have made polo the chief sport of the fashionable horsy ones. It is hoped to have one or more of the Gould horses and others from well known stables at Lakewood in the race. Mr. Goodwin has brought the nick of his ponies here and is getting it in shape for the race. If the event comes off William McDonough, of this city, an employe of Adam Blair, will ride the Goodwin horse.

It is the plan at present to make the race a sweepstakes of comfortable proportions. Some gentlemen jockeys, drafted from the younger set in local society, would probably figure in it.

Back of the race idea is a desire to introduce polo to local riders. Up to two years ago the young men of money and fashion here were confined to golf and tennis for outdoor sport. Then a number of them, under the leadership of Dr. Knott and kindred horse-loving spirits, formed the Watchung Hunt Club. The meets of the latter have grown so popular that the horsey set has become a decided factor in social life, and it is almost certain that if polo is introduced here it will speedily assume as large a place in fashionable amusements as riding to hounds.

CITY CONVENTION NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

DATE ORIGINALLY SET WAS ONE WEEK LATER.

The most important business transacted at the meeting of the City Republican Executive Committee last night was that changing the time for the city convention from Thursday, October 26, to Thursday, October 19, at 8 o'clock in the evening. The change was made because the hall cannot be secured for October 26. The convention will be held in the basement of Reform Hall.

At that time there will be nominated a candidate for tax collector, one member of the Board of Education, one member of the Board of Freeholders, to fill the unexpired term of Captain James Franklin Hubbard; three members of the Common Council at large. The First, Second and Third wards will be entitled to six delegates and the Fourth ward to nine delegates.

Ernest R. Ackerman resigned as a member of the finance committee and John W. Murray, Jr., was elected in his place. The other business of the evening was of a routine nature.

Templars Off for Shore.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., to the number of fifty, left Plainfield this morning on the 8:02 train for Atlantic City, where it will take part in the annual field day exercises of the order. The commandery was accompanied by Crescent Cornet Band, of Raritan, and the Sir Knights presented a fine appearance. At the North Avenue station the band rendered several popular selections to enliven the occasion.

In Justice Hand's Court.

Suit has been instituted in Justice Hand's court by Joseph V. D. Field, of the Brookside Stock Farm, against Mrs. Almira Morrison, of this city. It will be heard next Wednesday at 2 o'clock. J. Henry Crane represents the plaintiff and William Newcorn the defendant.

—Richard Warneck will open a first-class butcher shop at 160 Duer street on Saturday, the 14th instant.

NO DISEASED MEAT HERE

Butcher Notifies Board of Health of Some Bad Pork.

HE BURIED IT LATER

Vigorous Campaign to be Wagered Now Against Adulterated Foods, Drugs and Bad Meat.

Through the action of the Board of Health and the co-operation of a local butcher, the sale of a quantity of diseased pork was prevented on Tuesday. As a result the health authorities have the matter well in hand and there will be a thorough investigation of every market in the city and an inspection of the meats sold. A portion of the diseased pork has been sent to the State Board of Health for an analysis and a report is expected in a day or two.

The meat in question was secured by the butcher from a nearby farmer and the investigation thus far leads the health authorities to believe that the farmer did not realize the condition of the pork when he sold it while the butcher did not discover it until two days afterward. In the meantime he had sold some of the meat. As soon as he learned that the meat was not right he reported it to the Board of Health and then followed the investigation.

There was no disposition to prosecute the butcher, for he did all in his power to remedy the matter, and even went so far as to destroy all the pork from the hog in question, thus removing all possibility for further trouble. The farmer from whom it was purchased has been notified and he will be visited by Health Inspector Addis, who will make an inspection of the man's hogs to prevent a repetition of the affair.

With the meat obtained from the beef houses, a United States inspector is obliged to pass on it before it leaves the various stockyards and in this way the consumer is protected against meat not fit to eat.

The Board of Health now proposes to conduct a vigorous campaign against adulterated foods, drugs and bad meat, and William Addis, Sr., one of the sanitary inspectors for the Board of Health, has been appointed as inspector of foods, drugs, etc., for Plainfield, with all the powers and authority conferred by the State law, which provides for the purity of foods, beverages, confectionery, condiments, drugs and medicines.

All of the local butcher shops will be inspected and the sources of meat supply learned. In this way the Board of Health hopes to prevent the purchase or selling of meat that is not all right. In the case in question no bad effects resulted, the pork being cooked. This process had a tendency to offset it.

VETERANS OF 30TH REG'T MEET AT SOMERVILLE

NELSON RUNYON MADE VICE-PRESIDENT; SUCCESSOR TO CAPT. HUBBARD

The fifteenth annual reunion of the members of the Thirtieth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, of which the late Capt. J. F. Hubbard was president, was held in Somerville yesterday. It was a great success, and ninety-seven veterans, a number of them from Plainfield, who attended it enjoyed the gathering without measure.

The reunion was held in the Court House, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. A business session of the association was held first, at which Capt. James Vanderveer, of North Branch, was elected as the late Capt. Hubbard's successor. Nelson Runyon, of this city, was elected vice president. Capt. James Bowman, of South Branch, was chosen secretary and treasurer.

It was reported that nine members had died during the year, among them Capt. Hubbard. The date for future reunions was changed from the second Wednesday in October to the first Tuesday in September.

Judge L. H. Schenck made the welcome address to the association, and James B. Brown, of Somerville, responded. The veterans had dinner early in the afternoon, after the meeting. Frederick J. Pope, Esq., made the after-dinner address.

Death of Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Mary E. Harris, wife of Aleck Harris, died yesterday morning at her home in Lincoln. She was in her sixty-fourth year and had resided in that vicinity all her life. The funeral will be held from the home of her son, George W. Harris, at Lincoln, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

LAW DOGGED HYMEN

Stanischef is Arrested for Breach of Promise at Bride's Side.

IN JAIL TWO WEEKS

Couple Reunited Yesterday by Action of Judge Vail, Who Reduced Bail and Accepted Groom's Own Bond.

Joseph Stanischif, who was arrested on a capias warrant in a suit for $5,000 damages brought by Julia Agocheek and committed to jail in the absence of a $2,000 bail bond, was released yesterday on his own recognizance.

The proceedings that resulted in the man's release disclosed the fact that he was arrested a few hours after his marriage. The way in which he was separated from his bride had a good deal to do with Judge Vail's decision to release him.

Miss Agocheek had Stanischif arrested two weeks ago on a criminal warrant. She charged him with betraying her in Austria, and with breaking his promise to marry her on this side of the ocean. Stanischif was held for the Grand Jury on that charge and furnished $500 bail for his appearance. Almost immediately after the hearing it was decided by the plaintiff to abandon the criminal action and institute civil proceedings for the alleged breach of promise.

Stanischif, who had been living in Pennsylvania, was captured in this city because he came here to marry Miss Anna Dana. The morning after his arrest; not much later than 5 o'clock, he and Miss Dana went to St. Mary's church, and were married. A few hours later the papers in the suit for damages were drawn and the bridegroom was placed under arrest.

He was brought before Supreme Court Commissioner Angleman, who held him under $2,000 bail. The heavy bond was fixed because the plaintiff had heard that Stanischif intended to sacrifice the other bail and flee. The prisoner was unable to get a bondsman in the civil action and was accordingly committed. There was a scene at the station when, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Weaver, the prisoner said goodbye to his newly-made wife before starting for the county jail.

Lawyer John P. Owens appeared before Judge Vail yesterday to move that the capias proceedings be set aside. Lawyer William Newcorn, for the Agocheek girl, opposed the action. Mr. Owens made a strong point of the prisoner's separation from his wife. Judge Vail considered the matter over lunch time and in the afternoon he announced that the proceedings would stand, but the bail was cut in half and the prisoner's own recognizance accepted.

There was another scene of a different nature yesterday afternoon when Stanischif and his bride were reunited in this city.

RUNAWAY BACK ON THE HANDS OF THE POLICE

HARVEY BENNETT GOT ONLY AS FAR AS ELIZABETHPORT.

Like the storied cat, Harvey Bennett, the twelve-year-old Whitesville runaway, has come back. Harvey, after the police had spent three days in a painstaking establishment of the fact that he belonged near Asbury Park, was put on the railroad train with a ticket to the Park. Yesterday afternoon Harvey, sniffing and apologetic, reappeared at headquarters.

He said the conductor took his ticket and put him off at Elizabethport. Getting off at Elizabethport was all right on a trip to the Park, but the retention of the ticket was not. Finding himself ticketless, Harvey naturally turned in the direction of Plainfield, which held memories of full meals, with cake and other delights. Freight trains furnished the means of transportation. The police are now wondering just what there is in Harvey's case. They are skeptical of his story. They think he would rather not go home, and lost heart when he found himself halfway toward the whaling it is probable he will get if he reaches Whitesville. He will be taken to Whitesville by an officer. If his people won't receive him, he will be turned over to the local authorities.

Consider Murder Case.

The Grand Jury heard witnesses in the Scaduto murder case yesterday. Indictment is certain but the disposition of the indictment is a matter of doubt. J. P. Owens, counsel for Scaduto, thinks it will be quashed.

WANT SHRIEVALTY CANDIDATES NOW

DEMOCRATS ARE TALKING OF MOORE, RUSS AND M'CANDLESS.

The Democrats have not decided definitely upon their county ticket yet. Something will have to be done in this matter Friday night, at Elizabeth, however, when a meeting has been called, and conferences in the meantime with the various candidates, or men whom the party would like to have as candidates, will be had. In the event of Charles Moore not taking the nomination, Charles P. Russ or Joseph McCandless are likely to be named.

The county committee has not decided upon its candidates for the Senate yet, and there are two Assembly candidates yet to be selected. The only candidate who is positively known as in line and who is, by the way, working hard for delegates and supporters, is William DeWitt Stanford, of 646 Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth. The fact that Mr. Stanford comes out of the Singer shops and is immensely popular with the men there, seems to indicate, in the minds of the Democratic managers, that he will probably poll a heavy vote. Whether he will poll a winning vote or not will depend a great deal upon the strength of the men who are placed at the head of the ticket.

"The Democrats," a popular march which is now being whistled and sung in New York city, is the composition of Mr. Stanford, the Assembly candidate. He has composed a number of other songs.

STAR COURSE SERIES IS RICH IN PROMISE

COMING Y. M. C. A. ENTERTAINMENTS ARE OF THE HIGHEST CHARACTER.

No series of entertainments presented at the Y. M. C. A. was ever better than the Star Course list arranged for this fall and winter. The full series, which was announced yesterday, includes programmes that promise an unusual amount of notable amusement.

The course will open on Monday night, October 30, and tickets will be put on sale two weeks earlier, at the box office of the association hall, Watchung avenue. The first entertainment will include DeWitt Miller, with a lecture on "Reveries of a Bachelor," and music by Van Eps Brothers and W. E. MacClymont. On Thursday, November 30, "Ellwood," the noted magician, and Bertha B. Herring, reader, will appear. Monday, December 11, a Lincoln travelogue on Alaska will be presented, the programme including motion pictures and song. Monday, January 1, the Lotus Glee Club and Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, elocutionist, will present the bill; the Glee Club will sing a tragic cantata, "The Grasshopper." The next attraction, on Thursday, January 25, will be the St. Cecilia Trio (instrumental) and Edward Bingham in Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," with Richard Strauss music. The Rogers-Brilley recital, with Van Veachton Rogers, harpist, and Charles T. Grilley, humorist, will be the last of the entertainments, on Thursday, February 22.

An interesting pre-season question in connection with the Star Course is the probable effect the theatre will have on the attendance. The Y. M. C. A. entertainments have their own following to a certain extent, and though the Course in past years must have drawn some of the younger people who will now seek their amusement at the theatre, the management does not expect that their clientele will appreciably diminish.

COUNTY MEDICO MEETING.

Physicians Hold Quarterly Gathering at Y. M. C. A.

The County Medical Association held its quarterly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Forty physicians from pretty much all over the county were present.

In the absence of Dr. W. D. Murray, who is out of town, Dr. Ellis Hedges presided. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges read a paper written by Dr. Frank C. Ard, on diseases of the larynx. Dr. Ard was unable to be present.

Wife Beater Fined.

Edward Carney, a Dunellen hotelkeeper, was fined $10 yesterday by Recorder Campbell in the Dunellen police court, for beating his wife, and Thomas Tawby, a neighbor, was fined $5 for fighting. Tawby hit Carney, it is said, after Mrs. Carney had made an appeal for protection. Carney was pretty thoroughly whipped. Both men paid the fines.

MISS EMMONS A BRIDE

Wedded in Trinity Reformed Church Last Evening to Arthur Embury Smith.

DR. SCHENCK OFFICIATES

Reception Afterward at Home of Bride's Parents—Attended by Many Guests—Numerous Costly Presents.

Miss Grace Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, of Jackson avenue, and Arthur Embury Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, were married in Trinity Reformed church last evening, the ceremony taking place at 7 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, the pastor, officiated in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends from this city and other places.

Miss Emmons was attended by Miss Leona May White, of Brooklyn, who acted as maid of honor, and the Misses Daisy Adelaide Davenport, of Brooklyn, and May Smith, of the borough, as bridesmaids. Miss Beatrice Little, of Metuchen, was flower girl. Frederick Conger, of New Brunswick, was best man and the ushers were Harry Brown, of New Brunswick; Frederick Wardwell, of Warsaw, New York, college mates of the groom at Rutgers; Walter F. Emmons and William H. Emmons, of the borough. Arthur E. Titsworth presided at the organ and rendered the Mendelssohn and Lohengrin marches.

The bride was given away by her father. Her gown was of white crepe de chine over white taffeta, trimmed with point de Venise lace. She wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Miss White was attired in crepe de chine trimmed with lace and carried white roses, while the bridesmaids wore pink silk mulle over pink taffeta. Their bouquets were of pink roses. The flower girl wore white organdie and white lace and carried a basket of flowers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, at which 200 guests were present. The receiving room was prettily decorated in green and white, the dining room with autumn leaves and cut flowers, and the parlor in pink and white. A collation was served late in the evening, after which Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for a wedding trip to Lake Waccamaw, N. C., where they will spend two weeks. On returning they will make their home for the winter at 602 Central avenue, but will remove to western Pennsylvania in the spring. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Rutgers College and is a civil engineer. He has been a resident of the borough all his life and has a host of friends in this vicinity.

Both young people were remembered with an unusually large array of costly wedding gifts. It included cut glass, silverware, statuary, bric-a-brac, furniture and checks from the parents. The groom's gift to the bride was a crescent of diamonds, to the best man a gold stick pin with diamonds, and to the ushers gold stick pins with seven pearls. The bride presented the maid of honor with a floral brooch set with diamonds and the bridesmaids with floral brooches set with pearls. Her gift to the flower girl was a gold bracelet.

BARRED OUT, SUES HOTEL.

Astor Night Clerk's Decision Was a Reflection on Mrs. Brown.

William S. Brown, of Westfield, filed in the United States Circuit Court in New York yesterday a suit for $10,000 damages against William C. Muschenheim, proprietor of the new Hotel Astor.

Brown says that on the night of August 6 he attended the theatre in New York with his wife, and was delayed so that he missed the last train home. He went to the hotel and applied for a room, but it was refused to him. The hotel clerk, he says, intimated that Brown was with a lady not his lawful wife, and refused him accommodations in the presence of a number of guests in the hotel lobby in such a manner as to cause $10,000 worth of damage to the feelings of his wife and himself.

Hotel men look upon the suit as calculated to throw light upon the difficulties they may have in avoiding such attentions of the police as four other hotels recently suffered, the night clerk's discretion being between two fires.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

In the past two days the Grand Jury has been considering the evidence in two possible indictments in which Dunellenites are interested. On Tuesday the principals and witnesses in the case of David Taylor, the Lincoln hotelkeeper, charged with keeping a disorderly house, were examined. Watson Emory, a former resident of West Dunellen, who caused the arrest of Taylor, was present, as was Mrs. Emory and her daughter. The Emorys, husband and wife, sat near one another, but their eyes never met. The marital troubles of the Emorys are an old topic with Dunellenites. Yesterday the Stnabery-Harrison accident was considered. It would not surprise any of those interested in the case if the automobilist was compelled to stand trial for responsibility in the smashup.

In response to the protest filed by the borough Council over the company's delay, the P. S. C. has resumed the laying of the gas mains. The citizens have a faint hope that the company will really complete its franchise agreement this time.

Word from Mrs. C. T. Rogers, who is spending several months in California for the benefit of her health, brings pleasant intelligence that she is steadily improving.

JERSEY ROADS PRAISED.

Connecticut Manufacturer Writes Letter to Commissioner Hutchinson.

Trenton, Oct. 12.—A letter praising the roads of this State has been received by the State road department from L. B. Curtis, of the firm of Curtis & Curtis, large manufacturers of mechanical appliances, of Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. Curtis' letter follows:

"Hon. E. C. Hutchinson, State Road Commissioner:

"Dear Sir—I have just returned from an automobile trip to Atlantic City and Philadelphia and I was so impressed with the fine condition of the roads in New Jersey that I want to write you a line and tell you of my appreciation. I have toured pretty much all over the country and never in all my experience have I enjoyed such fine roads as in New Jersey. You have all the other States that I have been in beaten badly and New Jersey should be proud of itself."

These commendations on the State roads are certainly more than worthy of mere notice, as Connecticut has some very fine roads. The New England State was the third to take up the method of State aid for roads inaugurated by this State. They have been improving their thoroughfares under this plan for the past ten years and to date 169 towns have availed themselves of the law.

The fight took place at the golf clubhouse. Soon afterward Haulenbeck resigned from the club, and subsequently Schultz was discharged.

BARE AS AN EGG.

Fat Man in Birthday Garb Seeks Health in Fields.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—A naked man is wandering about in Germantown, and he's just scared the women to death. He is a health fiend and believes that proper tone can only be gotten by sauntering through the dew laden fields in the early morning in birthday garb.

So far as known, the Germantowner is the only living exponent of his theory. He exponed yesterday, and a squad of policemen hit his trail half an hour later. They beat about the woods where he had been seen, but couldn't catch him.

Two women vouch for the wanderings of the naked one. They are Mrs. George Wentz and Mrs. Eugene Hays, of Pelham. Their street is just off a clump of woods that stretches from Greene street to Wayne avenue. Mrs. Wentz called on Mrs. Hays after breakfast Tuesday morning. The two were standing in the Hays side yard.

Suddenly there were screams from the children. At the same instant Mrs. Wentz's eyes wandered toward Carpenter's woods. What she saw made her look the other way. She advised Mrs. Hays not to look but the latter took just a peep to qualify as a witness.

Both women were subsequently shy about giving details of what they had seen. Mrs. Hays admitted that the man was of heavy build and had light hair.

Asked for a description of his apparel she blushingly said there was none to describe.

Looking over past reports the police discovered these items about the nude wanderer:

In August last Miss Edna Cobbs, of 614 Sedgwick street, noticed him sitting in the shade of an old apple tree at Greene street. He fled when he saw her.

On a cold Sunday morning last winter he appeared before a crowd of churchgoers at Walnut lane and Greene street.

Another morning, exact date not recorded, he was seen promenading along the Lincoln Drive.

Returns After Being Thought Dead.

After an absence of seven years, during which time he had been given up for dead, Ferman Adams, twenty-one years old, returned to his father's home at No. 71 Highland avenue, Newark, yesterday. He had been living all that time in Trenton and the surrounding towns.

RELIC OF THE INDIANS

Haunts and Habits of the Red Men Who Lived in and About Plainfield.

BY GEO. H. FOUNTAIN

Article in Current Number of The Suburbanite, the Jersey Central Publication.

In the current number of The Suburbanite, the monthly publication of the Jersey Central Railroad, is an interesting contribution by George H. Fountain, of this city. His subject is "Indian Relics in Plainfield." His article follows:

"Green brook divides the city of Plainfield, and in the western limits of the city it flows at the base of bold sand and gravel bluffs. Numerous springs are found all along these bluffs, and whenever you find a spring there, with careful search, you will find traces of the Indian. There were two principal setlements or encampments of the Indians on Green brook: one between Grant and Clinton avenues, and the other some three and one-half miles further down the stream. It is on these two sites that I have found most of my relics. The camp or village sites are easily located by the character of the stones and implements found there.

"The Raritan Indian did not build the typical, picturesque wigwam of our school books, fantastically painted, and ornamented with scalps, but dwelt in huts, made of grass, branches of trees and mud; upright forks were driven into the ground with ridgepoles laid across.

"Their permanent villages were sometimes enclosed in stockades. Their hearth or fire place consisted of a circular pavement of stones, hence a great quantity of fire-burnt stones would mark the location of their village.

"Another indication is the number of round pebbles or cobble stones, varying in size from 2 to 8 and 10 inches in diameter, showing the wear of constant grinding; I have picked up eight or ten of these grinders in a space of 150 feet square; they were used in grinding corn, nuts and berries. I have one which shows evidence of years of use, as it is worn down nearly three-quarters of an inch from its original spherical form; the back of it was evidently used as a nut cracker, as it is battered and scratched.

"Found in conjunction with these grinders were a certain class of flat, circular stones, 7 or 8 inches in diameter and 2 or 3 inches thick. They seem to have been used as griddles, for baking cakes, flapjacks, as we call them, pone or hoe cake, as they are called in the South. It is a well known fact that the colored people of the South learned how to make their hoe cake from the Indians. The Indians were known to make journeys to the seashore for clams and oysters, and it is also said that they dried them on strings and carried them back to their homes for future use.

"They also used long cylindrical pestles, for grinding or pounding their corn. Their mortars or grinding pots were sometimes of stone, but more frequently a hollowed out stump or log of wood; very few stone mortars have been found in this neighborhood, although in the Notch in the mountains back of Plainfield, on the road to Washingtonville, is an excavation in the trap rock, of a dish or basin shape, said to have been an Indian corn mill, and to which the Indians from the surrounding country came.

"The knives or cutting tools are of various shapes. I have one in my possession of what is called the 'sheaf of wheat' pattern, that is discolored with what appears to be blood; in fact, I have several arrows and spear points similarly discolored; one spear point in particular, 4 inches long by 1½ inches wide, plainly shows blood discoloration. Some of the leaf-shaped knives have edges keen enough to cut the flesh with very light pressure. A very interesting tool in my cabinet is a bow-string dresser, which I found on the Grant avenue site. It is a diamond-shaped stone, 3½ inches long by 1¼ inches wide, soft and chalky. It was doubtless held firmly in one hand, and the gut or sinew was drawn over it, in a similar manner as a machinist draws a piece of wire over a smooth bit of iron to take out the kinks; the furrows are plainly visible.

"In the same class with the bow-string dresser I might mention the skin scrapers and finishers. The scrapers vary in size from 1 to 6 or 7 inches, and are usually pear-shaped with beveled edges, so that they do not mar or cut the skin, but scrape off the hair or fatty matter smoothly. The skin finishers or polishers are smooth implements, 6 or 7 inches long by 2 inches wide, flat on the under side, but convex on the upper.

"The village sites also furnish a great number of 'cup stones.' These stones are irregular pebbles, or pieces of sandstone, having a number of cup-like depressions in each flat surface; sometimes the depressions mereg into each other. I have one stone that has five depressions in it. The use of these cup-stones is still a disputed question among archaeologists. Without going into a discussion of the subject, I would merely say there are two uses which are advanced as reasonable. One is that they were used as holders for cracking nuts, and the other as fire drills. It is a curious fact that these cupstones are found all over the world, and their use seems to have been the common property of ancient man. Another implement found in great numbers is the pebble hammer stone; these all show battered edges, and it is plainly seen that they were used as hammers. Some were doubtless used in breaking bones to extract the marrow, and others were used in the manufacture of their arrow points and other tools.

"These latter usually have slight depressions in the center on each side, giving the thumb and first finger a better grip. One in my collection plainly shows depressions for all five fingers.

"Hammered stones are composed mostly of slate or sandstone, and are usually drilled completely through for the attachment of a handle, although I have several which were attached to their handles by withes. They are of different shapes, some almost identical in form with a modern pick-axe, others heart-shaped, and yet others like a butterfly with out-spread wings, while some are simply oblong stones, with a hole drilled through.

"The drilling was evidently done with a hollow bone or reed. The longest drilling I have is some 4 inches. One very interesting specimen is complete, as far as the form goes, but the drilling is just commenced; the stone is 3½ inches long, and 1¼ inches thick; the ancient workman started in bravely with his work, but stopped when he had gone an eighth of an inch, and the drilling plainly shows the litle nipple or core left by the hollow of the reed or bone.

"Flint drills were also used for short work, and I have a fragment of a soapstone bowl, which is drilled with a pointed or stone drill. The workman in this case did not attempt to drill completely through the stone, but drilled from both sides; he did not 'center' exactly, but managed to make both holes meet. These holes are very interesting, as they have the appearance of being countersunk. Time evidently fell lightly around the red man, and did not seem to count for much. With the labor of the lodge and cornfield thrown upon his squaw, the noble red lord of creation spent his time, when neither hunting, fishing nor fighting, in whittling out, as we would say, some delicate arrow or spear point, or drilling some stone to be used as the mark of his distinction or pride.

"That the Indian of Plainfield had pride I have no doubt, for I have in my collection a small mortar or saucer-shaped stone, with a hollow about the size of a 50-cent piece and a pestle of corresponding size—about 3 inches long—in which he no doubt ground the paint or clay with which he beautified his countenance for the admiration of the ladies or the terror of his enemies.

"There are many evidences that in those times the streams and brooks of Plainfield were far larger and more numerous than at the present day. On the banks of one of the dry water courses near my home I found a fish spear, over 4 inches in length, made of a hard, blue sandstone, and tapering to a point sharp enough to pierce through light clothing. I have also found pebbles, weighing from one pound down, gridled for line sinkers; these are easily distinguished from the larger girdled club-heads, for these latter are always battered on one side and smooth on the side next the handle. These club-heads, with their rough and battered heads, are very suggestive, and it takes but little imagination to fill out a realistic picture.

"From the girdled pebble club-head to the girdled tomahawk is but a step, for it needs only the sharpening of one end of the club-head to make a tomahawk; the gradation is often very gradual. Tomahawks are of all shapes and forms; some long and slender, others short and thick, and the difference between the tomahawk and the axe is very slight; the real difference is a difference only in size. The largest axe in my possession weighs over eight pounds.

"It is not to be understood that an Indian could cut or chop wood in the sense that we use those terms as applied to our sharp-edged tools, but by charring a tree trunk by fire they could cut away the burnt wood, and eventually fell the tre and convert the trunk by the same means into a canoe. The trunk was first leveled flat, then by means of wet clay laid upon the flat surface, the fire was confined within certin limits till the wood was charred; the axe or stone chisel was then brought into play, and the charred wood removed. By repeating this process they managed to hollow out their canoes, some of which were 30 to 40 feet long.

"One of the prettiest specimens of an axe or tomahawk that I have seen I picked up on the Grant avenue site. It is made of green stone, nicely polished, with a smooth edge and groove neatly cut around it. It was evidently a toy, for it measures but 2½ inches in length by 1¼ inches in width. It have another a little larger, about 3 inches long. If these were children's toys, the parents undoubtedly believed in bringing up a child 'in the way he should go'—i. e., to knock his fellow man's brains out.

"In the manufacture of arrows and spears the Indians of Plainfield were not behind their more western brethren; they worked in all kinds of stones. I have a number of nodules, evidently obtained by the local Indians through barter from the jasper mines of the Lehigh hills. The jasper from these mines, as evidenced by the chips or flakes, is exceedingly varied and beautiful; all colors are represented, yellow, blue, purple, green, red, chocolate and veined; in fact, all shades from pale violet up to black.

"In pottery, also, they were not far behind their brethren, and some of the ornaments on their earthenware show considerable symmetry and beauty. It is unfortunate that the pottery has all been broken by the plow; it is seldom that a piece over 2 inches long can be found.

"They also made bowls and pots of soapstone. I have already mentioned the drillings in a fragment of a bowl, and on the lower site, in a space of 50 feet square, I nearly half filled my bag with the fragments of what must have been a large pot.

"The dead were buried wrapped in their skins or blankets, covered with bark, and the remains of their funeral feast were buried with them. One of the skulls in by cabinet still has a piece of blanket adhering, and the forehead is still covered with bark.

"Within a foot of the skull, on the same level, I dug up the jaws and part of the vertebra of some large animal, doubtless buried with the person to provide food for the journey to the happy hunting grounds.

"Much more could be written of the life and habits of our predecessors in the land, and there is plenty of room for study and investigation lying right here in Plainfield."

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FEVER HERO DIES.

Retired Physician Gave Up Ease to Save Neighbors.

New Orleans Oct. 12.—Dr. White issued an order yesterday discontinuing the oiling of cisterns, all measures for getting rid of mosquitoes and all general fumigation. The house to house inspection will be abandoned October 15. The fever is now restricted to a very few well established foci, which can be watched by the Marine Hospital Service.

Dr. Charles M. Shanely, of Barataria, died Tuesday night of yellow fever. He was one of the heroes of the epidemic. Although not an immune he volunteered for service and in a small launch steamed from point to point and soon checked the progress of the fever in his territory.

On September 18 he became ill and started for the New Orleans Emergency Hospital. He was cured there, but he was worried over his patients, and as soon as he was discharged, although still weak, he started down the bayou in his launch. The work proved too much for him and he suffered a relapse, from which he died Tuesday night.

Dr. Shanely was thirty-six years old and a native of Ohio. Coming to Lousiana two years ago on a pleasure trip, he bought the Ida plantation and abandoned medicine, but the suffering of his poorer neighbors moved him to go to their aid.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The rooting on Saturday will necessarily be divided, as both teams will represent Plainfield.

With Bill Tierney on the coaching lines, there is sure to be plenty of fun for everybody on Saturday.

The fans who could not see Tuesday's game in New York are planning to go to the Polo Grounds today.

"Mine Host" Leary is preparing a feast fit for a king and he has spared no pains in doing the thing up right.

It will be well worth the price of the banquet ticket to hear Bill Tierney sing. His voice is just as sweet as ever and is sure to charm.

There are still a few tickets left for the banquet and those who want to honor Manager Daab and his valiant team should step up and buy one.

Crescent Oval is sure to be tested to its capacity on Saturday when the Daabsters meet All-Plainfield. It will be one of the best games of the season, not barring Westfield.

"Lou" Wiltse and "Willie" Deegan opposing each other in the box will be a feast for the fans. "Willie" says that he will do his utmost to defeat the All-Plainfield team.

Manager Daab and his team will have an opportunity Saturday night to see and hear just how much they are appreciated here, and they will deserve all the praise bestowed upon them.

One of the features of the Giant-Athletic game at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday was a song by Jack Hall, with harmonica accompaniment. It "brought down" one end of the grandstand.

Notwithstanding that the majority of the Plainfield fans wanted to see the Giants win Tuesday's game, they all admired the magnificent work of Big Chief Bender. He was the idol of the crowd.

It is understood that each member of the local team will be called upon for a speech at the banquet, and will be asked to contribute to the evening's fun. "Willie" Deegan may possibly be excused.

TENNIS.

Several tennis players of the Plainfield Country Club will visit the Elizabeth Town and Country Club courts on Saturday afternoon on an invitation extended to them by the tennis committee of the club. Contests have been arranged between the rival players. After the tournament supper will be served in the clubhouse, and in the evening a club dance will be held for the entertainment of the Plainfield guests.

SHOT AFTER CALL.

Man Wounded by Rival—Girl Refuses Names.

Pittsburg, Oct. 12.—In the fashionable suburb of Emsworth Monday night George Glesenkamp, of Avalon, was shot in the groin, probably fatally, after having left the home of Miss Lucinda Luty, where he had called to spend the evening. The police have failed to get a clue to the shooter.

Glesenkamp and Miss Luty went for a walk and, returning, found two other young men waiting at the house. They were introduced to Glesenkamp, but he did not catch the name of either. One of the strangers was angry over the presence of Glesenkamp and did not hide his displeasure.

They left the Luty home, Glesenkamp following soon afterward. He had gone only a short distance when he met the strangers. The quarrel was renewed and one of them shot Glesenkamp.

The police visited the home of Miss Luty, but she positively refused to disclose the names of her callers.

JILTED, SHE ASKS $20,000.

Mrs. Myra Beals Sues Dr. Miles J. Evans at White Plains.

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Myra Beals, of New York, began suit in Supreme Court yesterday against Dr. Miles J. Evans, a dentist, of Utica, for $20,000, for alleged breach of promise to marry.

Mrs. Beals said that on May 17, 1903, she saw a personal letter in a New York newspaper saying that the advertiser was seeking a wife. She answered the advertisement and a few days later, she says, the defendant called upon her, told her he was a widower and asked her to become his wife. She said she fully expected to marry him, but in the fall of 1903 she learned he had married Miss Wells, of Utica.

SUPREME COUNCIL MAY AGREE TO LEGAL TEST

POSSIBILITY OF QUESTION OF NEW RATES' LEGALITY GOING INTO COURT.

Boston, Oct. 12.—The hearing requested by the protestants of the Royal Arcanum only waits an agreement upon a date which will be convenient to all parties concerned. As understood by the insurance department, a joint hearing with the law department is desired by the petitioners, who have addressed their petition to both the Insurance Commissioner and the Attorney-General.

So far as Commissioner Cutting is concerned, he is ready at any time, and it is only required that Attorney General Parker shall fix the time.

The object of the joint hearing is to determine whether the Attorney-General and the Insurance Commissioner shall take action in the courts, and what form that action shall take. For this reason it is considered that both sides shall be heard. It may be that the Supreme Council will agree that the matter to be formally tested shall go to the court, and in such event will make no objection to the protestants asking for an injunction, so that the matter may be properly threshed out by legal tribunal.

Elks Rushing Building.

A New Department.

We beg to announce to the public that we have opened a department for the renovating and making over of Hair Mattresses. We are now prepared to do all kinds of work in this line and at much lower prices than you been accustomed to paying. All work entrusted to us will be done in a first-class manner and under absolutely sanitary conditions. Owing to the unreliability of most people who do this class of work in town, many have refrained from having their work done here, choosing rather to send it away to be done or discarding the mattress altogether, to such we simply have this to say: that the same method of "square dealing" which has built up this great business of ours, will be employed in this new department. The manager of our Bedding Department will gladly give you all desired information.

N. P. H. S. OUTPLAYS RAHWAY SCHOOL TEAM

SCORES TWO GOALS IN FIRST HALF—AMMERMAN'S ANKLE SPRAINED.

The North Plainfield High School eleven scored a clean victory in Rahway yesterday, against the Rahway High School. The score was 12 to 0. Rahway was outplayed. Both goals were scored in the first half, the first after three minutes of play, by Matthews, who was rushed through tackle. Peacock kicked the goal. The second goal was made in the same way, by Webster, Peacock kicking.

In the second half N. P. H. S. ost the ball on a fumble but regained it on downs. Ammerman sprained his ankle in a scrimmage and McClintock took his place. Brown, of Rahway, ran the length of the field with the ball, but the referee saw him snatch it from Matthews' arms and promptly gave the pigskin to N. P. H. S. at the point of the last down.

Line-up and score:

R. H. S.—Left end, Brown; left tackle, Howard; left guard, Smith; centre, Davis; right guard, Brady; right tackle, Randolph; right end, Irwin; quarter back, Miller; left half back, Williams; right half back, Teitalbaun; full back, Van Sant (Capt).

Score—N. P. H. S., 12; Rahway, 0. Referee—Heicher. Umpire—Ransom. Linesmen — McClintock and Roe. Timers—Ransom and Kenney.

Rahway High School will come here on November 11 for a return game.

Flirtation Cost $1,200.

Bound Brook, Oct. 12.—Sheriff Cooper, Marshal Flammer and a former well known resident here got together Saturday night and Monday. The subject of their conference was the disappointment in love (and matrimony) of an attractive young woman of this place. Of course, as usual, there was a young widow in the case, and as the man is a widower, this makes it more interesting. He came to Bound Brook on Friday from his down East home, and was apprehended. The woman had formerly been employed by him. She is a wise young widow. He had promised to marry her, but backed out, and $1,2000 cash settled the case. Rather expensive for a widower's flirtation.

Real Estate Deals.

William Jeffery, real estate agent, has sold No. 251 East Second street, for the Berkeley Heights Association, to Nelson Y. Hull, who will move in and occupy it. This is the old Guillermo Thorn house, which was bought by Thomas Berkeley, a New Yorker, through Mr. Jeffery, who subsequently sold it to the Berkeley Heights Association. Mr. Jeffery has also sold two lots at Berkeley Heights to William B. Cretty and his office has arranged a mortgage for the erection of one building on West Fourth street and two buildings at Berkeley Heights.

"Founders' Day" at Drew Seminary.

Founders' Day exercises were observed at Drew Theological Seminary at Madison yesterday. The inauguration of Rev. Ezra Squire Tipple, Ph. D., D. D., as professor of practical theology, took place in the chapel at 11 a. m. The subject of his address was "The Minister of God." Rev. Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, D. D., LL. D., also made an interesting address, which was listened to by a very large number.

FEICKERT TREASURER OF BANKING ORGANIZATION

OFFICER OF PUBLICITY ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES.

In connection with the convention of the American Bankers' Association now being held in Washington, there has been organized a Banking Publicity Association of the United States, the objects of which are the interchange of ideas, information and methods of publicity, also that the public may be systematically educated and informed of the benefits and advantages offered by the various classes of institutions.

In the selection of officers these were chosen:

President, Harold A. Davidson, secretary Home Trust Company, New York; secretary, Frederick Phillips, secretary Lincoln Trust Company, New York; treasurer, Edward F. Feickert, assistant secretary and treasurer Plainfield Trust Company; vice presidents—Pierre Jay, vice president Old Colony Trust Company, Boston; James E. WON'T LET NEGROES ENTERTAIN PRESIDENT

COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS REFUSES REQUEST.

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—The committee which has charge of the arrangements for the entertainment of President Roosevelt is now engaged in a lively controversy with prominent negroes of the State over the demand that they be allowed to entertain the President at Straight University, as they did President McKinley when he visited this city.

Their request has practically been denied and if they want to see the President at all they will have to stand along the river bank when he makes his trip through the harbor.

An oversight which has been commented on strongly in the editorial columns of the newspapers is that in making arrangements for the entertainment of the President during his stay here the Catholic clergy, who always figure largely in affairs of the kind, have been entirely ignored.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 15.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Better work our society should do.—Heb. vi, 7-12; xiii, 20, 21.

Christianity has always stood for progress. No matter how high the standard of personal life preached or how efficient has been the active service rendered, the command has always been "Go forward," "Let thine eyes look right straight on," "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." "Better things" are always expected of the Christian and of every organization formed for the advancement of Christ's cause. The old principles are never to be abandoned, but while not neglecting the eternal truths we are ever to advance in personal attainment and to better and more efficient service.

Christian Endeavor has been especially particular to follow this phase of Christian life and service. It was organized upon certain definite, permanent principles, and these have never for a moment been abandoned, but new lines of service have ever been introduced and new inspirations suggested for carrying forward both the old and the new work. One of the remarkable features of the Christian Endeavor movement has been the development of new and attractive methods of Christian work. It has done much to popularize mission work and made a revolution in missionary literature and programmes.

The idea of the comrades of the quiet hour has had unparalleled success in developing the devotional spirit and habit. The glory of all suggestions for unique methods of work has been their practicability. Nothing has been sensational or effervescent, but sensible and permanent, and the movement still calls for advancement, and all Endeavorers should respond to the call. The quarter of a century anniversary of the movement will soon be upon us. Dr. Clark has asked Endeavorers to celebrate it by leading 1,000,000 souls to Christ and giving $1,000,000 to missions through our denominational boards. What manner of celebration can be more inspiring than this—the winning of souls at home and the spreading of the gospel abroad? Every Endeavorer and every Endeavor society should respond to this appeal. Let us, above all, do better work in winning souls for Christ and in advancing Christ's kingdom throughout the world. And that we may do this we must depend upon One who is able and willing to "make us perfect in every good work to do His will" and increase our personal devotion to Christ and the efficiency of every prayer meeting and of every committee. If we will do this the work will be done and Christian Endeavor will receive a new lease of life upon which to start its second quarter of a century. May every Endeavor society realize its opportunity and rise to meet it, "trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength."

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. xi, 30; Dan. xii, 1-3; Matt. v, 48; xxviii, 19, 20; John xiv, 12; Rom. xii, 1, 2; I Cor. xv, 58; Gal. vi, 1-10; Phil. iii, 8-15; Heb. vi, 1-3.

Inside Out Clouds.

Professor Wells described a feature of one of the Baltimore convention Junior meetings in these words:

"Rev. Carey Bonner of London pulled a cord and drew a sheet down across the arch back of the pulpit. On it was printed Miss Ellen T. Fowler's stanza:

"The inner side of every cloud
Is bright and shining;
I therefore turn my clouds about
And always wear them inside out
To show the lining.

"Mr. Bonner sat down at the piano, and played a little tune for the stanza, which the children learned immediately. Then the kindly faced Englishman told the story of the two buckets. One of them wore his clouds cloud side out, and whined, 'No matter how much water I bring up from the well, I always come back empty.' The other wore his clouds the bright side out and cheerily said, 'No matter how often I come to the well empty, I always go away full of water for thirsty souls.'"

REV. CAREY BONNER.

Rev. Carey Bonner is famous on the other side of the Atlantic as a Christian Endeavor enthusiast and as the author of many of the best liked and most used Christian Endeavor hymns. He made his first appearance at Baltimore as an international convention song leader.

It Can Be Done.

In his address before the Baltimore convention Dr. Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor society, discussed the important matter of evangelization among and by the young people of the land. He placed before the great host of Endeavorers the goal of a million new members for the society during the year, a million new members for the church, the prayer meeting and the Sunday school and a million dollars for missions. This looks like a large piece of work to cut out for the young people of that splendid society to accomplish in one year. Yet it can be done, and if it can be done it ought to be done.

Generally speaking, we do not take kindly to plans that call for the doing of things by the hundred thousand and the million. Numbers are a delusion and a snare. But we do believe with all our hearts in doing for the spread of the kingdom all that our hands find to do, and doing it with all our might all the time.—Epworth Herald.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 15: "Better Work Our Chapter Should Do"—Heb. vi, 7-12; xiii, 20, 21.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

"That ye be not sluggish, but imitators of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises."

Sluggishness is a serious hindrance to progress. It has many forms and degrees. Many people who would hotly resent the imputation of laziness and would hardly admit that they were indolent will declare without reserve that they feel sluggish and will yield to the feeling so that it largely governs their actions. This is usually done with no consciousness of any moral fault having been committed.

The causes of sluggishness are many and varied. They run all the way from physical disease to positive selfishness of spirit.

Whatever the cause and whatever the degree of moral blame deserved, it is a fact all will recognize such sluggishness is fatal to all advancement and antagonistic to most real enjoyment. Whatever delicious sense of repose one may feel in resting after severe exertion and satisfaction in having done hard work worthily, none of that belongs to the sluggard nor can by any possibility come as the result of nonexertion. Real rest can come only after toil.

No ill can fret the soul with discontent
Like consciousness of powers unused.

We make our gains and get the joy of life from activity. The promises of God are to those who do, but to do we must have confidence, must believe. Beyond our trusting lies our patience. This is the clinging to a thing and resing to be shaken off. Many a failure in life is due to lack of persistence. We must see clearly the needful thing to be done, must believe unwaveringly that it can be done and that we can and will, by God's help, do it, and then refuse to be sidetracked for any other thing.

Better work! How shall we get at it?

The first thing every chapter needs to do is to realize the necessity for activity. We must act, because God needs our work, folks around need our help and we need to use our energies in order to grow.

But we must also find out the best channels in which to direct our efforts. It is not enough to merely be busy; we must be busy in the best way. Much that is done would better not have been done. We must do only that of which the Master can say to us at the last, "Well done."

We must shake off our sluggishness and be wisely active. All branches and departments of league work are desirable and they ought to be well balanced. With due attention to social culture and literary development, with care for missionary work and systematic benevolence, still the chief concern in every chapter should be the development of habits of personal piety and devotion.

Private reading of the Bible regularly, systematically, intelligently and interestedly for one's own gain in spiritual life is a most pressing need among all classes of people, and especially among our young Christians at the present time. To this must be added habits of daily meditation on religious truth and duty and self examination as to intention and practice. Private daily prayer is indispensable to the maintenance of a close acquaintance with the things of the divine life.

This matter of personal religious inner life receives too little attention. It is the one thing above all others in which we ought to be doing better work. No increase in attendance at meetings, in amount of collections or works of mercy and help nor any other thing can be substituted for this. Attend to this and have a band of devoted and pious young people who live daily close to Christ and all needed work will receive due attention.

Worldwide Peace.

The peace of the world is within each man's control so far as that man is concerned. If I do not quarrel, that will be so far a realization of universal peace. And when all men universally pursue the same course, with no legislative declaration and no treaty and no noise or talk of any sort, there will be peace throughout the whole world.—Robert E. Speer.

Sentence Sermons.

I don't want to possess a faith. I want a faith that will possess me.—Kingsley.

We tarnish the splendor of our best actions by too often speaking of them.—Blair.

One can easily lose all belief through giving up the continual care of spiritual things.—Tennyson.

I take him to be the only rich man that lives upon what he has, owes nothing and is contented.—Howe.

The poorest education that teaches self control is better than the best that neglects it.—Sterling.

A man who would have God's guidance must be willing to make spiritual things his main business.—H. C. Mable.

We derive from nature no fault that may not become a virtue, no virtue that may not degenerate into a fault.—Goethe.

Spend yourself on the work before you, well assured that the right performance of this hour's duties will be the best preparation for the hours or ages that follow it.—Emerson.

A bright smile, a beaming countenance, a playful word—these find an entrance into the closed heart and raise the downcast eyes and bless him that gives and him that takes.—Dean Stanley.

Great thoughts hallow any labor. If the ditcher muses the while how he may live uprightly, the ditching spade and turf knife may be engraved on the coat of arms of his posterity.—Thoreau.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleaned it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FANCY COLLARS.

Handsome effects by way of collars and berthas may be produced from the new lace ribbonwork at the cost of very little time or trouble compared with the result; neither is a great deal of skill necessary, neat sewing being the chief requisite, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

A strikingly pretty collar of this description to be worn with a black evening gown was a deep bertha shaped to fit the shoulders in tones of mauve. The pattern is first cut in tough brown paper, one-quarter of an inch larger than necessary, then black satin ribbon, one-third of an inch wide, is basted down to the paper all around, leaving the quarter inch of paper beyond. Half an inch wide green shaded ribbon forms the leaves. Loops of ribbon are cut the necessary length, the ends secured by a thread of green filoselle, then at the back of the leaf within half an inch of the top of the ribbon is gathered across, when a leaf will be found to be formed. When these are in readiness prepare the flowers. Those with points are made by turning the ribbons inward from left to right and from right to left. Five to eight will be required for these, according to the flower desired, and the width of the ribbon used; daisies require more petals; orchids less; the color of the ribbon, of course, depending upon the flower to be worked. That in question was in shaded mauves looking like wistaria.

Next flowers and leaves are arranged according to taste upon the paper, held down with small pins at first, then basted with silk. The stems are made by twisting very narrow ribbon and holding down with filo in single stitch. Lastly, all flowers and leaves are connected with lace stitches in black buttonhole twist, uniting the ribbon edges also. When complete cut away all basting threads and the result will be a handsome black lace work collar, appliqued with ribbon flowers and edged with black ribbon. Made the sole trimming on a black net evening gown, this should be wonderfully effective. Tiny flowers may be made by just cutting a length of narrow ribbon, sewing the two ends together and then shirring one selvedge, drawing it up in a round and then adding a disk, as a mock jewel, spangle or a few French knots, according to fancy; the larger flowers should have each petal doubled as before directed.

SECRET OF BEAUTY.

The next of the French beauty secrets relates to the smile. The French woman smiles a great deal. It is a queer little smile, and sometimes, like her shrug, it looks artificial. But it is her stock in trade. Without her smile the French woman would be far less attractive than she is.

The only other nation in the world that understands the art of smiling is the Japanese, continues the Boston Herald. The Japanese woman knows all about the smile.

The French woman understands the secret of the smile and the value of it. At your first bon-mot she will smile. At your second she will smile and shrug her shoulders appreciatively. She will smile at your witticisms and flatter you into thinking they are good. She is wonderful in her smile, is the French woman. It is a wide, beautiful smile, and she shows a fine row of perfectly kept teeth. Smile often and show your teeth, is one of the French beauty precepts.

The French woman will bleach her cheeks until they are clear and creamy, but she will keep her lips red, for she knows that red lips set off white teeth and make the mouth winning.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

It had startled and then angered the elder man, so loyal and devoted had his son ever been in the past. Well he knew that, though some letters had passed in April between Paul Ladue and persons in Alabama, it was impossible to prove that he was planning to join the southern army, much less that he was furnishing information, or "aid and comfort to the enemy." Since the first of May the worst that could be said of him was that he had sent three letters to a certain address in St. Louis, and that three missives had come to him bearing the St. Louis postmark. Everybody knew that St. Louis was infested with southern sympathizers who had means of communication with friends beyond the line, and it was these letters McKinnon referred to when he dared to suggest that it was the postmaster's duty to open them and learn their contents. Not yet had the north reached the point of violating the sanctity of personal mail.

"So far from its being McKinnon's fault," the elder Benton answered, as soon as he could control his voice, "I hold your friend Paul solely responsible. McKinnon is an intensely loyal man, and he and I both are indignant that any man should be living here in our midst and holding treasonable correspondence with the enemy. You will do well, sir, if you hope for a commission, to hold aloof from so dangerous an association."

Fred would not hold aloof. For three days he was constantly at the Ladues, comforting Paul as best he could, and on this evening of the third day, after ruefully, enviously bidding adieu to many a friend who had marched away with the Second, he had cut loose from the crowd and returned to his labor of love. Entering the shaded gateway he had been surprised to see a vision in white seated close to Paul's reclining chair, and confounded and troubled to find that it was Elinor. Bravely she had risen and faced him:

"It seems that it is not enough that Paul should be forbidden our house," said she, with strangely calm and controlled manner, "but this afternoon father bade me pack my trunk and be ready to go to Aunt Margaret to-morrow. I have obeyed him, and to-night I shall tell him that I came here to bid Paul good-by." Then with bowed head she hurried away.

"What was the promise, Paul?" asked Benton after a moment of silence.

"I told Elinor and I tell you, Fred, that if I had any idea that duty demanded my going back to the land of my birth—it is ended. If people will only let me stay in peace—my place is here."

"Good God, Paul!" was the almost exultant answer. "What a load you've lifted from my mind! What a facer this will be to McKinnon!"

And so perhaps it might have been had it become known to him and to the public that evening before he had finished his impassioned speech and had exhibited a certain letter, but even as they sat there, hand in hand, the sound of cheering grew fierce and frequent. On the broad veranda sat Elinor looking at the dim light up the street where dwelt the Ladues, and listening to the cheering that told unerringly the stirring effect of the speaker's words.

Away to the west, down in the valley of the river, a confused murmur rose upon the night. Then to her amaze came Fred to the front gate, half lifting, half leading a slim-built, reluctant youth whose voice she knew on the instant. "You must, Paul," she heard Fred saying, low and stern. "I can't lick a thousand fellow citizens. The only thing is to get you in some safe harbor until this blows over."

Opening the cellar door, he plunged his unwilling prisoner into the dark depths and bounded back to the front gate just in time to see a throng of men sweeping silently up the wide thoroughfare, passing him by with hardly a gleam of recognition, and finally halting nearly two blocks away in front of the little homestead of the Ladues.

Just then the squire appeared, springing from a hack that had driven swiftly on the trail of the crowd, and started at sight of his son, standing there like sentry at the gate.

Somebody was haranguing the crowd, now completely filling the street from block to block only 400 yards away, while men and boys, jabbering excitedly, were still hurrying by the Bentons to join the throng.

A mighty bass was uplifted over the clamor and bellowed on the night:

"They tarred and feathered and rode our teachers on a rail for no cause whatever. I move, by God! that before we let Paul Ladue wear a rebel coat we give him one of tar and feathers. I know where to find him."

It was the riff raff of the city that made up the bulk of the crowd—the idler, the loafer, the saloon hanger-on, the same class precisely that six weeks before had mobbed the men of Massachusetts in the streets of Baltimore. Of the thousand shouting and swaying there in the dim light of the city lamps probably not 50 men were respectable citizens, and, all too late, George McKinnon began to realize that he was now powerless to quench the train his vehement oratory had fired.

"My God," cried Mr. Benton. "They are coming here!"

Running toward them along the sidewalk, distancing the crowd, pale now and trembling, came McKinnon.

ELINOR KNELT THERE.

"Quick!" he cried. "Let me take Miss Elinor round to Judge Meredith's. She's safe there. Come—come, Elinor," he pleaded, with outstretched hand. But the blue eyes looked him over with utter indifference. She would not even vouchsafe reply.

"What in heaven's name have you done, McKinnon?" cried the father. "Surely you ought to have known it was playing with fire to arouse these ruffians. Go in doors, child," he continued, turning suddenly to her. But now it was McKinnon who detained.

"Stop! You must see," said he. "Here is what came for him this very night. Now do you believe?"

Benton took the heavy envelope extended to him. It bore the St. Louis postmark. It had been sliced open with a knife. It was addressed to "Paul Ladue, Esq., bookseller and stationer, East Water street, ——, and it contained another envelope still sealed and unbroken, addressed in round, clerkly hand to First Lieut. Paul Ladue, Eleventh Alabama infantry, and bore at the upper left hand corner the letters so often used in the old days of the old army, O. P. S. (on public service), instead of the later shibboleth of the war department, "official business."

"It is fatal," said the veteran lawyer, with a gasp of dismay.

"It is a forgery!" said Fred, his son, whereat McKinnon started as though stung. And now the mob, headed by Hugh Gale, came swarming to their gate, and their spokesman, in his resounding basso, addressed himself to the master.

"Squire Benton, it is my belief that the man we want is hidden here on your premises. Your son has long been his most intimate friend. Mr. Ladue invited our committee to enter and search. Will you do the same? Or are you going to shelter rebel spies and traitors?"

"You are not going to enter and search," answered Benton, sturdily. "This city has been my home since it was a mere village. This is my home, and by the eternal, you shall not violate it!"

"Shut up!" yelled the crowd. "Go ahead, Gale. We're with you," and suiting action to word two of their number leaped down upon the flower-beds and came lunging out across the grass plot. In an instant Fred Benton, breaking from Elinor's restraining hands, sprang to confront them, and without a word, sent his clinched fist square at the leader's jaw and tumbled him among the pansies. His fellows recoiled to the fence, and a howl of mingled wrath and admiration went up from the mob. Then somebody picked up a huge clod from a pile of soft, fresh-cut sod that stood by the tree box at the edge of the gutter, and with practiced hand hurled it at McKinnon. It took that portly counselor 'twixt midriff and gorge, just as a bulky vegetable, hurtling through gas-lit space, landed full on his distended cheek.

Then of a sudden there arose from the throats of the mob a yell of triumph and rejoicing, for at the head of the steps stood Paul Ladue, facing them with flashing eyes and without a tremor. Another instant and before Fred could interpose, light and agile, he bounded down the steps, across the lawn and vaulted to the flat-topped fence at the corner, lighting like a cat on his feet, and confronted them.

AMUSEMENTS.

A source of pleasurable amusement, "A Message from Mars," is one of the most successful and satisfying the stage has recently known and by this it is not to be understood that it is anywise a series of nonsensical incidents strung together in the style that prevails in musical comedies or elsewhere. The author has endeavored to write a high-class comedy built on a fantastical

Elizabeth Valentine in "A Message from Mars."

theme. The stage mechanism has realized capitally the playwright's idea of the electrical forces at the command of the Martian. Tables, chairs and ornaments on the mantelpiece are made to quiver and rattle in most surprising fashion and the illusion of some mysterious magnetic force is admirably produced. With David Proctor and the original London company, "A Message from Mars" is announced for the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

From the bright and broadcast manner in which "Queen of the Convicts," booked at the New Plainfield theatre for Saturday, matinee and night, is billed, it is evident that P. H. Sullivan does not subscribe to the moth-eaten adage that "good wine needs no bush." "If your foot is pretty, show it," and if your play is praiseworthy, push it. just as the management named is doing with Theodore Kremer's already famous one, and which seems to deserve all the boasting there is room for. For the time being at least it lifts thousands of hard-working, burden-bearing folks out of the treadwell of monotonous, humdrum existence, into an atmosphere magically surcharged with electrifying interest and entertainment, and the care-killing tonic of radiant romance. The big cast engaged for this production is headed by Selma Herman, the well known emotional actress.

Central Railroad Asks Concessions.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has filed a petition with the Street and Water Board of Jersey City for permission to lay a network of tracks in Philip street, which skirts the shore of Communipaw Bay. The tracks will unite the main line with the yards of the company has planned on the bay. The company is willing to give the city a strip of land for a street parallel with the street desired and to offer no resistance to the city's laying the outlet sewer it is constructing through the company's property. The city will probably ask for other concessions.

Dog Swallowed Button.

A dog that caused considerable excitment in Van Vorst Park, Jersey City, and created the impression, because of its antics, that it had rabies, was killed Tuesday by order of President McCarthy, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. An autopsy disclosed the fact that a celluloid campaign button, inscribed "For Governor, William T. Douglas," had lodged in the dog's throat and that was the cause of its peculiar antics.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

An unexplainable lack of interest in the game of golf has been shown at the South Orange Field Club, and, although one of the prettiest courses in this State was laid out for lovers of this sport, strange to say the links have not been patronized in a way which would warrant the expense of further maintaining the course, and unless the golfers turn out in greater number and some enthusiasm is awakened the links may be abolished after this season.

STARS MARK NEGROES' NAMES IN NEW DIRECTORY

DEPARTMENT LISTING IN WANN'S HANDSOME VOLUME FOR 1905.

The new directory appeared today. It is handsome and bigger than ever before. The binding is neater, the paper and letter press better—an attractive book indeed. There are two editions this year: One bound in light colored cloth, and the other in leather, with gilt lettering, for places where the book is likely to received very hard usage.

The directory includes the residence and business registers of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Westfield, Mountainside, Dunellen, Fanwood and Scotch Plains. A new feature that it has been deemed best to incorporate for the better guidance of those who have occasion to consult the book is the placing of stars after the names of the colored people listed.

J. R. Wand, of Woodbridge, is the compiler. Mr. Wand has had twenty-three years experience in making up directories.

COLBY HITS PARTIES; BUT IT IS OPTIMISTIC

UNBOSSED REPUBLICAN OPENS HIS SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN.

Everett Colby opened last night his campaign for the State Senatorship from Essex county, at a mass meeting conduced under the auspices of the "Committee on Equal Taxation and Limited Franchises," as the Colbyite independent Republican organization is known.

The speakers in addition to Mr. Colby included Frank M. Sommer, nominee for sheriff; Edward S. Perry, candidate for register; William P. Martin, Assembly candidate, and Frank J. Bock and Arthur R. Denman, "organization" nominees on the Newark city ticket.

Lathrop Anderson presided. Mr. Colby received an enthusiastic welcome and delivered the principal speech of the night, his theme being the new independence of the people in political affairs.

In part Mr. Colby said:

"I believe we have entered upon a new epoch in political life, and it is of this new epoch I want to speak. During the past few decades we have witnessed a new era in invention, a new era in industrial activity, and new eras in science, literature and art, but through all these decades the game of politics has been played according to the same old rules, either as a recreation by the few or a profitable business by the many.

"There has now come a great change, and the metamorphosis will take place by the casting aside of sham, deceit, corruption and falsehood, to the end that the game may be open, frank and aboveboard and according to the rules of justice and fair play. The time has come when men shall speak the truth and say what is in their minds and hearts rather than live lives of falsehood at the dictation of any man or group of men. It is to be a time when the people will demand the real things in life, true men, honest convictions and sound principles.

"This new epoch of which I speak will be accompanied by changes of great importance, and to a few of these changes I want to call your attention.

"In the first place, we shall notice readjustments in party affiliations to a marked degree, and sentimental considerations will no longer govern the decisions of the average voter. A name will no longer carry conviction and a splendid record will not be accepted as a substitute for the adherence to vital and living principles.

"In my own humble opinion, the two political parties in our State are becoming little less than organized falsehoods, managed by a few for the sole purpose of perpetuating themselves in power—and this I say advisedly and with due regard to my party affiliations—but in the course of my political experience I have seldom heard in a conference of politicians a single plea for a measure or a cause simply on the ground that it was fair and just. Yet do we not see in the platforms of political parties and hear in the public utterances of politicains protestations of righteousness and promises of reform which in no way reflect the true thoughts and convictions of those who write or utter them?

"The moves are made by the machine from within to perpetuate the party and not from without by the members of the party to perpetuate principles, good government and the welfare of the people.

"The new epoch marks a change in this regard. Party will no longer be the slave to a ring. It will be no longer the tool of the corporations, but will be the instrument by means of which the people will wield their power and express their will upon the statute books of our State.

"There is another interesting feature about the new epoch. There will only be one great issue, and about that issue all others will gather and be subordinate to it. And the substance of that issue will be the unceasing and eternal war on theft. And the reason for that is this: You cannot have an honest issue spring from a dishonest source.

"It has recently developed that money is given to politicians and their business is to produce 'results,' and here is where the machine becomes available. The machine takes the money and uses it to intrench itself in power. Having the power, it gets possession of the offices and patronage and with those offices it buys legislation from those who will not take cash. The new epoch must destroy that alliance between the corporations and our political parties which has become a menace to good morals and good government."

Entertaining Programme.

An entertaining programme has been arranged for the annual meeting of the Plainfield Fresh Air Association to be held at the Y. M. C. A. building Saturday night. COLORED LEADER ASKS FOR NEGROES ON JURIES

HAWKINS IS HOT AFTER CANDIDATE LAWRENCE.

Charles Hawkins, author of the "colored platform" demanding that negroes be placed on juries if Dr. W. H. Lawrence, of Summit, is to get their votes, says a committee consisting of Henry Vandevere, Joseph Bingham and W. H. Thomas, will have a chat with the Republican shrievalty nominee and see what that gentleman will do in the matter.

"This whole thing started three years ago," said Hawkins, getting down to a confidential mood, "and it was all this way. You see at that time the colored gentlemen of our party wanted to go over in a body unless the Republicans would place colored men on the jury. Now Charlie Moore was running then. Charlie is a good sort of fellow, but you see, well, you see, he is a Democrat, no offense, no offense, I hope.

"Well, then Hosea Hewlett got up a committee in Cranford to find out just what this company of Republicans was agoing to do. Well, Dr. Anderson (he was the man who was arunning for something or another on the ticket), well, he assured us that we would have our representatives on the juries and—well, we thought that it would be all right. He told us that we were agoing to have colored constables and colored court officers and, before long, perhaps, a colored sheriff.

"Well, you see we elected Coriell to office. Then when he was settled down, like, in his office one day, I walks up to his chair and I says, 'Well, Sheriff, I don't know as I have been struck dumb with an overabundance of colored gentlemen on the juries.' Then he says to me, 'Well, I don't know as I ever made any remark about putting any colored gentlemen on any juries,' but I talked to him for a while and then he says, 'Well, the reason is this, Hawkins, I didn't like to establish the precedent. That's all,' and he gave in so far as to write down on the corner of a piece of newspaper one of my candidates for jury and then he gave the whole newspaper to some country constable to read.

"Now, we colored gentlemen are agoin' to see what is coming to us. We want some representation. Here we pay $100,000 in taxes, we have 550 colored voters here and 1,600 in the county, and 1,200 are Republicans. Why can't we have some representation? Don't you think we deserve it?" and Mr. Hawkins here struck an attitude strikingly similar to that of Napoleon at Helena, and he wore a dark scowl, too, that was terrible to behold. Silence reigned.

"What are you going to do if Dr. Lawrence says he won't listen to your demands? Then what will you do should the Democratic candidate not make any promises?"

"Well, we'll have to choose between the two evils and take the lesser. That's the Republican party—no offense, no offense, I hope. We are going to push the matter in a quiet way, but as hard as the Dickens."

The colored Napoleon of Union county was brushing his way towards the door of the city room when he turned and said: "Civil rights we want, civil rights, my boy, en when we git 'em we'll all feel better," and laughter trickled up through the kinks in the floor like 'lasses through a cracked barrel stave.

CAME FROM ALASKA TO CLAIM A BRIDE

CHARLES A. SULZER MAKES A FLYING TRIP.

Charles A. Sulzer, formerly president of the Elizabeth Democratic Club, made a journey of 5,000 miles to wed Miss Gertrude Harrison, daughter of the treasurer of the Democratic Club, at Elizabeth, and yesterday, ten minutes after he had won his bride, they were speeding towards Alaska, their future home. The wedding was not to have taken place for a month yet, but owing to some troubles at the mines the ceremony had to be performed sooner than was expected. Stranger yet, and still more romantic, the bride had no idea that she was to be Mrs. Sulzer until Sunday, although she had known the bridegroom as a neighbor since they were school children to gether.

Just a few friends gathered at the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal church yesterday afternoon, when Rev. Herbert K. England, the pastor, performed the ceremony.

Mr. Sulzer's interests in some gold and copper mines in Alaska require his immediate attention. He has to be there within twelve days, and therefore, when the ceremony was performed, the bride and bridegroom bid a farewell to their parents, who were standing in the auditorium with them, and, entering their carriage waiting at the church door, started on their journey to Alaska.

Their journey will lie directly across the continent and from San Francisco by steamer or by rail to Sitka and from there by dogsled and Western stage coach to the heart of the mountainous regions near the Klondike, there to remain for a year, and perhaps more.

The bridegroom, who is very well known in Elizabeth, and especially to politicians, came back to town this week after an absence of several years. No one knew what brought him back and no one guessed that it was an errand of Cupid's. His bride-to-be did not know it. It is true he had written her once in a while, but as far as is known those letters were very few and far between and they contained no love messages. The bride herself did not know that her husband-to-be was returning until he stood at her door a few mornings ago.

Sunday morning he proposed and was accepted. Then came the news that he was compelled to go back to Alaska at once and that the wedding would have to take place without delay. The bride agreed, and so the wedding was arranged for yesterday.

Charles A. Sulzer was born in Roselle. When he was a student at Pingry School, Elizabeth, he won the world's collegiate championship for the 100-yard dash. That was in 1898. That was the first time he came before the public eye. Then, upon being graduated from that school, he entered politics and took a prominent part in many of the latter-day Democratic campaigns.

When his brother, Congressman William Sulzer, opened up some valuable mining property in Alaska, just at the time when the Klondike fever was subsiding somewhat and found that his mines were exceedingly valuable in ore, he found need for a trustworthy manager to represent him out there. He appointed his brother as his commissioner and he has made them wonderfully profitable.

DEDICATE PARISH HOUSE

Bishop Scarborough And Many Clergy Take Part in Grace Church Ceremony.

DR. PETERS PREACHES

New Structure Cost $20,000—Tribute is Paid to Rector and Building Committee.

Bishop Scarborough dedicated the new $20,000 parish house of Grace P. E. church last night in the presence of more than 250 members of the church and congregation and an impressive gathering of clergymen. The appointed office for the dedication of such buildings was used, and several of the clergy assisted in it. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. John P. Peters, of St. Michael's church, New York, with whom Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace church, was associated previous to his coming to this city.

Among the clerics in the chancel, besides those already mentioned, were Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace; Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor, Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilsen, Rev. E. E. Miller, curate at Grace; Rev. Mr. Walker, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest; Rev. Dr. Cooder, of Rahway; Rev. Mr. Jervis, of Westfield; Rev. Dr. Aspinwall, of Washington, D. C., and Rev. J. Clayton Mitchell, of Hoboken. Edwin Uttley, a divinity student, formerly a resident of Plainfield, was also present.

The musical features of the service were striking, the choir, under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Freeman, singing unusually well. The altar was decorated with flowers.

The service opened in the church and ended, with the actual words of dedication, in the lecture room of the parish house. The clergy, choir and congregation adjourned to the parish house after the sermon. Rev. Mr. Jervis began the office, Dr. Cooder read the lesson and the Bishop read the prayers.

Before the sermon Mr. Stevenson and the Bishop spoke briefly. The rector congratulated the congregation upon the completion of the building. The erection of a $20,000 structure, he said, was not in itself a great enterprise, but the way in which this one had been wrought into reality was rare in such fields. The work had been done so quietly, so smoothly, as to be unusual. While most of the congregation were away on their vacations, while he himself had been away, some one member of the building committee had always been on hand to see that the work went well and properly. The congregation owed a deep debt of gratitude for the building to the vestry, and particularly to the building committee; and he felt it to be right and proper to call attention to the earnest and fruitful labors of the latter. He felt the building would justify itself a thousand times over; he would be much surprised and much mistaken if the work of the church was not greatly advanced by the opportunities offered in the possession of the new parish house.

Bishop Scarborough extended his hearty congratulations to the rector and the congregation upon the completion of the building. The spirit of church work had changed with the times, so that such a building was needed by the modern parish; it met the need of the various auxiliary societies of the church for a house and place of their own. He did not believe the structure was a cent too costly. It would be found to have been a good investment; its blessings would be very manifest as the years came and went. He repeated his cordial congratulations, and expressed deep well wishings on behalf of the diocese.

Dr. Peters' sermon dealt largely with the functions of the church in the world. He held that the church was as truly concerned with the mental and physical development of men as with their souls, and that structures like the new parish house were proper and fruitful adjuncts to the work of any parish. He could not see that the new building could possibly fail to enlarge the scope of the church's work, and benefit the people who might be brought to use it.

Referring to Mr. Stevenson's former connection with him in the city, Dr. Peters introduced a personal note into his discourse. He felt a strong interest in Mr. Stevenson's work, he said, and took especial pleasure in congratulating him and his people upon the completion of the house.

Standing in the center of the assembly room of the parish house, with the clergy grouped about him, the choir lined up on either side, and the congregation standing about the sides of the room, Bishop Scarborough spoke the formal words that dedicated the building to the works for which it was designed.

At the close of the ceremony Rev.

MR. HOOLEY TO MANAGE CAMPAIGN FINANCES

GOOD GOVERNMENT CLUB PREFIXES PARTY NAME TO ITS TITLE.

One of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the present campaign in the borough, was held by the Good Government Club in its rooms on Somerset street, last night. More than 125 voters were in attendance and they spent several hours in listening to speeches, music and other features, all the while cigars and pipes were being enjoyed.

At a business session in the early part of the gathering it was decided to change the name of the organization to the Republican Good Government Club and a finance committee was appointed, with Edwin S. Hooley as chairman.

Piano and violin selections were given by Andrew G. Carpenter and Mr. Drake and addresses were made by William Bodine, Dr. A. H. Dundon, Edward P. T. Smith, Abram King, Alfred Tranchand, W. F. Williams, Mayor Smalley and others. Some of the remarks were decidedly interesting and brought out many new points in support of the present administration. One by William Bodine and dealing with the question of taxes caught the fancy of the voters and he was applauded roundly. He spoke as a taxpayer and stated emphatically that he was one of a class toward which Mayor Smalley always sought to discharge his duty.

The club will have several other similar gatherings before election day.

LOCAL FIRM INSTALLING BIG VAULT AT HOBOKEN

MANGANESE STEEL SAFE CO. SECURED CONTRACT AFTER SHARP COMPETITION

The Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city, is now at work installing in the Second National Bank building, Hoboken, a mammoth mob, fire and burglar proof vault, costing $50,000. It is one of the largest in the country and the contract was secured by the local firm after sharp competition with several other concerns. The bank officials were practically won over by the test which the Manganese experts conducted at the Mobus stone quarry last spring, when it was shown that the steel could not be affected by dynamite or any other explosive.

The vault in question weighs seventy-five tons, the door alone weighing twelve. The interior of the apartment is twenty feet, ten feet wide and eight feet high. The thickness of the steel is three and a half inches on the sides which will be enclosed by a wall of concrete. Only one other vault costing more money has been built by the company, and that was installed recently in the Postal Telegraph building on Broadway, New York.

The Hoboken vault is being put up by Henry Klein and a staff of assistants.

ENDEAVORERS ELECT.

W. E. Conger Chosen Head of Faith Chapel Society.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Faith chapel held its annual meeting last night for the election of officers and reception of reports, and in addition, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Musson and Miss Florence Randolph, who spent two days at the recent Christian Endeavor State convention, gave brief reports concerning that gathering.

During the business meeting these officers and chairmen of committees were chosen:

President, W. E. Conger; vice president, Miss Lizzie Frank; secretary, Miss Marie Viebrock; treasurer, George VanHorn; chairman lookout committee, Carl Ulmer; prayer meeting, Frank Stewart; social, U. B. Crane; missionary, Mrs. William LaRue; music, Miss Florence Randolph.

The reports from the various committees and officers showed the society to be in a flourishing condition. The present membership is fifty, and the finances are very satisfactory.

After the business session, the reports from the State convention were given by Pastor Musson, his wife and Miss Randolph, and proved a source of inspiration to every member.

The bird will arrive in Plainfield early next week and go in training for the race.

JAIL RECKLESS AUTOISTS

Swackhammer Pleases North Branch Farmers by a Speech Against Speeding.

FINES ARE TOO LIGHT

Former Assemblyman's Subject: "From the Ox to the Automobile"—Does Not Want Machines Abolished.

Imprisonment for reckless automobilists was advocated by Former-Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer at an anti-automobile meeting held in North Branch last night, under the auspices of the associated Highways Protective Associations. The meeting was large, and a good many farmers anxious to join in the demonstration against the evil wagons were unable to get into the hall. A spirit of unappeasable animosity toward the automobile was manifested, and applause greeted every criticism of the power vehicles and their drivers.

Mr. Swackhamer was the chief speaker. In part he spoke as follows:

"We need regulation of automobiles that will regulate and not abolish. I am not in favor of abolishing the automobile, because it is a source of wealth to this country, and a mark of progress. The question must be dealt with to secure the rights of all, and put to stop to abuses and recklessness.

"The maximum speed limit must be reduced. Twenty miles an hour is too swift for the safety of pedestrians and vehicle drivers on country roads. And after having reduced the speed limit compel the auto drivers to regard the limit by adding imprisonment to the penalty. Make the sentence of imprisonment compulsory, so that reckless automobilists who may have money to pay fines shall not be in position to toss coin lightly on the desk of Justice and go forth to kill within another mile.

"In order to detect the violations of the speed law, automatic speed registers should be attached to autos under a compulsory law, and officers of cities, towns, boroughs, villages and townships should have the power to halt and examine the register at any time, and make arrests on the spot if the record shows that the machine has been speeding beyond the limit."

The subject of Mr. Swackhamer's address was "From the Ox to the Automobile." He pictured the progress in mechanics and other departments of life, sketching the evolution of things from the spinning wheel to the factory, the sickle to the reaper and binder, the tallow candle to the arc light and the ox to the devil wagon.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY IN DIVORCE ACTION

IT WILL PLAY A PROMINENT PART IN ALBERT CASE.

Testimony in reference to the petition for divorce field by Joseph Albert against his wife, Katherine Albert, was taken by John H. Van Winkle, special master in chancery, yesterday, by virtue of an order made by the Chancellor last August. The petitioner lives in Scotch Plains.

The circumstances attending the case are peculiar, and medical testimony will play a prominent part in the evidence. Many witnesses were examined yesterday and the hearing was adjourned to next week. The medical testimony will be presented at that time.

George Ball, Esq., represents the petitioner.

FOR THE SUNDAY-SCHOOLS

Officers Elected by Union County Organization at Convention Yesterday.

MANY ADDRESSES

Miss Edith Cairns Spoke on "Structural Work"—R. P. Greaves Chosen Secretary and Treasurer.

Representatives from all parts of the county attended the annual meeting of the Union County Sunday School convention held in the Second Presbyterian church, Rahway, yesterday. Sessions were held morning, afternoon and evening. Most of the Plainfield Sunday school were represented by several delegates.

The morning session opened with devotions by Rev. William T. Stuchell, of Rahway. The address of the president, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, formerly of this city, but now of Perth Amboy, occupied most of the morning. Rev. W. B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, gave an official report of the year's work, and Richard P. Greaves, of this city, presented a report of the past convention.

Miss Edith Cairns, of the First Baptist church, spoke on "Structural Work," and William S. Webb, of Westfield, made an address on "The Sunday School in the Home." An address prophetic of the work to come was made by Rev. E. M. Fergusson.

The programme for the afternoon session resumed at 2 o'clock, the theme being "More Consecrated Teachers," led by Rev. T. C. Mayham; retrospect and prospect, 1880-1890, Russell W. Woodward; 1890-1897, William Dodge Porter; 1897-1902, Richard P. Greaves; 1902-1905, Rev. William B. Hamilton. Miss Nettie Beeching, of this city, gave reminiscences and told of the growth of the primary unions.

The officers were then elected for the ensuing year: President, H. S. Prentiss, Elizabeth; vice-presidents, Rev. W. P. Stuchell, Rahway; Rev. G. E. Greenwood, Westfield; secretary and treasurer, Richard P. Greaves, Plainfield; recording secretary, Rev. W. B. Hamilton, Elizabeth; superintendent Home Department, W. S. Webb, Westfield; superintendent Primary and Junior Department, Miss Edith Cairns; members State executive committee, A. W. Duxbury, George E. Hall, Plainfield; Rev. Mr. Mulford, Fanwood; Rev. Mr. Smith, Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, Elizabeth; William Dodge Porter, Summit; G. H. Krause, Cranford; Walter M. Irving, Westfield.

R. P. Greaves gave a statistical report showing that there are 125 Sunday schools in the county, with a grand total of 34,687 officers, teachers and members of all departments of the Sunday schools of the county.

Thirty-four schools were placed on the honor roll and received certificates. The treasurer's report showed the receipts for the year to be $534.91 and the disbursements $202.68.

The evening session opened with a song service led by Rev. C. F. Shaw. There was an address on "The Word of God" by Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle. During the intermission H. Tuttle.

LODGE MARKS 18TH YEAR

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr., O. U. A. M., Celebrates Its Birthday in Good Style.

MEMBERSHIP IS 310

Good Programme Followed by Some Refreshments—Many Delegations at the Anniversary Exercises.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrated its eighteenth anniversary in Junior Hall on West Front street last night, at which time the women friends of the members were invited. A fine programme was prepared for the occasion by a committee of which Harry Holmes was the chairman, and for two hours the large gathering was entertained with instrumental selections, monologues, black-face selections, juggling and a sketch entitled "Stupid Servant."

Past Councilor David Bodine opened the programme with an address of welcome, in which he recounted the steady growth of the council since its organization, October 6, 1887, remarking that at present the membership is 310 and is constantly growing. He said that Franklin Council is the oldest one of this order in the city and he joined with all the members in their feelings of pride over its attainments.

The first number on the programme was a selection by the Junior orchestra, followed by a mirth-provoking monologue by Harry Holmes. Mandolin and guitar selections by Professors Henkle and Stewart were greatly enjoyed. A feature of the programme was the juggling and trick performance by Eddie Clark, of New York. The black face selections by Harry Holmes and John R. Fritts were very amusing.

The programme was concluded with a short sketch entitled "Stupid Servant," which was fiiven by Joe Sweeney and William Firstbrook. It was a clever presentation and kept the audience in continual laughter.

After the entertainment refreshments were served by this committee: Harry Holmes, chairman; C. Frank Platts, Joe Sweeney, Roy De Camp, William Firstbrook and D. H. Silvius.

The present officers of the council are as follows: Councilor, William Hartpence; vice-councilor, Roy De Camp; junior past councilor, John G. Bicknell; conductor, Harry Holmes; warden, Ray Winn; inside sentinel, Joe Sweeney; outside sentinel, Sydney Winn.

There were delegations present from Somerset and Benevolent Councils, of this city; Twilight Council, of Scotch Plains; William G. Holton, of Dunellen, and Pioneer Council, of Bound Brook.

DEMOCRATS WILL NAME COMPLETE CITY TICKET

DATE FOR CONVENTION TO BE FIXED FOR TOMORROW NIGHT.

The report that the Democrats would let the city campaign go by default has no basis of truth in it. The city committee will meet tomorrow night and arrange for the city convention, and a full straight-party ticket will be put up.

"There is no truth whatever in the statement, made in several quarters, that we will not oppose the Republicans for city offices," said J. V. F. Dilts, of the city committee. "We are going to put a complete ticket in the field and the nominees will be strong men of a calibre to command respect and support from every class of voters."

Mr. Dilts had no names to offer in connection with the nominations and none of the other leaders and workers will say who the nominees are likely to be. There is a strong suspicion that they don't know, and are keeping mum while casting their dragnet. The bait in the Democratic tin in this section of the county is not usually very tempting to anybody but Jim Martine, and the Republicans are interestedly watching to see whom the enemy will succeed in catching.

The Democratic county convention will be held in Turner Hall, Elizabeth, next Wednesday night.

Junior League to Reorganize.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel Wednesday afternoon, October 18, at 4 o'clock, for reorganization, under the direction of Miss Nettie Beeching, who has consented to take charge of this department of church work. Miss Beeching has such extensive knowledge of this kind of work and is so well adapted for it the church feels fortunate in being able to have her services.

THOMAS DOUD TO QUIT AS BOROUGH RECORDER

SAYS HE WILL NOT ACCEPT A REAPPOINTMENT.

Borough Recorder Thomas Doud, whose administration has been the subject of some attacks by the Citizens' party sends a letter to The Daily Press in which he declares that his present term as magistrate in North Plainfield will be his last. This is what Mr. Doud has to say:

Editor, The Daily Press:

My duties in connection with the Union Water Co. have recently been increased to an extent which will require all of my time. For this reason, if no other, it will be impossible for me to act as Borough Recorder after the expiration of my present term. In view of the fact that I could not under any circumstances accept a reappointment, even if I was unanimously asked to do so, I prefer to make this statement now, instead of waiting until after election.

During my somewhat protracted service as Recorder, I have of course made enemies, and doubtless some mistakes. But my constant effort has been to discharge my duty, which has often been unpleasant, honestly and fairly and I believe that I have done so. The position is not a pleasant one and I will relinquish it with small regret.

TEMPLARS IN REVIEW BEFORE THEIR LEADER

HUNDREDS OF KNIGHTS PASS BEFORE GRAND EMINENT COMMANDER KIRKNER

Martial airs prevailed and gorgeously attired Sir Knights of the Masonic degree of Chivalry invaded Atlantic City, yesterday, the occasion being the annual field day for New Jersey Knights Templar. Several thousand people witnessed the magnificent demonstration of about one thousand Knights Templar, as eighteen New Jersey commanderies, including Trinity, No. 17, of this city, paraded in review before Grand Eminent Commander Jacob Kirkner, of this city. The reviewing stand was on North Carolina avenue.

Resplendent in gold laces and plumed hats the members of the various organizations marched with military precision and elicited much applause along the route of the parade, which preceded the review. Evolutions of an imposing character were gone through by the different commanderies during the procession and the Sir Knights were greeted with marks of approbation on all sides. Trinity Commandery made a decided hit and received special commendation for its fine showing.

A great crowd had gathered at the reviewing stand on North Carolina avenue, and watched with interest each commandery passing in review before the Grand Commander and his staff. Jennings Third Regiment Band, of Camden, was stationed opposite the stand and furnished the music as each organization passed.

During the morning the Sir Knights and their women friends were entertained at the clubhouse of the Atlantic City Yacht Club, on the trolley cars and piers. Many promenaded the boardwalk and the Templar was in evidence everywhere. The members of Trinity Commandery arrived home at a late hour last night, tired, but well pleased with its trip.

PUPILS' QUICK RESPONSE.

Go Through Impromptu Fire Drill in Remarkably Quick Time.

Without previous warning of any kind, the pupils of the Somerset street school were put through a test fire drill during the session this morning. In just exactly one minute and twenty seconds after the gong was sounded by Miss Claypoole, the larger classes were out of the building and on the sidewalk. Two classes in the lower grades were retarded by a few stragglers and required twenty seconds longer.

The test was supervised by Superintendent Krebs and he was very well pleased with the result. In an announced drill held earlier in the week the time required to empty the building was one minute and thirty seconds and he believes the record can be cut to one minute after a few more trials.

CAMPAIGN ORATOR MIXED

Charles E. Ball Declares in Speech That Mayor Smalley is Not in Any Business.

A CITS CANDIDATE

Speaker, Who Seeks Election to Borough Council, Also Attacks Charles A. Reed—Audience Sat Up and Took Notice.

Charles E. Ball, one of the candidates for borough councilman on the Citizens' ticket, branched out as a full-fledged campaign orator at a meeting conducted by the party in its rooms on Somerset street, last night. Without mincing words, he flayed Mayor Smalley and former Senator Charles A. Reed in a manner that made his associates sit up and listen more attentively than they have at any time since the present struggle began. The borough's chief executive, he declared, is not connected with any concern or enterprise from which he might gain a livelihood and that he is supported by the taxpayers. Charles A. Reed, according to his view, is only a mouth-piece for Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, and that everything he does is prompted by the former congressman from up the county.

The same two leaders of the Republican party were jostled by H. C. DeMott, John Goodwin and former Health Inspector William N. Pangborn. Other addresses were made by A. V. D. Honeyman, former Mayor Place and others who attended the meeting. The attendance was very large, nearly 125 voters being present.

Former Mayor H. E. Needham presided over the gathering and at the outset compared Mayor Smalley to President Roosevelt, but not in what could be termed a light favorable to the borough executive. Mr. Needham based his remarks on James R. Joy's reference to Mayor Smalley at the Saengerbund Hall meeting last week. The two men, he said, were fond of athletics, but Roosevelt advocated them for manly strength while Smalley believed in them for gain. The recent pugilistic soiree in Saengerbund Hall was quoted as an instance to bear out his assertion of the Mayor's stand.

Former Mayor Place recited a history of Mayor Smalley's career in politics in the borough as he viewed it and rehearsed some of the allegations that have been made backward and forward between the two. Another speaker was William J. Conroy, the Citizens' candidate for mayor, who dwelt upon the importance of "no mud slinging" in the campaign.

"After this is over," said Mr. Conroy, "if I'm elected I want to feeli that I have the respect of every man in the borough; if I am defeated I want to be able to look every man in the face."

Mr. Ball's address was the feature of the gathering and his allusions to the Mayor were at times rather vivid. He expressed himself as being confident that the regular Republicans were losing their hold in North Plainfield and that Conroy would surely be elected.

When called upon for an address, Henry C. DeMott likened Mayor Smalley to the old horse that had been owned by a county undertaker and who sold it after many years of service to a man in the city. The nag had been so accustomed to heading the procession that the first time he saw a funeral after the sale he placed himself at the head from sheer force of habit and started to lead the way. This, he said, was the trouble with the Mayor. He has been leading the procession so long that he can't get away from it. Mr. DeMott also touched upon the West End avenue sewer matter which has been a sore point with the Cits since the ordinance was passed.

There were numerous other informal remarks made before the meeting was concluded at 10 o'clock and Mayor Smalley and Mr. Reed were made the object as a rule. Before the gathering dispersed sixty new names were added to the Citizens' roster.

It is probable the party will hold a big mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall the Saturday before the election.

A Persistent Truant.

Persistent truancy on the part of one of the pupils has annoyed the North Plainfield school authorities and they have determined to make an example of him. An order has been issued for his arrest and unless he amends his behavior he is to be placed in an institution. The same boy was before Recorder Doud last year and was let off with a reprimand.

Mrs. Robert Carson, of the borough, who has been detained at home by illness for a long time, has been removed to the hospital for treatment.

DYING MAN WAS KEPT IN A CELL

SAID THAT DOCTOR AND JUSTICE MAY BE BLAMED FOR HIS DEATH.

The Orange police were notified yesterday of the death in the County Jail of Peter Filan, of Whitty lane, Orange, who was sent there Wednesday by Police Justice Bray, of that place, after he had lain in a bare cell in Police Headquarters since 1 a. m. Monday. The officials of the Police Department were helpless in the face of Justice Bray's refusal to dispose of the case.

City Physician H. P. Gerbert, who was treating the man for alcoholism and who pronounced his case so dangerous that he might die at any minute, refused to order Filan sent to the Memorial Hospital, declaring he had been told not to send such cases there, because the hospital authorities would not receive alcoholics.

Miss Mary McKechnie, superintendent of the hospital, said yesterday any man in such a serious condition would be received and treated at the hospital.

Filan showed dangerous heart and constitutional symptoms. Notwithstanding this Gerbert would not order his removal. Instead he recommended Tuesday to Justice Bray that the man be sent to the County Jail so he could be taken care of to better advantage. Bray waved him away with the remark that he would "attend to it." The Justice didn't attend to it until Wesdnesday, and then Filan had grown so weak that he had to be carried to the patrol wagon which conveyed him to the County Jail. He shivered during he ride until David Pfiffer, a fellow-prisoner, took off his coat and wrapped him in it.

In justice to Dr. Gerbert it is said that while Filan was in the Orange lock-up he paid him frequent visits and gave him medicine required in his case.

PRETTY GIRL HAS MERCHANTS AT SEA

ORDERS ARTICLES C. O. D., GIVING ADDRESS WHERE SHE IS UNKNOWN.

A number of Newark merchants are desirous of finding a "Mrs. Campbell," whose identity is enshrouded in mystery, or a pretty seventeen-year-old girl, of pleasing address and fine raiment, who has been ordering goods right and left and directing them to be sent C. O. D. to "Mrs. Campbell, No. 94 North Grove street, East Orange."

No less anxious to solve the mystery is the family of Arthur Dolsen, who live at the North Grove street address and who have been kept busy returning merchandise sent to "Mrs. Campbell" from Newark and New York.

The girl who has been the cause of the confusion seems to have a predilection for flowers. From several Broad street florists within the past few days she has ordered cut flowers and exotics, all of which were sent at her direction to No. 74 North Grove street. Shoes from A. A. Eisele & Co., Broad and Academy streets; a quantity of ice cream from Thomas B. Allen, No. 691 Broad street; $40 worth of American Beauty roses and plants from Strobel, No. 783 Broad street; a similar order from William H. Corbin, No. 530 Broad street, and another from a Manhattan florist are a few of many rejected purchases negotiated by this persistent but as yet elusive young woman.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

NO. 12—Cement Building Blocks, Their History and Uses,

By Edgar F. Sheppard.

The use of cement building blocks as a successful substitute for wood, brick, terra cotta and stone, as a real factor in the building world, is of very recent growth though the crude idea is many years old. Durability is conceded, provided the blocks are made right and by right people of right material and by right methods. It is clear that when a manufacturer of cement block machines sells a machine he does not provide brains or common sense for the buyer. The maker of blocks must know something about cement, its qualities and methods of manipulation. The blocks used commercially today and manufactured on machines especially patented for this purpose, although there are no patents on the methods of making. Harmon S. Palmer, of Washington, D. C., is conceded to be the pioneer in this field of cement block construction and use. His first cement block building was erected about seventeen years and and is today an evidence of the durability of this form of construction. Others seeing the value of this method of construction, entered the field, until today there are about one hundred different machines offered the public for use in manufacturing cement building blocks. Many of the manufacturers of these machines, in order to get their machine introduced, have offered very flattering terms to intending purchasers, and the field has broadened until there are today about four thousand plants located in almost every State and Territory, for the manufacture of cement blocks. The United States government, recognizing the value of this method of construction, has already purchased several machines for use in making blocks for various structures in the Panama Canal Zone.

There have been many difficulties to overcome in bringing the business to the condition it is in today, and there remain many yet to be considered and remedied. Not the least of these has been the prejudice of the architect, as many machines make only one size or shape of block, and the architects have been unable to design a structure beautiful to the eye. This matter is gradually adjusting itself by introducing more than one style of machine in a plant and producing blocks of various shapes and sizes for different purposes. The alluring promises of great profits have also, in some cases, induced persons to start a plant who were unscrupulous or ignorant. They have offered the same block for use in the front walls of a residence that they placed in the foundations of a stable or factory. Consequently, many have been prejudiced who would, if approached differently, have used this method of construction.

The making of the blocks, or artificial stone, was probably induced by the very general use to which concrete has been put during the past decade. In 1824 a patent was granted in England to an English brick layer, Joseph Aspden, of Leeds, for a material for making artificial stone. By calcining in close kilns a mixture of English chalk and river bed clay he produced a clinker, which when pulverized produced a cement of extreme hardness and high hydraulicity. This cement, when made into concrete, produced a stone closely resembling the Portland building stone of England, and from this the name of Portland cement was derived. There had been manufactured in the United States since about 1830 a natural rock or Rosendale cement of greatly inferior quality, and until 1875 it was believed that the necessary chalk and clay could not be obtained in this country to manufacture Portland cement, which was used here for the first about 1865. In 1872 Mr. D. O. Saylor, conceived the idea of making an American Portland cement, but could get no information from foreign manufacturers, as their works were closed to outsiders. He continued his experiments, however, and in 1875 placed on the market the first reliable American Portland cement, made of a mixture of limestone and cement stone near Allentown, Pa. Previous to that year, all the Portland cement used in this county was imported at great expense, and consequently its use was greatly limited. During that year, however, about 300 barrels of American Portland cement was manufactured, and the growth of the industry in this county has been steady and healthy, until in 1904 seventy-eight mills manufactured 23,000,000 barrels, and the importations have correspondingly decreased. The brains of the American genius has devised machinery for burning and grinding which has great cheapened the cost of manufacture, reducing the price to the consumer, until cement construction has come into such general use that the present has frequently been referred to as the "Cement Age." One of the most recent and prominent examples of cement work—reinforced with steel rods to increase the strength—is the New York Subway. Over 1,000,000 barrels of Portland cement were used during the four years work of this construction. At Washington, the Government is now using cement building blocks in the erection of the new Connecticut Avenue bridge over Rock Creek.

In taking up the manufacture of cement building blocks, there are four very necessary requisites—A good machines, a good Portland cement, good clean sharp sand, not too fine (up to 6 per cent. of clay in the sand is said to make a stronger block) and a well developed pump of common sense on the part of the manufacturer. Too many men start in the business without giving sufficient study to these details and do not succeed. There is such a wide chance for the dishonest manufacturer to cover his tracks for a while and make a block chiefly of sand, which costs less than cement, and thus take trade away from the honest producer on price, that many men have hesitated about entering the business. Several cities have adopted ordinances requiring the testing of cement blocks, and thus this evil has been greatly overcome.

While there are many different machines for making cement blocks all covered by patents, and differing only in the shape and size of the product, there are but two different methods of making the blocks—the "wet process" and the "dry process." By the "wet process" the cement and sand are thoroughly mixed dry and then sufficient water is added to make a mixture of the consistency of mush. This when shovelled into the forms requires no tamping, but flows freely into all the corners and makes a very dense stone. The great objection to this method of manufacture is its slowness. The blocks must remain in the forms for 24 hours, and as a good active crew can make from 200 to 300 blocks a day, there must necessarily be that number of forms. As wooden forms warp more or less even when thoroughly braced, iron must be employed which proves very expensive. Much as been written in defence of this process, but the other, or "dry" process is more generally used by cement block manufacturers.

By this latter process the sand and cement are thoroughly mixed while dry, and only sufficient water is added to hold the mass together—just as wet sea and when taken in the hand and pressed together will adhere until dropped a distance. This mixture is then placed in the moulds and each shovel full thoroughly tamped in place, the top smoothed off, the sides dropped down, cores removed, and the block stands on the pallett ready to be set aside for curing. After a short time—in some cases from 6 to 8 hours and sometimes longer, according to atmospheric conditions—the block is ready to be taken to the drying rack. Here the water is applied to the surface as often as it dries off. The process of cristallizing is a slow one and plenty of water should be applied during this time. A great many manufacturers do not appreciate teh importance of properly curing their output, and the consequent result is an article that goes to pieces. When the American Society of Civil Engineers and the cement manufacturers test cement, the briquettes are kept under water from the time they are 24 hours old until broken. This shows the necessity for care in curing blocks. The blocks should remain in the curing shed, and be frequently watered, from two to three weeks before they are ready for use. Much care is necessary in handling the green blocks, as even a slight spring of a board on which they are being carried will crack them.

While the business has made giant strides during the past years there are still many difficulties to be overcome. Too many of the machines make only one size block while a stone mason will use many sizes and shapes. Some architects have taken hold of the matter and with the aid of manufacturers have designed structures that were striking. The great majority of architects have been loath to take hold of the matter as they did not consider that the material would adapt itself to an architecturally handsome building. When the stamped metal ceilings were first brought out they were very crude designs, but there are today many that are really artistic, and thus there is need for the intelligent architect to study the machines and output.

There is also great need for the manufacturer to study the details closely. He should know whether to increase or decrease his dose of cement according to the fineness of his sand,—he should study the effect of fire on the different grades of sand at his command—and in fact should be continually on the outlook to better his output and please his customers.

When this method of construction was first introduced, one of the greatest questions considered was its water proofing qualities. It is a well known fact that cement work will not altogether repel dampness. In order to overcome this difficulty, the air space in blocks was devised as we see it today—some with one and some with two sets of air chambers. There are numerous minute pores between the particles of sand into which water will be drawn by capillary attraction and the harder the mixture is tamped, the less the number of these pores and consequently the more waterproof the block. Recently there have been invented certain fluids which may be mixed with the sand to make the blocks still more waterproof, and others give the inside face of the block a coat of dampproof paint to keep out moisture. When the face of a properly made block is exposed to the air, there should be no perceptible dampness strike through.

One of the advantages of this form of construction in small buildings, where every inch of space is valuable, is that the plastering can be applied directly to the back of the blocks, thus doing away with studding and lathing. Much has been printed regarding the comparative cost of cement block construction as compared with brick and stone, bue local conditions enter so largely into this phase of the question that no set price can be named except after experience. As a rule, though, cement block buildings ought not to cost any more than brick structures, if as much, when we consider that in many cases narrower walls can be used of cement blocks than of brick.

Not only has the recent prominence of the cement industry produced the building block, but there is also manufactured today out of cement very cheap and stable fence posts, roofing shingles (or tiling), cement building bricks, cement paving bricks, concrete flower boxes, garden ornaments (which may be made in any style of sculpture, to suit the taste of the owner), besides the many uses to which reinforced concrete may be put, and there appears to be no end of uses to which this very pliable material may be put.

LITERARY NOTES.

The October Sunset is entirely interesting. The cover design is by Maynard Dixon—a Navajo Indian "making medicine" for himself. Wrapped in his blanket he calmly views the landscape and meditates upon life's problems. The frontispiece is a reproduction of one of Herbert Ponting's famous photographs of Fujiyama. The leading article, "When West Met East," by Edwin Emerson, Jr., is a jolly record of the doings of the western war correspondents at the front in the Russian-Japanese war. Mr. Emerson had the good luck to serve with both armies in the field, and had opportunities for meeting most of the correspondents. William B. Gross describes Kunzite, the new precious gem which is found in San Diego county, California. Marie Coe's article, "A New Polar Explorer," expresses the belief that the north pole will be discovered by a "musher;" that a gold stampede will eventually be started toward north latitude ninety degrees and that "mushers" will rush in where arctic explorers have feared to tread. It is a most interesting record of life in the frigid zone. It is beautifully illustrated. Mary E. Stickney tells some old stories of mines and miners in a new and entertaining way. Other features of this number are fiction stories by Bailey Millard and Juliet Wilbor Tompkins; an essay by Gelett Burgess, and poems by Edwin L. Sabin, Edward Robeson Taylor and Allan Dunn.

SNAP SHOTS.

Courted His Own Daughter.—The London Mail prints the following: A remarkable affair, reminiscent of the old Greek tragedies, has occurred at Appenzell. Nearly twenty years ago a young Swiss commercial traveller named Muller deserted his wife and infant daughter and emigrated to Mexico, where he succeeded in amassing a considerable fortune. During his absence his wife died, and the little girl was adopted by a farmer of Appenzell named Schloss. The child assumed the name of Schloss, and was generally regarded in the district as the farmer's own daughter. A year ago her father, who called himself Ilfelder after leaving his native country, sold out his business in Mexico and returned to Appenzell. He was informed and naturally believed that both wife and child were long since dead. Later, he met his daughter, and, ignorant of her identity, fell in love with her. She is now nearly twenty years old, while he is forty-one. For four months the returned wanderer wooed the girl with her consent. It was only when he asked the approval of the farmer Schloss that he learned the girl's history and recognized that he had won the hand of his own daughter. Rushing from the house he travelled at once to Bale, whence he wrote to the farmer confessing everything, placing £3,000 to the girls' credit in a Zurich bank. Nothing more has been heard of him, and his daughter is heartbroken.

Charles Miller, of Whippany, Morris county, who has been visiting his cousin, Dudley S. Miller, of Orchard place, has returned home.

Go to the game tomorrow prepared to root for your favorites, whether they be on the champion team or the All-Plainfield Stars.

Mayors J. F. Buckle and N. B. Smalley, together with a large number of city officials, will attend the feast and join in the celebration.

Manager Daab and his team will be the honored guests at the banquet and the fans will unite in giving them unstinted praise for their efforts.

"Warry" MacLaughlin is a good sticker and is due to make a few hits, while Wiltse is always in the game and will do his share toward the run-getting.

One week from tomorrow the Daabsters will close the season with a game on Crescent Oval with the New York Giants, who are now batling for the world's championship.

The banquet is called for 9 o'clock sharp and all those intending to sit about the festive board are urged to be prompt, so that there will be plenty of time for the feast and the speeches afterward.

The band concert starts at 2 o'clock and the game will begin after the music-fest. This will be Plainfield's first opportunity to attend a baseball game and a concert on the local grounds and all for the one price of admission.

Tomorrow night at the banquet the success of the Daabsters will be recounted, while the small failures will be omitted, as they are scarcely worth mentioning. Plainfield has had the best team in its history this season and is proud of it. Greater power to the manager and team next season.

Plainfield, N. J., October 13, 1905.

It was a bad night for District Attorney Jerome. He was turned down by Tammany Hall and hissed by the Hearst convention. The spectacular official, so fond of constant notoriety, will soon pass beyond the limelight. And it is well.

While he admits that he has doubtless made some mistakes, the career of Thomas Doud as borough recorder has been marked by many instances of sound judgment in the dispensation of justice. Wife beaters, drunkards and general disturbers of the peace found in him a terror to evil-doers and they will be the first to give thanks that he will not be a candidate for reappointment.

The New York World, recognized as the spokesman for the party, asks today whether the Democracy is dying. It recites a chain of facts that will convince some people that if not dead, it is walking around to save funeral expenses. To show evidences of the corpus delicti, the World says: "A Tammany city convention adopts resolutions praising President Roosevelt for 'the surprising courage, remarkable tact, distinguished ability and commanding influence displayed by him as the central figure in the greatest peace triumph of the age.' William Jennings Bryan, twice candidate for President on the Democratic ticket, tenders to Mr. Roosevelt his sympathetic support in the campaign of regulating corporations in general and railway rates in particular. A former aspirant for the Democratic nomination for President is intermittently supporting Mr. Roosevelt and saying a kind word now and than for the principles of Socialism. The Massachusetts Democrats commend Mr. Roosevelt for his services in establishing peace between Russia and Japan. The Rhode Island Democrats indorse Mr. Roosevelt's rate-regulation policy. The Republicans of Massachusetts are demanding a revision of the tariff. Former Senator Caffrey, of Louisiana, says the Southern Democrats are protectionists, and predicts the organization of a new party."

Mr. Rodman moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Peters, and the Bishop, with words of cordial praise and fellowship for the New York divine, put the motion. In response Dr. Peters spoke in a freer and more feeling vein of the personal regard in which he held Mr. Stevenson.

"We with whom Mr. Stevenson has worked love him with a sincere affection," he said, "and I always follow with the deepest interest the labors he undertakes. It is the personal interest in his work as much as my desire to serve God everywhere that brought me here tonight.

"I wish you joy in your new house, and may you do such good works in it as the Lord may put in your hearts."

The building was thrown open and lighted from top to bottom for inspection. In the guild room the women of the congregation served coffee and cake and lemonade, under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Perkins, president of the Guild, and Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell. Mrs. T. M. Minford poured.

The building committee, to whom the rector said the thanks of the congregation were due particularly for the realization of the parish house plans, was composed of M. S. Ackerman, E. H. Booth and L. G. Timpson.

P. S. C. TO BUILD A FREIGHT LINE

OFFICIALS PLANNING TO THAT END BETWEEN NEWARK AND NEW YORK.

Little by little as the plans of the New Jersey Railway Company and the New York Railway Company are made known, it is apparent to those who are following the situation closely that the line, when built, will be more than a high-speed passenger road from Newark to New York. It will be a freight line as well, and the officials of the Public Service Corporation are planning to carry light express matter to and from New York. This is the line which is to be built by President Thomas N. McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation, across the meadows through Bergen hill to Fourteenth street, Jersey City, thence to New York through a tunnel under the Hudson river.

The plan to carry freight is not new to the Public Service Corporation. Its officials had that scheme in view when they endeavored to secure the Morris canal. It was their intention at that time to build a high speed road to Jersey City, that would enable them to transport express matter also.

To carry express matter it was necessary to incorporate under a general railroad act. The new tunnel line comes into existence under this act.
